MANY WORKERS TOLD JOBS SAFE DESPITE CUTS

Discharges Few Because of Spread-Work and Furlough Policies.

By Robert C. Albright.

On the eve of a new fiscal year, Federal personnel problems yesterday narrowed down to humane administration of cuts that must be made.

In most departments, doubts were being resolved in favor of the much-harassed Federal worker, fighting to hold his job in the face of economy slashes and patronage onslaughts.

Even at the Public Works Administration, where a group of Civil Service employes was released the first of the week, authorities disavowed any conflict with the Council of Personnel Administration's plans to place workers dropped from old-line Federal establishments.

Furloughs Are Favored.

At close of business several establishments were on record in favor of furloughs instead of dismissals, as policies for the new fiscal year slowly took form. Discharges continued on a small front where budget cuts dictated, but these were infinitesimal compared with jobs saved by spread-work policies.

Most offices were making flexible use of all methods authorized by Congress for meeting fund cuts, with an eye to easing the hardship on affected personnel. Failure of Congress to emphasize any one of these methods, whether retirements, furloughs, transfers or dismissals, was interpreted as giving officers a free hand in solving their own individual departmental problems.

Meanwhile, the Cabinet advisory committee prepared to submit to the Comptroller General the question whether employes of the new recovery and public works set-ups must take the 15 per cent pay cut Congress dealt other departmental employes. The Comptroller already has ruled employes of the new rail coordinator's office are immune from the cut. Secretary of Commerce Roper disclosed that the question came up at a meeting of the committee yesterday. A subcommittee was named to clear up the matter.

Cut From 228 to 90.

Probably the most discouraging development of the day came at the Commerce Department, where Secretary Roper announced the domestic

Mattern Failed to Reach Aleutians, Soviet Belief

Khabarovsk, Siberia, June 28 (A.P.).—Aviation experts here today expressed the belief that Jimmie Mattern, American flier missing on an attempted flight from this place to Nome, Alaska, never reached the vicinity of the Aleutian Islands and that, therefore, he must have been forced down somewhere southwest of there.

This belief was expressed as Soviet frontier guards in the entire northern region and all Soviet Russian ships sailing in northern waters were still on the lookout for the pilot.

Hindenburg Reported Heart Attack Victim

Strasbourg, June 28 (U.P.).—A report that President Paul von Hindenburg, aged chief executive of Germany, is dangerously ill at his summer villa at Neudeck, was printed today in the newspaper Derniere Nouvelles. He will be 86 in October.

The dispatch, printed under a Berlin dateline, said physicians attending Von Hindenburg were worried over his condition. He was reported to have suffered a heart attack resulting in a three-day period in which he was only semiconscious. He was able to take a few steps today, however, the report added.

Canton, Ill., June 28 (A.P.).—Caught up by a tornado, Willard Donaho rods a cultivator 200 feet through the air and the team of horses attached to the cultivator went along. They were landed, right side up, unharmed.

Farm buildings on Donaho's farm did not fare so well. Two buildings and a hay shed were demolished in the combination electrical and wind storm which hit this district yesterday.

10 Commandments Seen Repealed in Vote Now

Memphis, Tenn., June 28 (U.P.).—Dr. C. A. Waterfield, of Bolivar, Tenn., said here today he believes "the world is in such a state it would repeal the Ten Commandments if they were being voted on."

Dr. Waterfield is chairman of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Memphis Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

GREEN ASSAILS CODE BACKED BY TEXTILES

Senator Black Also Joins in Fight to Raise Wages and Cut Hours.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

Organized labor launched its expected assault on the textile code before the national industrial recovery administration yesterday and found beer and skittles awaiting its delectation in the first of the employers' redoubts.

Elimination of child labor, with the minimum employable age fixed at 16 years, was accepted by the manufacturers soon after the hearings got under way. It was a major victory for the workers, although the employers took their thunder by accepting it as their own proposition.

Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, retired, recovery administrator, had given the employers their key the day before, when he suggested that if the minimum wage proposed prohibited child labor in fact there wasn't any good reason why the prohibition shouldn't be set forth specifically in the code. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and the labor advisory council would have accepted a 15-year limitaiton, but the textile manufacturers took the 16-year suggestion.

Labor's assault thereafter was a polite one. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor,

Rail Patrol Finds Bomb on Bridge

Vienna, June 28 (A.P.).—A railway patrol this afternoon found a bomb with a burning fuse on one of Vienna's most important railway bridges. The patrol succeeded in tearing off the fuse.

Earlier in the day a bomb exploded on the Vienna-Baden Suburb Electric Railway, tearing up a stretch of trackage and hurling a fragment of steel through a roof of a nearby marmalade factory. No trains were running at the time. A bomb which had not exploded was found in the outskirts of Vienna on the City Railway.

Meanwhile, police were exercising great precautions to safeguard Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss, who will go to Insbruck tomorrow to address a meeting. Fascist Heimwehr authorities traveled on all trains and inspected passengers in the Tyrol, in western Austria, while automobiles were halted and searched.

Wets! Wets! Everywhere But Not a One to Work

Belington, W. Va., June 28 (A.P.).—Here's a study in politics: The drys were so strong in the Fourth Ward that yesterday's repeal referendum was delayed for an hour. Officers were unable to find a wet to serve on the election board. Every one approached claimed to be a prohibitionist.

Finally, Mrs. Thamer Griffith volunteered to announce herself a wet and serve on the board in order to let the election proceed. The wets carried the ward, 49 to 46.

Pittsburg, Kans., June 28 (A.P.).—Wanting to be on the job in case burglars should break in, J. A. Prince, grocer here, decided to sleep in his store.

This morning he awoke to find the revolver at the head of his bed had been stolen, along with $116 he had placed in his trousers before retiring.

KAHN ESCAPED TAX 3 YEARS, QUIZ REVEALS

Banker Tells Pecora He Can Not Remember Stock Sales.

By Harold J. T. Horan.

Otto H. Kahn, senior member of the international banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., provided the climax for the second day's hearing by the Senate committee of the activities of his firm. With suave ingenuousness, Mr. Kahn admitted under the acid questioning of Ferdinand H. Pecora, committee counsel, that he paid no income taxes for the years 1930, 1931 and 1932. With a gentle smile, Mr. Kahn said:

"I am less interested in my own financial affairs than anything else I am interested in."

However, the famous financier was forced to plead a lapse of memory when a short time later Mr. Pecora asked him about the assignment of certain stocks from his daughter, Mrs. John C. A. Marriot, to him on December 31, 1930. On the day before this assignment was made, Mr. Kahn had declared a tax loss of $117,584 from the sale of certain securities.

Buttenwieser Questioned.

Mr. Pecora continued his questioning of the international banker with the evident intention of establishing a connection between the sale of the stocks one day and their purchase from Mr. Kahn's daughter the next.

Distributive losses, under which category the tax exemptions of Mr. Kahn and Mr. Morgan were made, are not deductible in the new industrial recovery-public works act. A similiar transaction was brought out by Mr. Pecora in the examination of the Morgan partners, Thomas S. Lamont and William Ewing. Mr. Lamont had claimed stock losses from sales made to his wife and Mr. Ewing to the trust funds which he administered. This phase of the hearings will be held over until today.

For the greater part of yesterday Mr. Kahn had been filling an inconspicuous role in the proceedings. The junior member of Kuhn, Loeb, Benjamin J. Buttenwieser had been under examination explaining the proceedings which surrounded the flotation of five Chilean mortgage bank loans in this country totaling $90,000,000 and on which Mr. Kahn had made a gross profit of $3,787,550. This profit melted away, however, under the succeeding short term loans which had been made the Chilean bank by Kuhn, Loeb and which were subsequently sequestered by the Chilean moratorium.

Symphony in Gray.

Mr. Kahn was a symphony in gray for his appearance yesterday. Silver gray flannel lounge suit, blue-gray shirt with collar, tie and handkerchief to match, and his distinctive moustache and gray hair carefully brushed. At several times he had interpolated explanations when his partner, Mr. Buttenwieser, seemed to be floundering.

Pecora dismissed the youthful Kuhn, Loeb member toward the close

Opposition Party Ahead in Ireland

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 28 (A.P.).—Candidates of the opposition, consisting of the Commercial party and the followers of former President William T. Cosgrave, had a majority at midnight over government candidates in today's Dublin municipal elections. The returns were incomplete. President Eamon de Valera and his ministers campaigned for the government candidates.

An attempt to unseat Lord Mayor Byrne, who stood as an independent, but a strong supporter of Cosgrave, failed. Byrne headed the poll. The Labor leader, James Larkin, was among the defeated candidates.

Followers of Cosgrave claimed the election was indicative of a general antigovernment swing, but the electors were largely apathetic in today's polling.

26 Miners Are Indicted For Assault in Illinois

Benton, Ill., June 28 (A.P.).—Twenty-six West Frankfort and Orient miners, including Fern Evett, president of Subdistrict 9 of the United Mine Workers of America, were indicted by the Franklin County grand jury today on charges of assault with a deadly weapon as result of charges preferred by members of the Progressive Miners Union.

The assaults are alleged to have occurred several weeks ago when, Progressives assert, several groups of men entered homes of Progressive sympathizers and administered beatings.

Post Joins Firemen To Save Big Parade

Sergt. Bargagni and Tom, long-time buddies of the Fire Department, who will participate again in the big Labor Day parade, which The Post will assist in sponsoring.

Bargagni Breaks News to "Tom" That Pageant Will Be Staged.

This is a story of an old, old horse and a great parade—the annual fireman's parade—that will be held this year, after all. Yesterday The Washington Post joined hands with the firefighters of the District and the National Firemen's Association in sponsoring the Labor Day event.

The ancient horse is Tom, last of a celebrated trio that once raced Washington streets with fire engines of the early years of this century. His two associates of yesteryear, Gene and Barney, have gone on to whatever place it is that great horses go, and he alone stands to bear the memory of the past.

Things were sad indeed with local and national firefighters who participate yearly in this parade that is surpassed in color, as a national pageant, only perhaps by the inaugural parade of a President. They were sadder still with Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, who conceived the annual parade 11 years ago, until he was assured by The Post of its support. But

8 MEN ARE INDICTED IN CASES OF 2 BANKS

Illness of Grayson's Brother May Spare Him Arraignment Next Week.

The men accused of aiding Robert S. Stuns in the manipulation of the Park Savings Bank's accounts will be arraigned in the District Supreme Court on July 7 to answer indictments returned against them yesterday by the grand jury.

The illness of John Cooke Grayson, brother of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, may prevent his appearance at the arraignment. He is ill in Charlottesville, Va. It is alleged that Grayson, while chief clerk in the national bank examiner's office, aided Stuns' peculations by informing him when the bank examiners would be sent to the Park Savings.

The others indicted in the Park Savings case are David P. Smith, a

Moley Holds Fate Of Stabilization

London (Thursday), June 29 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt is ready to rely on Undersecretary of State Raymond Moley's advice on whether there should be temporary stabilization of the dollar, the Daily Telegraph said this morning.

The Telegraph said that the question will be decided one way or the other while Moley is in London.

The financial expert on the Daily Express understands the United States Government aims to stabilize the dollar around $4.65 to the pound sterling—or almost equal with the old gold exchange rate of $4.86, compared with the rate of $3.40 or less reached before America went off the gold standard.

FLORIDA OFFICIALS PROBE DUAL KILLING

Trio Questioned in Death of 2 Woodstock, Va., Women Found in Bay.

Cambridge, Mass., June 28 (U.P.).—Florida officials today questioned a man and two women here in connection with the murder of two Woodstock, Va., women tourists, whose nude bodies were found June 1 in Dumfoundling Bay, near Miami.

James R. Humphries, 29, former employe of the Admiral Hotel, at which the two slain women had stopped before their disappearance, was first questioned by State's Attorney Vernon Hawthorne, of the Miami district, and State Detective John B. Rowland, also of Florida. He was brought to the office of the Middlesex County district attorney by two Massachusetts State detectives.

A short time later his stepmother, Mrs. Mary Gover, of Revere, and her daughter, Miss Madeline Gover, 20, were questioned. Before entering the district attorney's office, Mrs. Gover instructed her daughter not to submit to questioning. They refused to answer questions put to them.

Hawthorne and Rowland came here to investigate the deaths of Mrs. Myer Shapiro, 43, a widow, and her sister, Miss Lillian Howard, brutally murdered last May while they were touring the South. The women had stopped at the Admiral Hotel and disappeared after checking out. Their bodies, stripped of clothing and weighted with gravel wrapped in oilskins, were found floating in Dumfoundling Bay June 1, tied together. The oilskins had slipped away and most of the gravel had washed away, permitting them to float. Both their skulls were crushed and one had been shot through the head. Their features were mutilated, but identification was made through teeth records.

He was indefinitely furloughed, effective July 1, along with the district administrator, Robert D. Ford, and six State deputy administrators. The Federal enocomy ax fell also on many other enforcement employes in the district.

Ford said the information came in a message from prohibition headquarters in Washington. How the work would be handled in the district

Nazis Drafting Law To Sterilize the Unfit

Details of Unprecedented Experiment Closely Guarded; Hitler-Von Hindenburg Showdown Nears as Hugenberg Goes to President.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Berlin, June 28.—The government of Chancellor Adolf Hitler is drafting a bill calling for the sterilization of the "hereditarily unfit," the United Press learned on high official authority today.

This unprecedented social experiment was proclaimed by Chancellor Hitler during the days of his phenomenal rise to power, but revelation that the plan actually had progressed to the law-drafting stage came as a shock, even in quarters close to Fascist leaders here.

Drafting of the bill is in the hands of Minister of Interior Wilhelm Frick, who, it was understood, has practically decided the form it is to take. Under the dictatorial powers voted him by the Reichstag, Chancellor Hitler, through his Nazi-controlled cabinet, can put the law into effect by decree.

Details of the procedure of sterili-

VIRGINIA ASSEMBLY CALL IS PREDICTED

Pollard Prepares as Wets Gain Strength; Beer by August Forecast.

Richmond, Va., June 28 (A.P.).—Proponents of a special session of Virginia's General Assembly tonight said such a session was certain and Gov. Pollard prepared to order special elections for filling vacancies, indicating if two-thirds of both houses force him to call the Legislature to act on beer, repeal referendum machinery and public works, he will set an August date.

Responses favorable to a special session from more than half of each house tonight had been communicated to State Senator William M. Tuck, of Halifax, who last night set in motion a poll of the present membership.

"With more than half of the present membership of both branches indicating approval of a special session for this legislation tonight, I am assured that by tomorrow we shall have not only the necessary two-thirds for forcing the governor to call the session, but also the four-fifths in each house necessary to make the legalization of beer emergency legislation," Senator Tuck said.

"With this we may expect legal 3.2 beer in Virginia not later than the second day of the special session."

After compiling responses tonight, Senator Tuck said he has assurances

Hawks to Attempt New Speed Record

Chicago, June 28 (A.P.).—American air race headquarters tonight announced a telegram from Frank Hawks, noted speed flier, who said he would leave Los Angeles Saturday, opening day of the races, in an attempt to break the nonstop speed record between Los Angeles and Chicago.

The present record, air race headquarters said, was 9 hours 9 minutes and 4 seconds, set by Wiley Post in 1930. Post averaged 192 miles an hour for the 1,706 miles.

Hawks will dash back to Los Angeles the next day, the race headquarters said, to set a speed record on the return.

Maj. Doolittle Predicts Transpacific Air Lines

Manila, P. I., June 28 (A.P.).—Maj. James Doolittle today predicted regular transpacific airplane service would be accomplished within two years.

The flier, here for a brief visit while en route from China to the United States, said Pan-American Airways has designed plans for such a service and is surveying a route from San Francisco to Hawaii, Wake Island, Guam, Manila and Hongkong. Maj. Doolittle said he thought the route was practical.

Illinois Governor Signs Bill for State Sales Tax

Springfield, Ill., June 28 (A.P.).—Gov. Henry Horner today signed the 2 per cent sales tax bill, putting the tax law into effect Saturday.

He also signed companion bills providing that revenues from the sales tax should be turned over to the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission for taking care of the jobless and destitute during the last half of 1933 and then be diverted to abatement of the State property tax during the rest of the biennium.

HARRIMAN'S APPEAL FOR DELAY IS DENIED

Trial to Start Next Thursday Despite Protest Over Senators' Remarks.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Federal Judge William Bondy today brushed aside a plea of the defense that a delay of a year should be granted, and set July 6 as the date for trial of Joseph W. Harriman, former head of the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co.

Harriman is under indictment which charges he caused false entries to be made in the account books of the bank. Albert M. Austen, a former vice president of the bank, accused of aiding in the alleged crime, will go on trial with Harriman.

George S. Leisure, counsel for Harriman, in asking for a delay of a year said that the senatorial subcommittee investigating delay in the Harriman prosecution had prejudiced the community against Harriman in the hearing it held in New York Monday.

In his argument Leisure referred to Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, chairman of the subcommittee, and Senator M. M. Neely, of West Virginia, a member of the subcommittee, by saying that "No one expects great intelligence in senators from Arizona and West Virginia."

Leisure said that at a subcommittee hearing in Washington Senator Neely had said "It is not necessary to encourage a bank president who has stolen over a million dollars from his depositors to continue on a job so profitable."

This comment, Leisure said, was repeated here Monday by Senator Ashurst.

"The remark," Leisure said, "was not only made in Washington, where we expect a great deal of wind from both houses, but was repeated in New York."

Judge Bondy said he was not interested in Leisure's opinion or beliefs, and he fixed the trial date suggested by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie.

Storm Hits Boats In Caribbean Sea

Miami, Fla., June 28 (A.P.).—A tropical disturbance of "great intensity and small diameter" was charted by the Weather Bureau today in the southeastern Caribbean Sea, 1,800 miles from Miami. Latest reports, which came from the steamer Darien in the Caribbean Sea, said the storm's center was northeast of La Guayra, Venezuela.

The Washington Weather Bureau estimated the storm traveled about 300 miles in the last 24 hours. The steamer Darien reported it was swept by winds of 50 miles an hour, while other steamers in the area reported winds as high as 70 miles an hour. Wireless reports received here said the storm caused no damage to inhabited areas.

Weather Bureau officials said the disturbance was not headed in the direction of the United States when last reported.

Gore and Family Fly To Puerto Rico Today

Miami, Fla., June 28 (A.P.).—Robert H. Gore, Fort Lauderdale and Chicago, will fly from here tomorrow for San Juan to assume his post as Governor of Puerto Rico. With him on the giant flying boat American Clipper will be Mrs. Gore and six of their nine children.

The new governor will be inaugurated July 5, succeeding Gov. J. R. Beverley.

Yields to Pressure for Support of European Gold Countries.

$4.38 Exchange Rate Record Since Nation Left Standard.

London, June 28 (U.P.).—The British, spurred into action by the swiftly tumbling dollar, have thrown in their lot with the European gold standard bloc and agreed to peg the pound sterling with the French gold franc, it was reported in World Economic Conference quarters tonight.

This report was supported by word from trustworthy sources close to the Bank of England that the Bank of England and the Bank of France representatives, in a meeting tonight, agreed to peg sterling to the franc. The move was described as an effort to support gold currencies on the continent.

Word came during a day in which the falling dollar slowly forced the British to yield to pressure from the gold standard countries, led by France, demanding Britain join the continental "gold standard defense league" against the dollar.

Arranged on Flexible Basis.

The dollar closed at $4.23¾ to the pound, but continued to drop in late tradings and was quoted as low as $4.38 to the pound—a record for their exchange rates since the British went off gold. Prior to America's abandoning the gold standard, the pound-dollar rate was around $3.40.

The Americans were seeking to prevent the British from joining the European gold bloc against the dollar, holding that Anglo-American cooperation in financial reform measures would work out to their mutual advantage. However, the British opposed the dropping of the dollar to a figure approaching the former $4.86 to the pound, thereby eliminating their trade advantage gained by going off gold, and apparently felt that joining the gold bloc might force Washington now to agree to currency stabilization.

The agreement to peg the pound to the franc was understood to have been arranged on a flexible, informal basis, without fixing a definite rate.

Holland Reported Asking Loan.

However, Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England, was reported to have given assurances that Britain would do her utmost within her resources to hold the sterling-franc rate steady by using her £375,000,000 equalization fund in manipulating the exchange market.

The treasury, not the Bank of England, controls the fund and assumes responsibility for any losses, but it is operated on the advice of the Bank of England.

The United Press also was informe-

REPEALISTS AWAIT FIRST TEST IN SOUTH

Alabama and Arkansas to Vote July 18; Wets Now Have 16 States.

New York, June 28 (U.P.).—Advocates of the repeal of the prohibition amendment, having added California and West Virginia to their list of victories, turned to the South today for the next contest and perhaps an answer to the question of whether traditionally dry territory has changed to wet.

On July 18 Alabama and Arkansas will vote on the repeal question. Both States have been dry from almost the beginning of the active prohibition movement. It is generally conceded that to win, the repeal forces must carry some of the States of the usually solid dry South. These two States are the first in that region to vote upon the issue.

Early reports from Arkansas strongly favored victory for the prohibitionists. But lately there has been an increase in antiprohibition activity reported, which may have an effect in the three weeks remaining before the election.

In Alabama late reports are that there is considerable sentiment for repeal. Strongly Democratic, the tendency to support the party platform is said to be having a strong effect which may wrench what was once a militantly dry State out of the prohibition column.

The repeal victory in West Virginia gave much encouragement to the hopes of repeal supporters of being able to invade the dry South. Regarded as a "border State," West Virginia has been previously "dry." Many influential repeal leaders listed it as "doubtful" before the election. Although the margin of victory—200,627 to 120,479 on the basis of not quite complete returns—was the narrowest in any State which has voted to date, it was the source of deep satisfaction to the antiprohibitionists.

The result in California, which voted 718,723 to 228,083 for repeal yesterday, had been generally expected.

California and West Virginia made it sixteen States which have voted to ratify repeal. None has voted against it. The 16 States which have voted embrace a population of 52,721,989, or 43 per cent of the total population of the 48 States. They have given repeal an aggregate vote of 8,054,973 against 2,223,581 against repeal, a ratio of 3.5 to 1 in favor of taking the eighteenth amendment out of the Constitution. The majority for repeal thus far is 5,831,392.

Wallace Escapes Blast In Plane; 5 Are Saved

Goodland, Kans., June 28 (A.P.).—A United States Airways passenger plane, which carried Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, from Kansas City to Salina today, was destroyed by an explosion and fire after it had made a forced landing near Goodland.

Explosion of a fuel tank wrecked the ship soon after Pilot Gordon Darnell, warned of danger by fumes from the motor, landed in a corn field and escorted his four passengers to safety. Mail and express also was saved. Secretary Wallace, Cal Ward, president of the Farmers Union in Kansas, and George W. Catts, agriculture commissioner of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, left the plane at Salina, where Wallace delivered an address.

NAZIS ARE DRAFTING STERILIZATION LAW

zation or who would judge the "hereditarily unfit" remained a closely guarded secret, pending formal announcement of the law.

Hitler's program of smashing all political opposition meanwhile gained fresh impetus with the announcement that the Constitutional party had dissolved itself. The move in itself had small significance, having been expected. The party's members in the Reichstag and Prussian Diet had been prohibited from taking their seats following the recent outlawing of the Socialist party, on account of the fact the Socialists and Constitutionalists voted joint tickets in the March elections.

The Catholic parties were reliably reported to have been given an opportunity to follow the example of the Constitutionalists and the Nationalist party, dissolved on order of its leader, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, coincidentally with his resignation as minister of economics yesterday.

A puzzling situation developed during the day over Dr. Hugenberg's resignation and his future position in the government, if any. The government first announced officially that President Paul von Hindenburg, at his summer villa at Neudeck, had accepted the resignation.

Then, suddenly and without explanation, this announcement of acceptance was withdrawn and Hitler let it be known he was proceeding to Neudeck to report fully on the political situation to Von Hindenburg.

Some saw in this a crisis between Hitler and Von Hindenburg, and a showdown at Neudeck was predicted.

Dr. Hugenberg's influence with the president was reported recently to have been considerably strengthened, following a visit of Nationalist emissaries at Neudeck, who emphasized again to Von Hindenburg Dr. Hugenberg's long service in the government and his "sacrifices for the nation."

It appeared that Von Hindenburg definitely declined to accept Dr. Hugenberg's resignation and called Hitler to Neudeck for an explanation of the entire political situation, which is rapidly eliminating all but the Nazi party, which Hitler controls.

of the day's hearing and asked that Mr. Kahn be questioned again.

Beetle-browed Pecora, looking like one of Hannibal's generals, began with Mr. Kahn:

"Do you remember in 1930 establishing a loss of $117,584 by the sale of 1,000 shares of Electric Power & Light, 1,000 shares of International Nickel, 500 shares of Manhattan & Dearborn, 250 shares of Reynolds Metal and 600 shares of Tubize Chatillon Series B?"

Ignorant on Taxes.

Pause. Mr. Kahn reflectively tapped his chin and then:

"I am afraid I can't remember." Then seeing the result of h's statement on the faces of Chairman Fletcher and the witnesses, Mr. Kahn hurriedly added:

"I really don't recall making the sales at all. But, gentlemen," and here Kahn turned ingratiatingly to the committee—"if there is one subject on which my knowledge is less than income tax, I don't know what it is. My ignorance on income tax matters is abysmal; it always has been and I am afraid it always will be."

After Pecora had reread the stocks and identified them again, Kahn said:

"Some of them sound gloomily familiar. They were lemons," but he added hastily—"some of them, not all." The rest of his statement was lost in the general laughter.

Following a whispered consultation between Mr. Kahn and Karl de Gersdorff, his chief cousel, of the firm of Cravath, De Gersdorff, Swayne & Wood, it was learned that there had been some exchange of views between the income tax authorities and Mr. Kahn's office on the matter of this income tax payment. However, when the case was brought before the Board of Tax Appeals here, a decision was returned in Mr. Kahn's favor. At the time, however, Mr. Kahn was in Europe.

Income Tax Decision.

Before Mr. Kahn left for the home of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, where he is staying, it also was brought out that he had made a payment on income tax for 1929 of approximately $400,000. Mr. Pecora himself, after the formal session had adjourned, explained to newspapermen that the revenue agent who examined Mr. Kahn's return held that the stock loss was not deductible and assessed him $16,000. On appeal before the board, however, this decision was reversed and one in Mr. Kahn's favor handed down.

The rest of the day was devoted to acrimonious examination of Mr. Buttenwieser by Mr. Pecora. This is the youthful Kuhn, Loeb member who was associated with the late Mortimer Schiff in the details of these transactions and for that reason has been under Mr. Pecora's relentless inquisition. The examination by the Senate's counsel was focused upon the practice of the banking syndicate in keeping the price of these securities up to a certain level for 60 days after the offering had been made to the public. At the end of that time the bankers let go and the bonds in some instances fell to a lower level.

Market Rigging Denied.

Pecora, after tracing this picture with the reluctant aid of Mr. Buttenwieser, said:

"You wouldn't call that rigging the market?"

"Oh, no, sir."

"Call it what you will, pegging, supporting or anything else," snapped Pecora, "did not the operation result in keeping the price in the market at the offering price of 97¾ or a little above that?"

Stubbornly, Buttenwieser conceded:

"That was the result, but we were not the people who bought at that price."

Mr. Kahn interpolated a bit of explanation of the practise of bankers to permit an excess of bids over the total amount of bonds offered. He said this was done on the principle of the department store. Pecora professed surprise at this analogy and remarked:

"Don't you think that this analogy with the department store is unfortunate in view of the practice of these stores to make refunds?"

Defends Chilean Deal.

"Oh, not at all," said the banker "Mrs. Kahn does not find it so; I am sure."

Pecora interrupted with grim humor:

"I am afraid that Mrs. Kahn does not shop in the same stores as Mrs. Pecora."

The Chilean business was "found" for Kuhn, Loeb & Co. by the Paris banking firm of Louis Dreyfuss et Cie. They received one-half of 1 per cent on the total amount of the loans, or $450,000. Pecora tried to find out from Buttenwieser if the firm of Kuhn, Loeb had undertaken any private investigation of the economic condition of Chile before the loan was made. He queried:

"Did you known that the economic situation in Chile was bad, that the banks were closing and that the government was anticipating its tax revenues?"

Invariably the reply of the youthful banker was the same:

"The trade balance on Chile was always favorable throughout this period and there was no reason to believe that the losns would not be met. Chile had a long history of honorable financial undertakings."

Chilean Bond Profit.

The Pecora questions covered in a very comprehensive way the political and economic history of the Chilean republic in the last ten years. He flung queries about the population of Chile, the forms of government, the tenure of office of various presidents and the forms of governments which they maintained, and Mr. Buttenwieser was often forced to retreat.

Testimony showed that there had been a gross profit for underwriters of $925,000 on the first $20,000,000 bond issue in June, 1925, with the bonds offered to the syndicate at 93 and sold to the public at 97¾. The second issue of the same total amount one year later grossed $824,000. These bonds gave the bankers a spread of 4¾ per cent. The third issue was for $10,000,000. This only made a spread of 1¾ points for the originating group. On the fourth issue there was a new member of the syndicate, the National City Co., whose former chairman, Charles E. Mitchell, was recently acquitted of income tax charges.

Pecora, at hearing of the advent of National City in the consortium, asked:

"Were they chiseling in?"

Kahn replied with a smile:

"May I leave that to your own interpretation?"

The gross profit on all five issues was $2,937,000 to the underwriters and other intermediaries.

WEST VIRGINIA VOTE IS HAILED BY FARLEY

Indicates Trend in Southern States, He Says, Predicting Repeal Before 1934.

Predicting repeal of the eighteenth amendment by the end of this year, Postmaster General James A. Farley yesterday cited the West Virginia wet vote as indicative of the trend in prohibition balloting throughout three other Southern States next month.

In a formal statement Mr. Farley declared:

"The result in West Virginia, generally regarded as a Southern State, is indicative, in my opinion, of a favorable result in Alabama, Tennessee and Arkansas, holding their elections during July. I am confident that before the year is over every State which votes will vote favorably and the amendment will be carried."

Meanwhile, F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League of America, pointed out that the wet majority in West Virginia was much smaller than in previous States which have voted. He declared that final figures will doubtless show that more of the 743,774 persons who voted for President in 1932, failed to vote at all for repeal.

According to Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, "a change has taken place in the attitude of the people of the South and border States."

"Every influence that advocates of the eighteenth amendment could bring to bear," he said, "was exerted in West Virginia. A campaign that continued for months was carried on throughout the State with such leaders as Bishop Cannon speaking on all occasions."

The change in attitude, he asserted, will be borne out by elections to be held next month.

Wheat Deadlock Appears Broken

London, June 28 (U.P.).—A modified agreement on wheat acreage reductions for two years was believed in sight again tonight, following the receipt of new instructions by the Australian delegation to the international wheat conference.

The Australians kept the details of their instructions secret, but it was understood they indicate Australia is now agreeable to acreage restrictions, with a few essential reservations and safeguards, and provided that the European wheat producting countires agree to limit their crops.

This last reservation apparently was aimed at Soviet Russia, the chief European wheat-growing country.

Democratic Debt Decrease Shown

The Democratic national committee owes less money now than it did when the present members took it over after the convention last year, Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the committee, said yesterday.

In addition, the committee is hopeful of being entirely out of debt by fall. States have been apportioned quotas, and if these are all raised the full indebtedness will be paid off.

The committee still owes John J. Raskob $80,000 of a $90,000 loan, but it has paid off a $300,000 loan from a New York bank. More money has been paid off than was spent during the 1932 campaign, but part of it was paid on old bills carried over from 1928. For this reason, there are still some 1932 debts outstanding. These include sums owed for railroad fares, telephones and telegrams, and broadcasting. Loans made by private individuals during the campaign are also unpaid.

Grosner's Victory Feast Will Be Held Tonight

The annual victory dinner, tendered employes of Grosner's men's wear store, 1325 F street northwest, will be held tonight on the Marine Roof of Club Michel.

The dinner is a yearly event given by the store management to employes who have reached certain figures set as a goal. Ben Stein is completing arrangements.

Officers Study Uniform State Auto Title Laws

Chicago, June 28 (A.P.).—Uniform State laws to combat automobile thefts were considered today by the National Association of Secretaries of States in convention here.

Secretary of State Holm of Minnesota, asserting he was informed more automobiles were stolen in Chicago last year than were sold, said he would recommend that all States adopt automobile title registration laws similar to land title legislation.

To the man who is itching to get going again:

You may be one of the thousands of men in this country who retired from active business . . . and whose holdings have now so diminished that they feel the need of getting into harness again. Or it may be simply a desire to get back into the swing of things once more!

If you have earned upwards of $10,000 annually as a sales or financial executive; if you are able to organize and direct a sales force; if you want to be truly the head of your own business . . . we want to talk to you regarding an exclusive sales franchise in this territory. A new and thoroughly tested product is giving opportunities to distributors, comparable to those of ten or fifteen years ago.

The product is manufactured and guaranteed by a national advertiser rated AAA-1. It fills an economic need and all retailers, department and chainstores, banks, theaters, and large companies are logical prospects. No trade-ins no competition, no approach problem.

The man we want as a distributor should be able to organize and direct a sales force in the territory which he will control. To such a man we offer an unusual opportunity to form and operate a permanent business, with above-the-average profits, and guarantee by contract to support him with the necessary advertising.

This is no high-pressure selling job. It is a boni-fide offer and we will go pretty far to investigate the prospect who replies, to see whether or not he measures up to the required standards.

The man must be able to finance his initial inventory, the amount necessary depending on the boundaries of the territory of which he will be the boss.

If you are this man, or if you know such a man, please give full details. Personal history and standing in your community will be interesting . . . complete business record and details of financial position are essential to secure an interview with Division Manager now in this city. BEER TAXES IN MAY EXCEED $12,000,000

Attainment of $150,000,000 Annual Revenue Set Is Now Estimated.

Import duties on foreign beer brought the total beer revenue for May above the $12,000,000 mark, with a promise that annual revenues may reach the estimate of $150,000,000, even without further increases in consumption.

According to a Department of Commerce report, 985,675 gallons of beer was imported during May. The brew was valued at $714,077. Imports for April were 269,948 gallons, worth $230,901.

Two factors are expected to increase the consumption of beer and the consequent revenue returns during the next few months. One is the seasonal increase due to hot weather, which may show a decline in the fall. The other is the production of new breweries, with greater supplies and lower prices, leading to increased consumption. As new breweries come into operation it is expected that this increase will be sufficient to offset the decline expected in the autumn.

With a monthly income of $12,000,000 practically certain, any increase will raise the annual revenues by so much over the estimates. Some authorities, on the basis of the present income, are forecasting a total of $165,000,000 or more.

The May imports were more than six times what they were in May, 1917, showing the terrific demand domestic breweries could not fill. Imports for the 1917 period were 162,459 gallons, valued at $100,902.

Canada supplied more foreign beer than any other country, while Japan was second. The Canadian imports were 275,883 gallons, while Japan's flow was 208,438 gallons. Cuba, Mexico, Germany, Great Britain and Denmark were next in order.

Kenneth Buck Asks New Kidnap Trial

Worcester, Mass., June 28 (A.P.).—Attorney Elias Burwick, counsel for Kenneth Buck, convicted kidnaper of Margaret Peggy McMath, today filed a motion for a new trial at the Barnstable court.

With the motion was also filed a bill of exceptions, outlining objections by defense counsel during the trial, which ended with a verdict of guilty for Kenneth, acquittal for his brother, Cyril, and a sentence of 24 to 25 years for Kenneth.

The petition contends in part that the verdict was against the law as given to the jury by the court; that the jury did not fully understand the instructions of the court when it returned for a further instruction the third time, and that the court admitted in evidence, over the objections and exceptions of the defendant, an alleged confession. Newly discovered evidence also is claimed.

$387,000,000 MORE IS SOUGHT BY ARMY

Public Works Funds Would Be Used on Rivers and Harbors and Floods.

(Associated Press.)

A $387,000,000 flood control and rivers and harbors program was asked from the Public Works Administration yesterday by the Army, while the cabinet board in charge of the $3,300,000,000 public construction fund pondered the possibility of taking half its workers from existing relief rolls.

In sending its program to the public works board, the War Department brought its requested share in the construction fund to $552,000,000, or approximately one-sixth of the total. Previously the War Department had asked $135,000,000 for housing.

Details of the War Department request, now in the hands of Donald H. Sawyer, public works administrator, were withheld. Although both Army and public works officials declined to comment, it was understood $237,000,000 was asked for rivers and harbors and $150,000,000 for flood control.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal administrator, brought the question of hiring men from relief rolls before the public works board with a suggestion that in employing workers on the building projects, 50 per cent should come from relief rolls and then the others from among unemployed persons still able to sustain themselves.

The board will meet again today before reaching a decision. Secretary Ickes, chairman, announced the board had decided to take no action relative to prohibiting employment of men from the reforestration camps, while on the question of stipulating half the workers should come from charity lists, he said:

"The board wants to relieve the relief rolls so far as is consistent with the rights of those not on relief rolls."

Cannon Gets Writ Against Wet Vote

Los Angeles, June 28 (A.P.).—On petition of Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Frank G. H. Stevens, Superior Judge Hartley Shaw late today issued a temporary order restraining the county board of supervisors from canvassing the votes or certifying the result in the State election on the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment.

Judge Shaw ordered the supervisors to show cause next Wednesday why the injunction should not be made permanent.

In their petition, Cannon and Stevens renewed the attack on the validity of the State legislative act providing for yesterday's election which they started a few weeks ago before the State supreme court.

Hopkins Tells Plan To Force Local Aid

The amount to be paid for unemployment relief by local agencies must be fixed by State officials, but the Federal administrator reserves the power to reduce the Federal contribution if the local powers are not doing enough, Harry L. Hopkins, Federal administrator, said yesterday.

In a letter to one State official, Mr. Hopkins set out the administration's policy in regard to relief work.

"Surely the whole intent of the President's statement," Mr. Hopkins said, "was to insist upon reasonable local appropriations for unemployment relief. If, in the judgment of your unemployment commission, cities and counties are not doing their fair share, it is quite proper for you to hold up part or all of the funds which otherwise would be allotted them. If we feel that you are giving funds in excessive amounts to local communities we shall have no hesitancy whatever in taking this matter up with you."

Income Tax Evader Sends Sum to Government's Conscience Fund.

The United States is $906 richer today because of one citizen who scrimped on his income tax payment and then made it up to the conscience fund.

The payment was explained in an anonymous letter which accompanied a cashier's check for the amount. It is one of many which have been made by persons who took deductions for fictitious stock sales and are now paying the full tax due, the Bureau of Internal Revenue reported.

D. A. V. HEARS HINES AFTER FLOOR FIGHT

Vain Attempt Made to Keep Federal Director From Talking to Convention.

Cincinnati, June 28 (A.P.).—Speaking after efforts had been made to deny him permission to speak, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs in the Federal Government, told the disabled American Veterans Convention today that "our country, our President and our people will always deal fairly with your organization."

Opposition to his appearance was expressed before he reached the convention hall. When he arrived, however, the assembled veterans arose with applause.

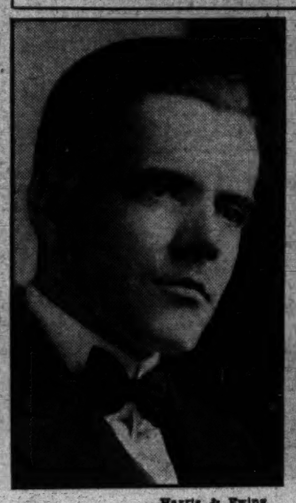
Bitterness of some veterans against governmental action in reducing their disability allowances was ascribed by William Conley, national commander, as the cause of the earlier feeling.

Mentioning it, he warned the assembled veterans that Hines "is coming as my guest, and as your guest, and we must treat him as a guest in our own home."

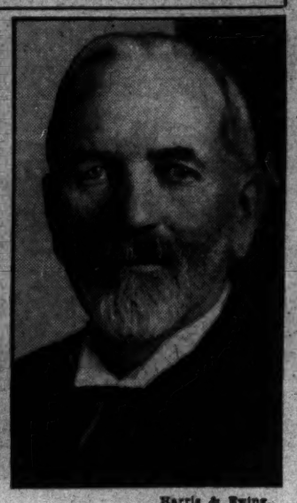
But one man, who was not identified, said he wanted to move that "Gen. Hines should be kept off the floor of the convention for his own protection."

Conley promptly ruled him out of order.

ACCUSED IN PARK SAVINGS SMASH



Harris & Ewing.



Harris & Ewing.

Benedict M. McNeil (left) and his father, Alexander M. McNeil, who were indicted with two others on charges of conspiracy in the Park Savings Bank case.

8 INDICTED IN BANK CASES; GRAYSON'S BROTHER IS ONE

nephew of Stunz, of 4000 Cathedral avenue; Alexander M. McNeil, a depositor, and his son, Benedict M. McNeil, both of 1355 Monroe street northeast.

Charles A. Monroe, of 336 Eighth street northeast, a teller in the Mount Vernon Savings Bank, and Samuel Borden, of 429 Kenyon street northwest, a customer in the bank, who were indicted with two others in connection with an alleged shortage in that bank, surrendered yesterday and were freed under bond.

In return for the information allegedly given by Grayson to Stunz, the brother of the former White House physician is alleged to have received credits on his accounts in the amount of $4,000 to cover alleged overdrafts.

In the case of Smith, he allegedly was given fictitious credits at the bank by Stunz to cover overdrafts amounting to $2,500. McNeil and his son are alleged to have received illegally from the bank the sum of $50,000 by the use of overdrafts and fictitious credits.

The son was formerly an assistant cashier at the bank. He resigned in August, 1929. Grayson and the two McNeils are charged with conspiring with Stunz to commit embezzlement and larceny. Grayson is also charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States by informing Stunz when the bank examiners were going to the Park Savings.

The indictment charges that on seven occasions between January 1, 1929, and January 30, 1933, Stunz was given a "tip-off" on the expected arrival of the bank examiners at the Columbia Heights bank.

It also charges that overdrafts were made by Grayson in the following amounts: August 6, 1927, $29; December 16, 1927, $686.82; August 15, 1929, $57.63; September 19, 1930, $71; March 16, 1931, $689.32; September 19, 1932, $43.70, and January 10, 1933, $672.05.

The following fictitious credits were allegedly given to Grayson by Stunz: March 17, 1931, $611.32; July 25, 1931, $575; March 7, 1932, $6,251, and January 11, 1933, $650.

None of those indicted in the Park Savings shortage has appeared before the clerk of the Criminal Court. The younger McNeil, who is represented by James J. Slattery, is expected to appear today to post bond. His father is absent from the city.

The usual procedure of the authorities, after a person has been indicted under these circumstances, is to wait until the day for arraignment, and if the accused does not appear a bench warrant is issued for his arrest. The accused person generally appears before arraignment day to post bond.

In the Mount Vernon Savings Bank case, alleging a shortage of about $5,600, the other men indicted are Robert B. Speich and Frank R. Clayton, both employes of the bank.

Monroe is charged in two indictments, the first charging him with embezzlement and grand larceny of $1,100; the second indictment links him with Borden in check kiting charge involving $2,345. Speich and Clayton are charged in one indictment with larceny and embezzlement of $2,181.

Stunz, who committed suicide soon after the Park Savings Bank was closed by the bank holiday, left a note saying he alone was responsible for the $1,700,000 discrepancy in the bank's accounts.

The movement to ask the Comptroller of the Currency to appoint a receiver for the Park Savings Bank received further impetus last night when it received the indorsement of the stockholders committee, headed by Eugene Casey, the directors committee headed by Dr. Wade H. Atkinson, and a depositors committee headed by F. Sobotka. A meeting of depositors is being planned by a committee headed by Mr. Sobotka.

"The meeting tonight," Dr. Atkinson said, "was most harmonious and enthusiastic. The men who are working for the appointment of a receiver are looking toward the welfare of all depositors and not for any selfish purpose."

DR. J. J. RICHARDSON DIES IN NEW JERSEY

Guardian of Voices of Noted Men, Including Presidents, Heart Victim.

Dr. James Julius Richardson, guardian of the speaking voices of Presidents, Presidential candidates and many of the Nation's leading statesmen, died yesterday of heart disease at Atlantic City, N. J., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Recognized as one of the leading nose and throat specialists in this country, Dr. Richardson served as physician to President Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and Harding.

On their great stumping tours during their Presidential campaigns, Taft and John W. Davis had him with them to care for their throats.

Others numbered among the clientele of Dr. Richardson were Lord Balfour, Senator Albert J. Beveridge and Senator Boies Penrose.

Dr. Richardson left Washington about two years ago. During his long practice here he lived at 1509 Sixteenth street northwest and at the Wardman Park Hotel.

He was a member of the American Medical Association, the District Medical Society and a fellow of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otology. He also was a president of the Clinical Society of Washington.

Hospital Work Here.

He was born in Sardis, Ohio, on January 18, 1873. He took his medical degree from the University of Maryland and later took special work at the Universities of Edinburgh, Vienna and Heidelberg, and also at London hospitals.

He was officially connected with Washington hospitals. During the World War he served as consultant on several special medical examining boards handling ear, nose and throat cases.

His brother, H. C. Richardson, of New Martinsville, took the body to New Martinsville, W. Va., his boyhood home.

Balbo's Route Seen As Peril to U. S.

"The proposed flight of Gen. Italio Balbo from Italy to this country is the most ambitious aviation enterprise since the United States Army Air Corps' flight around the world," Gen. William L. Mitchell said yesterday afternoon at the Washington Airport.

"Balbo will follow exactly the route to be flown in the event of any war between Europe and America," he said. "It is also the logical route for commercial airlines across the Atlantic. It's going to be a great show."

The former air corps head, vigorous critic of the country's air policy, was at the airport witnessing demonstrations connected with commercial aviation.

MRS. WORTHINGTON DIES.

Wife of Rear Admiral Expires in Pasadena After Short Illness.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her daughter, Mrs. O. F. Lange; four grandchildren, three sisters, Mrs. W. J. Baxter, of this city, and Mrs. William J. Macdonald and Miss Ethel Belle Macmillan, of Edinburgh, Scotland, and one brother, Lord Macmillan, Baron of Aberfeldy, judge in the House of Lords and privy councilor.

MRS. MARY PADDOCK DIES.

Wife of Patent Attorney Expires at Park Road Residence.

Mrs. Mary Yost Paddock, 60, wife of Lawrence S. Paddock, patent lawyer, died yesterday at her residence, 1318 Park road northwest.

Bradley, of Clarendon, Va., and by an aunt, Mrs. Mary Wood, and an uncle, Gen. R. H. Gillette, of the New York militia.

Cooper Lauds Bill In Rotary Speech

The Federal Government's receivership of business under the new industrial recovery legislation will eliminate many undermining practices, declared Robert A. Cooper, former Governor of South Carolina and once chairman of the Farm Loan Board, in an address yesterday before the Washington Rotary Club.

The primary aim of the legislation, the speaker declared, is to put people back to work, increasing production and purchasing power at the same time. Already, Mr. Cooper continued, commodity prices have begun to respond with an upward movement.

The meeting was held at the Willard Hotel and the speaker was introduced by Col. Wrisley Brown. Winners in the Rotary golf tournament last Thursday were announced as Clyde B. Asher, Frederic W. Seibold, John Brewer and William R. Winslow.

Man Burns Farm, Kills Stock to Spite His Wife

Greenville, Ill., June 28 (A.P.).—William Bilyeu, 45, was arrested today on his farm near Sorrento after he shot or poisoned 34 head of live stock, destroyed about 400 chickens and set fire to his household furniture, wagons and farm implements.

Bilyeu explained to officers that he had created the havoc because he did not want his wife, who left him two weeks ago, to get a share of his property. Authorities are undecided as to Bilyeu's status as a prisoner, but are holding him "for investigation."

RABBI URGES JEWS TO INCREASE FAITH

Speaker Deplores Persecutions in Germany; See Exodus to Palestine.

The spiritual illness of Germany as evidenced by the persecution of Jews is more malignant than a physical illness, Rabbi Meyer Berlin, president of the World Mizrachi Organization, stated at a Zionist mass meeting last night.

Speaking at the Jewish Community Center, Rabbi Berlin stated that the spiritual decadence of Germany may spread to other lands. "We can not deny the culture and civilization of Germany," he asserted, "but these achievements make more serious the indictments against that country."

Rabbi Berlin spoke on "Jewish Life in Palestine and Other Lands." The immigration of Jews to Palestine is steadily increasing, he said. He appealed to American Jews to strengthen their religious affiliations so that immigrants to Palestine from America would carry with them a strong religious faith.

The meeting was held under the auspices of Washington Mizrachi Organization. A chec covering the portion of funds collected during the recent United Jewish appeal, which will be used in Mizrachi work, was presented to Rabbi Berlin.

PERSONNEL SLASHES AT ANNAPOLIS BEGIN

24 Civilian Instructors at Naval Academy Among Those Dismissed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 28.—With the proposed five-day work week, which it was hoped would satisfy requirements, held in abeyance, the Government's general economy program made its first big raid upon the personnel of civilian employes of the Naval Academy today.

The net result of today's blow was that 24 civilian professors and instructors, and a dozen other civilian employes, such as clerks and watchmen, or members of the academy's police patrol, were formally dropped from the rolls, and by the end of the week 114 other civilians will share a like fate, according to a statement by officials of the institution.

In several cases of older employes who have seen 30 years or more of service, plans are being made to transfer them to the retired list, with part pay, it was stated.

The majority of the teachers affected by the economy are in the departments of mathematics, English and modern languages and their periods of service range from five to more than a score of years. This group made a prolonged and determined fight to be continued in their jobs, calling on all political and other influence. Frequent conferences were held with Maryland's representatives in Congress and others, and also with Secretary of the Navy Swanson and other departmental officials. And they held out hope of being retained until the very end.

Reducing the number of instructors has been an issue for several years. It first came about through the steady decrease in the number of midshipmen at the academy following the war, and became more pronounced since Congress passed an act reducing the number of appointments allowed senators and representatives from five to three. Naval officials, it is understood here, are endeavoring to place most of the instructors in some other field of Government work.

Philippine Justice Offers Resignation

Manila, June 28 (A.P.).—James A. Ostrand, associate justice of the Philippines Superior Court for the last twelve years, tendered his resignation to President Roosevelt today through Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy. He gave ill health as his reason for retiring.

Ostrand, a native of Norway and a graduate of the University of Minnesota, came to the islands in 1900. He was chief justice of the Appellate Court of Santo Domingo in 1921.

Justice Ignacio Villamore died May 24, so the court now comprises only nine jurists, which is the minimum for a quorum.

Insular attorneys are expected to ask Roosevelt to make more appointments, possibly bringing the superior bench to its maximum of fifteen.

FEDERAL DISMISSAL DRIVES SLACKENING

field force would be cut from 228 to 90 to save $325,000. Although district offices were closed in 10 cities, Washington was not hit by the personnel reduction. Secretary Roper said he was unprepared to say how many dismissals will be ordered here.

As about 70 of the 100 Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce attaches released early this month neared New York Harbor, the department formally denied reports that these workers "were not given ample notice" and that their names were summarily removed from the pay roll.

"It is not a pleasant duty to separate employes from any pay roll, but no other step was possible to keep within the department's deeply cut budget," the statement read, after making clear that salaries will be paid through July 31, and that all expenses en route home are being borne by the department.

Spread Work Idea Gains.

As the spread work principle gained ground in Washington yesterday, the Civil Service Commission called on all Federal workers with classified status to relinquish extra private jobs they now hold to "give the other fellows a chance."

The request was almost coincident with a drive by a special congressional Democratic subcommittee, headed by Representative McClintic (Democrat), Oklahoma, to discourage outside work on the part of Government workers.

Earlier, statistics released by the commission disclosed that while the Federal Government had a net gain of 5,000 employes during March and April, most offices in the District lost during both months. In the District a net gain of 755 for March was partially offset by a net loss of 494 in April.

Dern Reassures Employes.

Further reassurance to Federal workers was forthcoming yesterday from the War Department, where Secretary of War Dern was represented as definitely committed to a program of no dismissals in the Washington departmental service except for cause. Budget curtailments will be accomplished by rotative furloughs, a nonfilling of vacancies policy, and some 30-year retirements, it was said.

At the same time it was announced that District Commissioners will avoid all but a comparatively few dismissals in the District government through recourse to furloughs and other methods provided by Congress. Final action on the District Personnel Board's report is expected today.

Navy Yard Hard Hit.

Not so optimistic were reports from the Washington Navy Yard, where it was said approximately 80 persons will be laid off indefinitely until work picks up. About 800 throughout the country will be given 90-day furloughs.

Explaining dismissal of 33 persons with Civil Service status from the Public Works Administration, Secretary of Interior Ickes declared yesterday this group was given "temporary appointments without authority of law.

"Notice of separation had to go to everyone involved for purely technical reasons," he said. "Some have already been reappointed, and others whose services are required will be reemployed."

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY.

MAJ. GEN. AMOS FRIES, retired, and president, District of Columbia Society, Sons of the American Revolution, has enlisted in the crusade to obtain justice for Capt. Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, recent Navy Department employe and famous inventor, scientist and explorer, who was made to shift for himself with no assurance that his service to the country will be given the slightest recognition.

Gen. Amos Fries.

The case is supposed to be before the White House for consideration. Messrs. Howe and MacIntyre both are reported having said they are pushing the case, but The Federal Diary seeks to learn where the case has been pushed.

Gen. Fries asks the membership to join the campaign in behalf of Capt. Baldwin. The general is the latest to join the fast-growing line of world-famous men and women who are of the belief that Capt. Baldwin deserves a better fate than to be dumped into the street at the age of 71 with a pittance between him and a heartless fate.

The question resolves itself into this: Will Capt. Baldwin be the White House's Forgotten Man" of precampaign conception?

Capt. Baldwin is historic for all time. He does not belong to yesterday or today or tomorrow. History reference books tell of his exploits. And Washington's monument to "America's Forgotten Man," the Archives Building, which Capt. Baldwin first suggested and worked so hard to have constructed, does not even bear the name of the father of the idea. At the same time the Nation does Capt. Baldwin an act of justice it should also rename this structure the Baldwin Archives Building.

To Messrs. Howe and MacIntyre, the roles of Alphonse and Gaston belong, but to the comic strips, not in real life, where human weal is the stake. Capt. Baldwin has but enough money for a short time yet. Who will carry him then, a man still filled with fire and vigor?

The war got the blame for a lot of things. Grocers, some, explained butter had gone up "because of the war." But if the boys on the western front got it, it can't be proved on them.

Maybe it's the war—the war on men's and women's jobs and fair degree of safety—that causes a six-shrimp salad in Commerce cafeteria to continue to bring 20 cents on the open market. And 'tis said they have a counting machine, six shrimps, no more, no less. But then eating too much is not good for one.

FUNDS FOR FORESTS STILL UNAVAILABLE

Appropriation to Buy Timber Lands for Conservation Awaits Action.

The $20,000,000 allotted by executive order to the forest service for the purchase of park lands is not yet available, but failure to buy the lands at once will not hamper the work of the civilian conservation corps, it was learned yesterday.

The exact appropriation from which the funds will be taken has not been designated. This is thought to be the reason that no money has yet been placed to the account of the forest service. The Budget Bureau reported that it has not been asked to designate an appropriation to furnish the funds.

The Executive order, which also dealt with other phases of the Conservation Corps work, instructed that the money was to be paid out of public works funds. The exact source of the funds was not given.

The Forest Service is ready to go ahead with several purchases which have been approved by the surveying commission. All of them are located in national forest purchase areas in the Eastern States. The reason for buying the lands was to furnish work areas for members of the reforestation army. There is enough work on present lands to keep these men at work until the additional funds are available and the new land is bought, it was said.

Borah, Better, Allows Friends to Pay Visits

Baltimore, Md., June 28 (U.P.).—Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, is recuperating so rapidly from his major operaton that friends were allowed to visit him today.

The veteran leader of the Progressive Republicans underwent an operation in Johns Hopkins Hospital Monday for removal of a prostate gland.

'Buy 'Em Food,' Burke's Panhandling Remedy

"Take him into a restaurant and buy him a meal."

Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, thus advised his audience to treat the hungry man who asks for money on the street. The police official talked last night over radio station WMAL.

Burke said that the hungry man should not be refused food, despite the fact that many of the men arrested here for panhandling were found to have sizable "rolls."

When approached on the street, he advised, question the man. If he seems deserving and really in need, take him to a restaurant and pay for his food, thus aiding a hungry man and at the same time striking a blow at the professional panhandler.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO PLAY LIKE TILDEN!

● "BIG BILL" TILDEN in a characteristic pose as he makes one of those thrilling returns which have so often spelled "point . . . game . . . set . . . MATCH!"

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS
BILL TILDEN says: "Tournament play in tennis imposes a terrific strain upon the nervous system. Healthy nerves are essential if a player is going to be successful in maintaining his speed, endurance, and the psychology of victory. As a steady smoker, I find that cigarettes vary a lot in their effect upon the nerves. I have tried all the other popular brands, but for years I have smoked Camels. Because of their extraordinary mildness I know that I can smoke Camels as freely as I wish and still have healthy nerves."

Steady smokers turn to Camels because the costlier tobaccos in Camels never tire the taste—never get on the nerves.
Your taste and your nerves will confirm this. Start smoking Camels today and prove it for yourself. It is more fun to know.
IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. You will find Camels rich in flavor and delightfully mild.

BITUMINOUS CODE LIKELY NEXT WEEK

Soft Coal Operators in Line, Says Director of New Central Associates.

Prediction that Central Coal Associates, representing nearly all the bituminous coal operators in the country, would present a unified code to the Industrial Control Board under provisions of the industrial control act, irrespective of any action on the part of the anthracite operators, was made last night by Ben. J. Gray, executive director of the association.

Gray said that his organization, which recently broke away from the National Coal Association, had been rapidly bringing the important bituminous operators in the Northern coal areas into line during the past two days.

He predicted that their code would be laid before Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, chairman of the Industrial Board, immediately following July 4.

Half of Owners Represented.

The associates, when they present their code, will represent operators, producing more than 150,000,000 tons of coal or approximately 50 per cent of the country's entire bituminous output, Gray said.

Two representatives from each separate organizaton in the Northern group met for the first time yesterday at Hotel Willard and apparently were on their way to agreeing today to join with the associates in presenting the proposed code, according to Gray.

"The code, as drawn up at present, specifies weekly hours of labor and minimum wages consistent with Gen. Johnson's Sunday night radio speech," Gray said.

It calls for a week of between 32 and 36 hours of work and a minimum wage of between 40 and 45 cents per hour. This wage varies but little from the present average wage in the Northern area, but Gray pointed out that wages in the Southern anthracite area are as low as 17 to 19 cents.

Mellons May Join.

The Pittsburgh Coal Co., which is controlled by the Mellon family, is one of the largest operators Gray expects to join with the associates. This company's representatives joined in a meeting with other operators in the Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland and northern West Virginia group yesterday and agreed that they all definitely belonged in the Northern group.

Representatives of the Appalachian and Smokeless groups met Tuesday, Gray said, and expressed approval of the associates' plans. Operators in the last two groups produce about 100,000,000 gross tons.

FIREMAN'S PARADE IS SAVED TO CITY

now there is joy along the firefighting line.

When the sergeant learned of this support yesterday afternoon, he went directly to Blue Plains Farm, where they keep old "Tom." And there the veteran was, grazing in cool, green fields. It was the meeting of old friends. For the last 32 years Bargagni has given his days and nights to the Fire Department of the District. And for almost nineteen the old horse did the same. But the firemen's parade on Labor Day was the great day for them. That's when they got together.

For ten years the parade has grown. Now it is regarded by firemen and others as a national event. Last week, however, it appeared as though the event was lost for 1933 when the Board of Trade announced it was unable to lend financial aid.

Success of this year's parade will mean the cooperation of every man in the fire department, as well as the 10,000 more volunteer firemen in nearby Virginia and Maryland who are so vitally interested in it. It will mean long hours of work for committees, and the sincere cooperation of Washington merchants to whose doors the event draws annually thousands of visitors, as well as keeping many local residents from leaving home over Labor Day.

Coincident with the announcement of The Post to the firemen of its support, Noble F. Rushe, of Hyattsville, vice president of the National Firemen's Association, and George F. Finger, of Capitol Heights, organizer of the association, obtained a permit for the parade from the District Commissioners. Last night they met with Sergt. Bargagni and Alfred L. Geiger, treasurer of the organization. Together they laid preliminary plans for the parade, details of which will be announced daily in The Post.

William Shakespeare Lives, Temporarily, at Mayflower

William Shakespeare, jr., sat in his room in the Mayflower Hotel last night and discussed the depression.

Unlike the immortal Bard of Avon, William Shakespeare's chief concern in life is the depression and how it has affected his fishing tackle factory in Kalamazoo, Mich. He has come to Washington with a score of other representatives of the tackle-making industry to help them formulate a code for presentation before the President's national recovery administration.

There was a time when William Shakespeare became annoyed with people who made funny remarks about his name, but he has grown used to it. As he says, "people seem to enjoy it." He sees nothing unusual in the fact that his name and the poet's are identical. As did the poet, he sometimes spells his name with the final "e," sometimes without it, careless like. Once in New England he ran across a watch manufacturer with the same name. They became fast friends. He understands that a one-time Mayor of New Orleans also bore the name of Shakespeare.

Early in life Mr. Shakespeare was given to understand that the poet left no heirs, and that he could not, therefore, claim direct descendancy. He believes it altogether likely that he has descended from one of his namesake's brothers. His forefathers came to this country from England, he has heard.

Thirty-five years ago, William Shakespeare invented what proved to be the first successful automatic, level-winding fishing reel. Since then his business has grown and prospered. William Shakespeare has grown and prospered, too. He joined the Kalamazoo Chamber of Commerce. Regularly he attends the weekly luncheons of the Rotary Club. He golfs, occasionally, at two of Kalamazoo's country clubs.

William Shakespeare does not write, even poetry, although he has a plan for curing the depression all worked out.

GREEN ASSAILS TEXTILE CODE AS WORKERS GAIN VICTORY

eliminated from his speech several harsh sentences he was prepared to hurl into the record against the textile manufacturers.

He carried forward the assault on the proposed 40-hour work week and the so-called minimum wage proposed by the manufacturers. Other workers joined in the assault.

Green demanded a six-hour day and a five-day work week. He brushed aside, with a sort of a "tish, tosh" attitude the solicitude of the manufacturers about the limitation on the maximum use of machinery. Let whatever manufacturer who wished use whatever machine he wished as long as he wished, Mr. Green said. Gen. Johnson tried to pour cooperative oil on Mr. Green's tempestuous sea, but the labor leader would have none of it. Let the manufacturers run 24 hours a day if they wished, so long as they operated on the six-hour day, five-day week employment plan, he cried.

Strikes at Fundamentals.

Mr. Green said the proposed textile code wouldn't do much about extending employment and the recovery administration should strike at fundamentals and reduce the maximum work week and increase the minimum wage.

"The minimum wage should be between $14 and $16 a week," Mr. Green said.

"The minimum rates of pay proposed in this textile code are altogether too low. There will, I believe, be no increase in the pay of workers in New England and the change as a whole will be of very little benefit. I propose that the minimum pay be increased and that the industry accept it and that we come back to you later."

It remained for Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, to throw the word into the argument.

"Unless," Mr. Hillman warned, "the industrial recovery act results in putting millions back to work at living wages then we may all have to go back to something else—something none of us want."

Hall Is Suddenly Quiet.

Mr. Hillman's words rang through a hall suddenly quiet. They were so ominous, apparently, that they were slurred over and obliterated from the official report of the supposed stenographic report of the hearing. Mr. Hillman spoke with a thick dialect, incident to the Russian Jews. He was listened to carefully, however, because he has made himself a power in the needle trades labor field. "The absolute minimum wage should be 50 cents an hour for men and women," Mr. Hillman said.

Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), of Alabama, joined the ranks of labor fighting against the code.

Long inquires by Senate committees, Senator Black said, had convinced him of the mistake of setting a weekly without a daily maximum of work hours. The senator attacked the 40-hour work week. It would not result in employment of more than 1,000,000 extra persons. The senator emphasized that a short hour day and short hour work week would mean jumps in employment which might, at first glance, seeem out of proportion to the decreased working hours.

Black Assails $10 Scale.

"There should be in this textile and alll other codes," Senator Black said, "an absolute limitation on the per week and the per day hours of labor of the individual. The difference between such a limitation and a loose, doubtful declaration means the difference of millions of persons getting jobs.

"I wish to call to the attention of the Recovery Administration the fact that prices of various commodities are rising daily and this increase in prices of living necessities must be taken into consideration.

"I certainly hope that this administration never adopts nor approves any code which provides a $10 a week wage."

The agreement of the manufacturers to eliminate child labor, the assault on the working hour and minimum wage was only equalled, in the course of the hearing, by a somewhat circuitous declaration by Gen. Johnson that whatever hours of labor and whatever minimum wages are set for the cotton textile industry they shall not be considered as a precedent for future codes.

The hearings are to be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock in the auditorium of the Commerce Department Building, with representatives of the consumers scheduled to have the floor.

After the hearing, Johnson announced the appointment of Walter C. Teagle, of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, as chairman of his industrial advisory board. He chose also three new members to this board:

John B. Elliott, Jameson Petroleum Co., of Los Angeles, Calif; Henry H. Heimann, of the National Association of Credit Men, New York City, and David C. Coker, president of the Cokers Pedigreed Seed Co., of Hartsville, S. C.

NEW PLANE DEVICES TESTED AT AIRPORT

Officials See Mail Pick-up and Passenger Landing Parachute in Action.

Washington aviation fans and officials saw demonstrations of two new devices at Washington Airport yesterday afternoon, one designed to pick up mail "on the fly" and another to drop passengers in seat parachutes from transport planes.

A. G. Card, builder of the Cabot aerial pickup, demonstrated the manner in which 40 pounds of mail can be lifted from the ground by an airplane in flight. The catapult principal is used, and the mail load is given an initial impetus equal to the speed of the plane, so that no perceptible effect is felt in the plane.

The device, invented by Godfrey L. Cabot, pioneer flier, is designed for use on fields between major air mail stops. Card mentioned that Bridgeport, New Haven, Springfield and Worcester are between the mail stops of New York and Boston. Each of the four have postal receipts of $1,000,000 a year, entitling them to air mail, but to stop at each one would take an hour and bring the flying time up to railroad time. Use of a pickup would add only eight minutes to the present mail schedule.

W. R. and Harry P. Trusty, of Los Angeles, inventors of the Trusty Life-Saving Device, dropped two seats from their plane, carrying sandbags, and then two persons descended comfortably sitting in the seats they occupied while in the plane. At the will of the pilot, the seats are swung out through a door and dropped. The parachutes are packed into the bottom of the plane out of sight of the passenger.

The apparatus is a development of five years, and is proposed for use on airline passenger planes. It had its first showing in the East yesterday.

Officials of the Department of Commerce, Aeronautics Branch, and the air mail division of the Postoffice Department witnessed the exhibitions.

henceforth was not explained, he said.

Volstead, a Republican representative when the Volstead law was framed, said he was not surprised, and would go back to Granite Falls, Minn., the community from which he went to Congress.

"Yes, I expected when the appropriation was cut in half that I would be asked to quit about July 1," said Volstead, now 73 years old. "It was no surprise."

Asked whether he would take part in the campaign against repeal ratification in Minnesota prior to the State election September 12, Volstead replied: "My health won't permit. You know I have heart trouble."

In response to a question about whether he would seek any public office, he said, "I don't expect to."

High Notes

One-Time Minstrel Man Robbed of Music He Values at $10,000.

The police have turned musical and are searching for high notes.

In fact, the notes are so high that Oscar Mann, of 109 Varnum street northwest, has valued them at $10,000. Some time yesterday, he said, a brief case (estimated value, $10), was stolen from his automobile parked downtown. The music, he asserted, is inside the brief case.

Mann, it was learned, was once a one-man minstrel show. His lifetime musical creations are represented in the loss. Now a retired real estate operator, the music is worth $10,000 to him, he declares.

HEAT IN MIDWEST BROKEN UP BY RAIN

However, 7 Die in Chicago, 6 in Milwaukee; Detroit Records 99 Degrees.

(Associated Press.)

Heat that brought deaths and caused heavy crop damage continued over vast reaches of the Nation yesterday, but intermittent rain storms brought cheer to thousands of farmers in the Midwestern "breadbasket."

The regions soaked by rain included parts of Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, and Illinois. There were forecasts calling for much-needed moisture in States as widely separated as Michigan and Colorado.

In many sections, however, a scorching sun popped out from behind the clouds as soon as showers ended. The temperatures remained high and crop experts said the benefit of the moisture was thus lessened.

Chicago had seven deaths from the intense heat, Milwaukee reported six, and Ohio three. Drownings and automobile accidents claimed many lives.

Among the day's high temperatures was a recording of 99 at Detroit yesterday, which dropped to 89 in 40 minutes as a storm threatened. Indianapolis had 95 degrees, a new record being established for 15 days of June with 90 degrees or higher. In other sections of Indiana the mercury climbed to near 100.

Colorado cities had 90 for the fourth consecutive day, but a thundershower was forecast. It rained in Montana after a three-week's drought, but the weather man for Texas said no moisture could be expected for 24 hours. Oklahoma City reported 95 degrees and cloudy, and extreme heat continued through Kansas.

With high humidity, the mercury expanded into the 90's at Pittsburgh, breaking all records for the date. Youngstown, Ohio, recorded 97, St. Paul, Minn., 93 with most of the State above 88, and Lincoln, Nebr., 91.

Comfortable temperatures were reported at Des Moines, Iowa, 84 degrees with rain over the State; at Milwaukee, Wis., where easterly winds sent the mercury down from a high of 85; at Philadelphia, where the maximum was 81, and at Baltimore with 80.

LOCKING THE STABLE.

Otherwise dull summer days in Washington are enlivened a little by the continuation of the banking investigation. Reports indicate fewer spectators and smaller newspaper representation at the hearings. This may be due to the weather or to the waning of public interest, or both. Outside of income tax matters, which are of current interest to the Internal Revenue Bureau, the facts thus far developed concern transactions in years gone by and conditions that no longer exist. The mad rush of bankers in this country to throw good American money into bad foreign investments ended a full five years ago.

From the historical and philosophical viewpoint it is of interest to develop the facts surrounding the enormous flotations of foreign loans in this country, but changed conditions make impossible a recurrence of that feature of frenzied finance. The bankers who encouraged questionable foreign loans have been punished to some extent for their mistakes, and investors have been punished so severely that they will not soon be deceived again. If the securities act works well in protecting American investors against irresponsible bankers and doubtful investments, domestic as well as foreign, the public will be saved from the bitter experiences through which it has passed.

What would be interesting to know is, when will government catch up with events a little quicker than five years after they have occurred? There were voices of warning at the time when these reckless flotations were made. The inevitable losses and disappointments were foreseen, and the Government was urged to take action to protect the public. But when all seems to be going well the voices of warning are not heard, or, if heard, they are silenced by the general clamor against any action that might "disturb business."

The time to apply safeguards is when bad conditions or practices are going on, and these evils flourish when business is booming. Sound business can always withstand "disturbances" which serve to check wrong tendencies and help to keep business sound and prosperous. It is the duty of government to apply safeguards and issue warnings against dangerous or evil practices before they have wrought injury to the public. Locking the stable door after the horse is stolen is merely reminding the people of how long it takes government to act.

WOMEN JOBHOLDERS.

An interesting survey of the status of women in industry throughout the world has been made by Dr. Marguerite Thibert on the basis of findings by the International Labor Office. In some countries the percentage of women engaged in gainful occupations has increased in recent years, but in other countries women appear to be gradually withdrawing from the bread-winning groups. France, Italy, Austria, Belgium and Denmark have a smaller portion of their women engaged in industry than they had 30 years ago. In Great Britain there has been little change in the percentage of women at work outside of their homes. Germany has had a phenomenal increase of women workers, and the United States records a slight increase.

It is interesting to note that unemployment seems to have been most acute where there has been an increase of women workers. In Germany, for example, the percentage of women holding jobs increased from 30.5 in 1907 to 35.6 in 1925. Unemployment has also been severe in Great Britain, where more than 25 per cent of the women hold jobs. Likewise the United States, with its 11,000,000 female workers, still has about 12,000,000 individuals without jobs.

The employment of women in America, however, has not been carried to such extremes as in Europe. The latest figures available show that 36.6 per cent of the women in France are employed; 35.6 per cent in Germany; 25.5 per cent in England and Wales; 26 per cent in Scotland, and only 17.7 per cent in the United States. In some cases the disparity may be wider than it appears in this comparison, because the figure quoted for the United States represents conditions in 1930, while most of the European statistics are for previous years.

The delegation which is coming to Washington to demand "economic equality" for women might take a cue from the plight of women in Europe. American women are envied the world over because of their relative freedom from the economic drudgery that puts so large a proportion of European women into the peasant class.

While the increase in the number of American women holding jobs outside of their homes is considerable, the percentage gain is not large. In 1920 8,549,500 women held jobs, compared with 10,778,800 in 1930. The percentage of women employed in 1920 was 16.5 as compared with 17.7 ten years later. Other factors must be considered, however, before conclusions are drawn. During this decade the United States made astonishing gains in the productivity of labor. It was a period of mechanization in which electricity and steam were substituted for human energy on a grand scale. One workman can produce far more today, with the aid of modern machinery, than he could in 1920. The relative demand for labor is much less. Yet a larger number of women have forced their way into the labor market.

DISTRICT PUBLIC WORKS.

Allowances amounting to $22,716,500 are asked of the Public Works Administration by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, to provide for necessary construction and reclamation. Much of the cost of these projects would be borne by the taxpayers of the District.

The list of more than 30 proposals is divided into three classes: First, those in which the Federal Government advances 30 per cent of the cost, the remainder to be financed by the local authority; second, projects to be financed entirely from Federal public works funds; third, projects for which the District lacks funds, but which are necessary and could be started immediately to provide employment.

The list of projects which would be financed chiefly by the District itself includes the Calvert street bridge, for which $360,000 is asked, with $575,000 already available in District funds; a contagious disease ward in Gallinger Hospital, for which $150,000 is asked, to augment $250,000 already available; Anacostia junior high school, for which $120,000 is sought, to be added to the $225,000 already available; addition to Woodrow Wilson High School, for which $330,000 is asked, in addition to $475,000 already authorized. These are all urgently needed improvements, and a small contribution from the public works fund would enable the District to begin work immediately, to the great benefit of the local employment situation.

The principal request which contemplates 100 per cent grants by the Federal Government is the Municipal Center project, for the first unit of which $500,000 has been appropriated, but which would cost $5,400,000. In asking for a grant of $4,600,000 for this unit the District Commissioners point out that the Municipal Center is substantially a Federal project, resulting from the enforced removal of the District establishment from the Triangle and the necessity of constructing a municipal center in harmony with the new Federal buildings. The first unit would house the municipal and police courts, and the Police and Fire departments. The second unit, to provide for the administrative offices of the District government, would cost $5,000,000.

Other projects in group 2 include a mammal house at the Zoo, $200,000 (the Zoo is maintained by District revenues); oil-burning plant and generators at McMillan filtration plant, $82,000; reclamation of Anacostia flats, $360,000. All of these projects are on the accepted list of District improvements, which Congress has authorized, but for which sufficient appropriations are not available on account of the paring down of the District budget.

In the list of desired improvements which could be undertaken immediately with public works funds the Commissioners include a new ward for Gallinger Hospital, $800,000; joint heating plant for hospital and jail, $200,000; adult tuberculosis sanitarium, $1,000,000; industrial home school, $600,000; municipal lodging house, $100,000; District training school, $340,000; additions to school buildings, $2,395,000; Michigan avenue viaduct, $400,000; school heating plants, $120,000; Petworth branch library, $125,000; enlargement of Central Public Library, $500,000; fire engine house, Rhode Island avenue, $75,000; Piney Branch relief sewer, $400,000; other sewer extensions, $1,319,500.

Nearly all of the improvements listed are long-delayed projects which are demanded by the growth of Washington, but which have been neglected by Congress. Immediate work could be begun on most of them, as plans were perfected long ago, and in many instances sites have been acquired. The Public Works Administration could not devote the sums required to better purposes, from the standpoint of immediate employment relief and for the purpose of keeping the Federal City abreast of other cities in necessary municipal facilities and utilities.

JAPAN AND THE SOVIET.

Statesmen throughout the world are keeping close watch over negotiations in Tokyo looking toward the sale of Soviet Russia's interests in the Chinese Eastern Railroad to the new state of Manchukuo. The railroad has been a bone of contention for several years. In fact, it has become almost a symbol of power in the northern Chinese provinces. Both Russia and China have jealously guarded their interests in the road to preserve their hold upon Manchuria and its resources. Now it is proposed that full control of the road shall pass into the hands of Manchukuo, the child of the Japanese invasion.

It is significant that the negotiations are being held in Tokyo. Theoretically Japan is acting only in an intermediary role because of the absence of diplomatic relations between the Soviet and Manchukuo. Yet Count Uchida, foreign minister of Japan, points out that Japan and Manchukuo conduct their national defense plans in concert. Under these circumstances Japan could not be entirely indifferent to the purchase by her protege of a 1,100-mile railroad running through the heart of this potentially rich country.

Japan has always pretended that Manchukuo officials are handling the affairs of the new state in their own way. Yet virtually all important questions pertaining to Manchukuo are settled in Tokyo. There is nothing to indicate that the Soviet has any illusions as to who is the principal in this proposed deal. If the sale is completed, Japan will be the real master of the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

The Soviet's apparent willingness to sell its interests in this railroad is widely significant in Far Eastern affairs. It suggests that Russia will not stand in the way of Japanese conquests in China. A few months ago the attitude of the Moscow government toward the Japanese policy in Manchuria was resentful. But Japan has emerged as the master of Asia without effective challenge thus far. Apparently the Soviet has decided to cultivate the friendship of Japan, or at least to withdraw from a partnership with China that might lead to friction. It is well understood that the Soviet could not protect its interests in Manchuria if events brought a showdown with the Japanese army there.

Sale of the Chinese Eastern to Manchukuo would also imply recognition of that state by the Soviet. Thus far only Japan has recognized Manchukuo. Recognition by the Soviet would be another complicating factor in the dilemma which the Far East presents to the League of Nations.

BANNING CHILD LABOR.

Child labor will be prohibited in the textile industry under the first code which is being worked out in accordance with the national industrial recovery act. Organized labor took a firm stand in favor of eliminating children from textile factories while millions of men are unemployed, and the managers readily agreed to the inclusion of an anti-child labor clause in the code. The Cotton Textile Institute will submit an amendment to the code dealing with this subject.

No argument is needed against the employment of children, especially while large numbers of adults are without work. The textile industry is to be congratulated for the stand it has taken. The provision against employment of children in this code may pave the way for the abolition of child labor in all industries.

Some attempts have been made to set up legal obstacles in the way of any agreement to abolish child labor under the codes of fair competition. It is said that since Congress does not have authority to prohibit employment of children directly, any attempt to accomplish the same purpose under the national recovery act would run afoul of the Constitution. Some distinction must be made, however, between acts passed by Congress and voluntary measures taken by industry with the approval of the executive authorities. It is not Congress, but the representatives of industry and labor that are writing the ban against child labor into the codes of fair competition. The question of constitutionality does not seem to be involved.

The total repeal vote to date is 8,000,000, against 2,000,000 dry votes. The stay-at-home vote is bigger than both combined.

The Calvert street bridge deserves a place in the National Museum as a rare specimen of early American.

The ideal industrial code can be simmered down to one rule—the golden one.

A GERMAN OBSESSION

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

What is an Aryan? Scientists of many nations have bandied the term about among them, placing upon it a thousand different interpretations. Whether the Aryan race originated in Europe or Asia is a question that has caused the spilling of vast seas of ink, and likewise there have been intellectual battles between those grave doctors of science who held that the Aryans were Celts, Scandinavians, Germans, Slavs, or "bleached Africans," the final opinion being one stoutly championed by Sergi, the Italian anthropologist. But where others argue, Adolf Hitler postulates.

"True intellectual achievements have never been made by racial aliens," the Nazi leader asserts, "but always by strictly Aryan Germanic spiritual forces." Besides the utter absurdity of ruling out the achievements of German Jews, whose contributions to the arts and sciences have been notable, Hitler thus takes up his stand on the somewhat slippery ground of Aryanism, a racial quality which many men of greater learning have found it impossible to establish. In this whole craze for the Aryan ideal Waldemar Kaempffert, writing in the New York Times, discovers a key to the present German spirit of nationalism which works as an obsession on the mind of the nation today.

The theory of the Germanic superman, Kaempffert observes, had its origin at a time closely corresponding to the present, the era following the subjugation of Prussia by Napoleon and the humiliation of the Treaty of Tilsit. To an even greater extent than the Versailles Treaty, that international agreement of 1807 brought despair and shame to the minds of the German people, who passed through a period of mental depression which in modern times would be described as an inferiority complex. In this dark hour, Prof. Fichte, the noted philosopher, delivered in Berlin a series of lectures which were later widely published, all based on the glorious history and traditions of the people of Germany.

As if by magic, the nation began to win back its self-respect. Where Fichte had shown the way other philosophers and scientists were quick to follow, building up in the German consciousness the myth of the superman. In scientific circles, the emphasis was placed on racial heredity, and dozens of conflicting theories were propounded to show the superiority of the German stock to that of all other countries. Gradually, the term Aryan began to emerge, applied in many different ways. In the linguistic sense, the term is permissible, but its racial connotations have been discounted by generations of scholars. In Germany, however, the term has clung to the popular mind, and now Herr Hitler dusts it off and presents it anew as a tenet of the Nazi faith. He commands defeated, discouraged Germany to look in the glass and behold there a blond and blue-eyed giant, in appearance very like a god and very little indeed like Adolf Hitler.

Locking the Stable Door.

POST HASTE.

The textile code readily agrees on the co-eds but wants Uncle Sam to let the kindergarten workers alone.

If industry did not understand from Miss Perkins' address that it has not to take care of its workers she doubtless can furnish a diagram.

The question whether stabilization or price-fixing shall come first has now reached the same lucid point as the debate over the chicken and the egg.

Unless you can foretell the outcome of the administration's plans it is bootless to speculate on the party fortunes in 1934-36.

The nations of the world having been unable to make price increases work one at a time, London is pondering whether it can handle a thousand at a time.

If Congress, as Joe Robinson says, was not a rubber stamp, its conscience was elastic enough to stretch the Constitution and expand the currency.

It was something new for labor to hear its cause pleaded by a Madam Secretary in pure Bostonese "beans," "eyethers" and broad A's.

The official radio exhortation to cotton farmers to ignore market prices and sign up for acreage reduction was not lacking in unconscious humor.

Another joker in the cotton dole is that the farmer will have to split his bonus check with the bloated capitalist who has a lien on his destroyed crops.

Sixteen straight States having slipped into the repeal column, it looks as though prohibition had stepped on a banana peel.

The agricultural program is under way, but don't shove; it takes time to get used to the idea of paying folks for what they don't do.

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest

OBEDIENT.

Time was when I was young and bold,
Mad as the well-known hatter,
To my opinion I could hold
In many a doubtful matter;
But I gave up long years ago,
When choices lie before me,
My personal preferences to show.
My mind is made up for me.
What'er our little problems are,
To speak the truth compels me
To say I've found it easier far
To do as Nellie tells me.

For seven and twenty years we've shared
Both fair and stormy weather,"
And hand-in-hand life's path we're fared
Contentedly together.
When'er my whim with hers has crossed
My wisdom I've not vaunted,
But let the argument be lost
To do as Nellie wanted.
I've found it much the simpler way.
From grievous care it rids me,
And so, "All right, my dear!" I say,
And do as Nellie bids me.

Oh, should the rug be green or red,
My whim is quickly shaken.
Though I my choice for green have said,
The red's the one we've taken.
Now some there are who say to me,
To be so weak and wavery
In times of doubt is cowardly
And nothing short of slavery.
But I will put my preference by
Until the last blow falls me,
And gladly, to the day I die,
Do just as Nellie tells me.

Nobody Is Awed by a Brilliant Solitaire If the Price Tag Says 10 Cents.

By Robert Quillen

SOME years ago a homely young man, product of a New York orphanage, discovered that socially ambitious Americans are awed by a title or a uniform and inclined to believe all they hear.

Almost at once he became a nobleman from overseas, and thereafter he lived on the fat of the land except for short intervals spent in jail. The best homes, the best hotels and the best people made him welcome and supplied him with pocket change. And many still believe him a grand duke or a count or something like that, although he has been exposed as a fraud time and again.

Another New Yorker, an unschooled clerk of German origin, has been equally successful in borrowed grandeur. He has never pretended to be more than a naval officer or an agent of the great, but in uniform or in the formal garb of a prominent citizen he has coolly taken charge of public ceremonies, greeted visiting royalty, made himself the guide and counsellor of celebrities, and even strutted in the White House and cracked jokes with a President. And all of this he has done, plus the impudent snubbing of police and detectives and minor officials, with only one short term in prison as evidence of the world's aversion to humbugs.

How do you account for it?

Neither man was educated in books or polite manners; one is short and ugly and the other offensively officious; and neither is credited with the quality called charm.

What made them seem important? The same thing that will make you seem important and poised and superior if you care to use it. And it isn't magic, either.

Ordinary humans, whether rich or poor, high or low, celebrated or obscure, are honest and reasonably genuine. That being true, they assume that other people are square and real. They believe what they are told, credit what they see, and have no suspicion of a stranger who doesn't ask for money.

Enter any company, schooled and dressed for the part, and you can be the Crown Prince of Bagdad or the inventor of the fourth dimension.

Nearly all famous entertainers have stage fright. They pretend they haven't and soon the audience is under their thumbs.

Hide your embarrassment or fright or weakness or inferiority complex and in a moment the other fellow will be feeling humble in the presence of such assurance.

The world accepts you at your own valuation. If you are treated as a nobody, it is because you act like one.

POLITICAL COMMENT

A Menace to Guard Against.

Springfield Republican.

A serious danger to the vast experiment in "control" is the invasion of it by the political spoils system. The manning of Government by politicians big and little is normal to the extent permitted by the civil service laws, and to this we are accustomed under ordinary conditions. We expect in the immediate future, as inevitable, a turnover of Federal office-holders to the number of thousands on the basis of simple party allegiance with all the loss of experience and efficiency the patronage system involves. This is bad enough in all conscience. For the public service is still based on conceptions of political preference and favoritism too debased for results of the highest average excellence.

Thrifty Are Forgotten.

Chicago Tribune.

That this ruinous folly (the proposed taxation of hitherto exempt Government securities) was escaped should not and will not obscure the meaning of its proposal. It is but one illustration of the dangerous lowering of the level of political character and intelligence in Congress. The present policy among a large number of the national legislators seems to be to penalize every merit and course of action in the individual upon which a civilized society can base order, prosperity and progress. The idea seems to be that any individual who has exercised enough industry, self-restraint and foresight to acquire any provision for himself or his dependents is to be penalized and stripped. This is the forgotten man so far as present politics is concerned.

Now for a Trial With Cotton.

Kansas City Star.

The cotton control plans, like those previously announced for wheat, depend absolutely upon the readiness of farmers to cooperate by signing pledges on acreage reduction. Secretary Wallace makes it plain that unless a sufficient number of farmers can be brought into the plan to make the reduction in yield at least 2,000,000 bales, the program will not be used. That would mean taking out of cultivation at least 6,000,000 acres, or approximately 15 per cent on the basis of last year.

Captured Critics.

Lawrence Telegram.

President Roosevelt's "brain trust" is no novelty in this country. True, it is possibly the first time that a corps of trained experts in the manifold intricacies of the issues before the Nation have been assembled for the purpose of advising upon the best methods to adopt, but the lesson was taken from the apt and able successful business and political organizations of the country. Every politician—that is, the kind that lasts—considers it better to absorb into his organization those who are successful rivals. The same applies to a business or industrial organization.

THE ONCE OVER

THE NEW PARTNERS.

"I have got to have more money,"
Said the blonde steneg to me;
"I have got to have more money,
Through the big recovery."
"I'll be glad to see you get it,"
I replied; "I would, my dear;
But you'll have to take it up with General Johnson (Brigadier)."

II.

"May I have the day tomorrow?"
Asked my office boy today;
"They are burying my grandma,
And the Yanks and Tigers play."
"It's okay with me," I told him,
"But they're issuing this year
Permits for interring grandmas
Through Hugh Johnson (Brigadier)."

III.

"I've been here," my foreman told me,
"Thirty years and seven days,
And I think it is about time
I obtained a modest raise."
"You will have to see my partners,"
I declared, "to put it through;
They are Teagle, Cates and Hurley,
Dr. Sachs and Johnson (Hugh)."

IV.

"That expense account I gave you—
Could you pay me that today?"
Asked my salesman, Abie Ginsberg,
As he packed to go away.
"It was pretty steep," I answered,
"And my conscience hesitates
To accept it 'til I talk with Alfred Sloan and Swope and Cates."

V.

"We should sharply cut our prices,"
Said my sales directing chief,
"For the competition's bitter
And we soon may come to grief."
"I admit we ought to do it,"
I replied, "but lissen here—
It is up to Cates and Hurley, Sachs and Johnson (Brigadier)."

VI.

Then one night a voice informed me
That flames had swept the shop.
"If you listen," said the speaker,
"You can hear the timbers pop;
In a crisis such as this one
This is what I now propose:
Phone to Johnson, Finch and Teagle
For a hydrant and some hose!"

ADMISSION.

The clothes from off my back
I'd give to friends who lack;
But he's a friend indeed
Who's not a friend in need.

ADD SIGNS AND OMENS.

Cigarette consumption is showing big gains for the first time in several years. One of the unmistakable signs of recovery is the big drop in borrowings.

And a depression may be said to be over when the cigarette borrower takes his electric lighter down to be refilled.

FROM THE HEART.

The sigh of relief that swept over the American business world when Mr. Mitchell was found not guilty of tax evasions was audible at all points. There were so many in the same boat that a conviction would have amounted to a major marine disaster.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Prospect of Noiseless Street Car Opens Vista of Delight to City Dwellers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A noiseless street car! As The Post's editorial well says, it seems too good to be true. Think what it would mean to the harried nerves of the millions of occupants of office buildings, hotels and apartments, not to mention churches, in most of which the services become almost inaudible through the crash and grind of street cars passing the doors. A noiseless street car! It would be mechanical "progress" worthy of the name. Life might become almost livable again even in the congested areas of our larger cities, in which, after all, the majority of the population are condemned to pass their days.

Surprised by Republican Protests Against Centralization of Powers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been musing on how it would feel if during the past 60 years I had been in a Rip Van Winkle sleep and had just now wakened up. At first I would wonder at, and be interested in, the material changes which have taken place. But perhaps the effect would be even more startling in respect to political changes. The sight of the G. O. P. viewing with alarm the centralising tendency of Democracy and the Democratic party clothing the Chief Executive with extraordinary power would undoubtedly make me rub my eyes again. In such a case, do you think it would be very strange if, in my mind's eye, I found it difficult to stop blinking with incredulous amazement? Think of the G. O. P., the party of Hamilton, protesting against centralization of Federal power!

Communist and Financial Buccaneer Are Brothers Under the Skin.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your today's issue your highly appreciated columnist, Col. Robert Quillen, says:

"Mankind must learn that the laborer is worthy of his hire—that men equally useful to society deserve equal reward." Then he adds:

"This is not an argument for Communism."

Please allow the suggestion that the Communist and the financial buccaneer are brothers under their skins—blood brothers.

The Communist would get, and the financial buccaneer does get what isn't his'n.

De Cardenas Dinner Fetes 10th Wedding Anniversary.

THE AMBASSADOR OF SPAIN AND SENORA DE CARDENAS entertained at dinner Tuesday evening in celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary, their guests including friends in Washington at the time of their marriage.

The wedding took place here when Senor de Cardenas was Counselor of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Cardenas was visiting her brother, Mr. Frederick Nano, at that time Secretary of the Roumanian Legation. The party Tuesday evening was most informal and few of the guests realized they were being invited to an anniversary celebration. One of the local photographers sent as a gift to the Ambassador and Senora de Cardenas a handsome picture of the wedding party which they had had beautifully reprinted from their files and framed.

Since his period of duty in the Capital a number of years ago, Senor de Cardenas has served in several countries as chief of mission, having come to Washington more than a year ago from Japan.

Senora de Cardenas will leave shortly for Europe, where she will visit her home in Roumania and spend the summer with her young son, who is living with his grandmother. The ambassador will join her there later in the summer and will return to Washington in the autumn.

Mary I. Colliflower Married to George L. Goss.

The marriage of Miss Mary Isabelle Colliflower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Colliflower, to Mr. George Llewellyn Goss, of Bar Harbor, Me., and Washington, D. C., took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents on Nineteenth street. The Rev. J. M. Moran, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white eponge lace made on princess lines with a circular cape forming the sleeves, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her white tulle veil was held with sprays of orange blossoms.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary Elizabeth Gott, wore a petal pink mousseline de soie over taffeta made with puff sleeves and wide crushed girdle. Her large picture hat of petal pink lacy straw was trimmed with black velvet. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and delphinium. Mr. Samuel D. Hecht, of Bar Harbor, Me., was best man.

At the reception which followed the ceremony the bride's mother was attired in a pale pink and blue flowered chiffon and wore a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Copeland P. Jones, of St. Paul, Minn., was among the out-of-town guests. During the past two weeks the bride and bridegroom have been feted at several parties given in their honor.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Goss left by motor for Bar Harbor, Me., to remain until September. The bride traveled in a tan triple sheer suit with brown accessories.

Mex., in the presence of the members of the two families.

The engagement of Miss Ferguson was announced inadvertently several weeks ago by Mrs. Roosevelt, a close friend of the mother of the bride, who, as Mrs. Isabella Greenway, is running for Congress in a special election to be held in August in Arizona, to fill the place of former Representative Lewis Douglas, Director of the Budget.

HULL IS BOSS, MOLEY ASSURES DELEGATES

Publicly Denies Impression in London That He Will Take Over Reins.

London, June 28 (U.P.).—Undersecretary of State Raymond Moley tonight publicly demonstrated his subordination to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chairman of the United States delegation to the World Economic Conference.

Moley obviously sought to discount the British press intimation that he is here to displace Hull at the parley. He is not even a member of the delegation, it was pointed out, and he already has been dubbed the "presidential nuncio" in informal discussions of his place in the picture.

At a joint press conference they held tonight, Hull introduced Moley as "one of our most able and forward-looking citizens."

Moley twice referred to Secretary Hull as "my chief," saying President Roosevelt had the highest confidence in Hull.

Avoids War Debts Discussion.

Moley said he did not plan to discuss war debts while in London for a brief period, possibly not more than a week. He called attention to the recent notes from the Washington Government to debtor nations, and emphasized that any discussion of this delicate question would have to be held in Washington.

Moley maintained that the recovery in the United States now under way was encouraging because it was genuine, he said, rather than purely inflationary. He added with a smile that the United States would like to see this recovery shared by all countries, but that he was not an evangelical agent, expounding cures.

Moley and Hull conferred briefly at their hotel during the day, discussing the status of the economic conference and progress it was making, as well as the economic changes occurring in the United States and the President's views.

Moley Absent at Meeting.

The Undersecretary was reported to have told the Secretary of State he regretted the British publicity describing him as "a superman," likely to overshadow Hull, and assured Hull he had not inspired such publicity.

Moley gave Hull no written instructions from Mr. Roosevelt, he said, but merely "filled him in on the background of recent domestic developments."

Hull later met with the American delegation, but Moley was not present.

The Americans were under pressure from the continental gold standard nations to "do something about temporary stabilizatoin of the dollar." Hull, however, declared that outside the powers of the delegation and that they could "do nothing."

School at G. W. U. Begins on Monday

Registration for the six weeks' course in the 1933 summer session of the George Washington University will take place on Monday, and classes will begin the same day.

To accomodate those who will be out of the city over the Fourth of July, the late registration fee for the six weeks' term, which ordinarily would go into effect on July 5, will be suspended until July 6, it is announced by Dr. Robert Whitney Bolwell, dean of the summer sessions. This will enable students returning after the holiday to register Wednesday, July 5, without payment of a late fee.

Fifty-six weeks' courses in 14 departments of instruction will open, bringing the total number of courses offered in the summer sessions to 112. Included are courses in botany, economics, education, English, geology, graphic arts, history, library science, physics, political science, psychology, public speaking, sociology and zoology. In addition, three special conferences in the school of education and one in the school of government are scheduled for the six weeks' term.

'Conceited Artist' Kidding Self, Says One Who Knows

Young Rayford, Heaven's Gift to American Scene, Does Have Ability, But Mirror Tells Him Wrong, Avers Former Member of Congress.

Julian Lee Rayford, God's gift to American art, may think he's the most conceited man in America, but a prominent Washingtonian who knows him well—former Representative Thomas H. Small, of North Carolina—believes that the lad has examined himself in a distorted mirror.

Like Alice in Wonderland, growing bigger and bigger the farther she went in the rabbit hole, Rayford, in Mr. Small's opinion, is kidding himself.

Nevertheless, the North Carolinian views the embryo sculptor and poet as "a near genius," and thinks he stands a good chance of carving himself a place in the Hall of Fame of American letters.

Rayford revealed to The Post that he knew Mr. Small. This prompted the reporter to visit the former representative yesterday.

It seems that back in 1927 Rayford hitch-hiked up here for the Duke-Navy football game at Annapolis. He was a student at Duke at the time. He met Mr. Small, who was president of the Duke Alumni Association, at a supper after the game.

Although Mr. Small is conservative and Rayford incorrigibly temperamental, he took a liking to the irrepressible youngster.

"Judy," he said yesterday, "is a person I would like to have in my home for an hour or so every night. He is a good conversationalist, and shows occasional flashes of real wit. I would like to wind him up and hear him buzz for a while and then shut him off when I got tired."

Rayford's use of the word "conceited" is incorrect, Mr. Small said. A conceited person, he pointed out, is one who thinks he is something he is not or can do something beyond his power. Rayford, he observed, is not putting a wrong interpretation on his abilities. He has over self-confidence.

"With a fixity of purpose, with a governor to control his wild dreams, he will get somewhere," Mr. Small predicted. "He has yet to find out that every successful man needs an abiding place. Judy, at present, is an uncontrollable nomad."

While Mr. Small was giving this appraisal, Rayford was on his way to New York. He carried two bags. One contained his novel, "Satan Is a Perfect Gentleman," and the other was crammed with his free verse.

"When a publisher sees my book," Rayford said before departing, "he will welcome me as the greatest find since Edgar Allan Poe."

BRITAIN REPORTED SET TO PEG POUND STERLING WITH FRANC

ed in responsible quarters that financial authorities in Holland approached the British for a loan to support the guilder. The advisability of such a loan along the lines of Britain's recent 30,000,000-sterling loan to France has been mentioned frequently in financial quarters recently.

However, in the event the gold-bloc agreement works out as planned, the loan may not be necessary immediately, it was said, inasmuch as France probably would support the guilder in return for Britain's support of the franc.

"Escape Clause" Demanded.

British participation in the continental gold accord was understood to have been agreed on only on the condition that an "escape clause" be included, permitting depreciation of the pound if the monetary union against the dollar fails to halt the dollar's fall.

The chief delegates of the United States and Britain were present during a discussion of this united front to halt the falling dollar. The others included representatives of France, Holland, Switzerland, Belgium and Italy. Germany did not participate.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull was told of the fears these gold countries have of being forced off the gold standard by the dropping dollar, particularly Holland. The others said if Holland went off, they would be forced to follow.

Esthonia Goes Off Gold.

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain urged Hull to "do something" about stabilization of the dollar. The others expressed disappointment in private at Hull's apparent lack of powers, and pinned their hopes on the new instructions it was believed Undersecretary of State Raymond Moley brought from Washington.

News that Esthonia had abandoned the gold standard today aroused further unrest among the continental powers, and caused more pressure to be brought to bear not only on the American group but the British.

The monetary subcommittee on re-establishment of international monetary standard unanimously adopted a resolution designed to make the gold standard workable in future by withdrawing gold from internal circulation and reducing gold coverage of paper currencies to a maximum of 25 per cent of the outstanding notes.

OPENING SUITS BIDS OF THREE IN A MAJOR.

An opening suit bid of three in a major is partly a strength-showing bid and partly a shutout bid. Its chief characteristic is that the trump suit itself does not require adequate support from partner. It must necessarily include at least 5 sure trump-tricks, and as a matter of general practice it usually includes more. In counting these playing-tricks the player should give honors their full value rather than the values assigned to them on a defensive basis. For example, a combination such as K J 10 9 8 7 is worth 4½ playing-tricks rather than only 4. This is obtained by giving the K J 10 the value of 1½ playing-tricks rather than its pure honor-trick value of only one.

Almost invariably an Opening bid of three in a major denies support in the other major. As a matter of fact such a bid of necessity indicates support in no more than one other suit, and this one a minor.

The requirements in full playing-tricks are, when not vulnerable, 7 to 8 sure winners in a hand, including ruffing-tricks, and 1 to 1½ honor-tricks outside the trump suit. Responding Hand can raise to game with about 2 playing-tricks.

When vulnerable, the mininum number of playing-tricks held must be 8, also including 1 to 1½ honor-tricks outside the trump suit—in all between 2½ and 3 honor-tricks in the hand.

Example:

♠ A Q J 8 6 3 2 ♢ 6 4 2 ♣ A Q 3

The above is an excellent example of a three-spade bid whether vulnerable or not vulnerable. The spade suit is worth about 6½ playing-tricks and the club suit 1½. Responding Hand can raise to game with about 1-plus playing-tricks.

Note: A four-bid in another suit by the Responding Hand is an indirect Raise, and, therefore, partner must revert to his original suit if holding insufficient support.

Examples of responses to an Opening bid of three spades, not vulnerable, are: Bid four spades holding

♠ 10 6 4 3 ♢ 6

or

♠ 9 7 5 ♢ 8 3 2
♡ A Q 6 ♣ Q J 9 4

Pass holding

♠ 9 8 7 ♢ 9 8 4 3
♡ A 6 5 ♣ J 8 6

Examples of responses to an Opening bid of three spades, when vulnerable, are: Bid four spades holding

♠ 10 8 7 ♢ J 6 3 2
♡ 9 5 ♣ 9 6 4 3

or

♠ 10 8 ♢ A Q 6
♡ 9 4 3 2 ♣ 8 7 6 3

Pass holding

♠ 9 6 4 ♢ 10 4 3 2
♡ K 8 6 ♣ Q 7 5

What do you bid on the following hands, not vulnerable?

♠ K J 10 9 8 6 4 ♢ A J 6 4
♡ 8 ♣ 5

♠ 5 ♢ 6 4 3
♡ A K Q 10 9 6 4 ♣ K 3

(3)
♠ K Q J 10 9 4 ♢ 9 6 3
♡ — ♣ A 9 7 5

(4)
♠ A K Q 8 6 5 ♢ A Q 6
♡ 5 3 ♣ 7 3

When vulnerable?

(5)
♠ A 2 ♢ K Q 5
♡ A Q 9 8 6 4 3 ♣ 7

♠ K Q J 10 9 7 5 2 ♢ A 9 3
♡ 6 2 ♣ —

(7)
♠ A K Q J 8 7 5 ♢ K 6 2

(8)
♠ 2 ♢ K Q J 10
♡ K J 10 8 6 4 3 ♣ 5

Answers: Examples 1 and 2 are excellent examples of nonvulnerable three-bids in a major. Example 3 should be opened with one spade because the playing strength is not quite great enough. Example 4 should also be opened with one spade because the hand is too strong for a semi-pre-emptive bid. Example 5 holds too much playing strength and should be bid one heart. Example 6 should be bid three spades. Example 7 is too strong, and should be opened with one spade. Example 8 is a three-heart bid.

Representative Oliver to Speak.

Representative William B. Oliver, of Alabama, will speak on "How the United States Government Handles Criminals," in the Washington Community Forum, over WMAL, at 9 o'clock tonight.

G. O. P. Will Hail Tariff Showdown, Fish Declares

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., ranking Republican member of the House foreign affairs committee, said today his party would "welcome a showndown on any tariff deal that the quasi free trade delegates may bring back" from the London economic conference.

"I am constrained to reply," said Mr. Fish in a statement, "to the undignified and unethical statement of Representative Sam D. McReynolds, chairman of the committee and now a delegate to the economic conference, in which he injected unwarranted partisanship by blaming the Republicans for the Hawley-Smoot tariff act.

"In the past it has not been considered proper or sound American policy to wash our domestic and political linen in foreign lands.

"It is not surprising that the present administration, with wanton disregard to the customary and traditional diplomatic practice of the United States, assails through its partisan representatives in London the protective tariff bill enacted by the Republican party.

"There is no spokesman on the American delegation from the great industrial and most populous sections of the United States, such as New England, New York, New Jersey or Pennsylvania. • • •

"Neither Secretary Hull nor Mr. McReynolds speak for American labor in the North or East, who are unqualifiedly opposed to permitting cheap foreign goods produced at low wage scales and under depressed currencies to destroy the American market for the products of our own labor and increase unemployment throughout the country.

"The Democrats can do nothing more destructive to the interests of Americna labor and industry than to open up the floodgates to cheap foreign-made goods. One of our main difficulties at the present time is to prevent our own industries from being shut down by unfair European and Asiatic competition."

DAVIS ARMS REPORT CHEERS ROOSEVELT

President Emphasizes Consultation Hinges Entirely on Disarmed World.

Lakemans Bay, Roque Island, Me., June 28 (A.P.).—Encouraged by an optimistic report on disarmament prospects, President Roosevelt today emphasized to his special ambassador at Geneva, Norman H. Davis, that American promises for consultation hinge entirely on a disarmed world.

Sitting on the compact bunks below deck of the schooner Amberjack II in this fogbound, isolated harbor, Mr. Roosevelt and Ambassador Davis talked over the world armaments problem today and agreed to spur the campaign for a successful conclusion of the year-old Geneva parley this fall.

"Europe has made up its mind," reported the Geneva emissary, "that it is to be either peace or chaos. This is the greatest progress. Public opinion is developing for disarmament. The people are still a little nervous and we must have a little time to settle some of the political problems."

The President instructed Mr. Davis to return within a week or ten days and renew the efforts for world peace and disarmament which he believes now to be in prospect.

Davis said the future depends in great measure on stabilization of the German government.

Davis reached the vacationing President by a hazardous ride through 7 miles of rocky shoreline through the fog today from the destroyer Bernadou, which picked him up at Boston.

Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

It is probable that you will find a new friend on this day; in a moment of need some one will come to your rescue or assistance, some one whom you did not think was at all interested in your welfare. This friendship should be enduring. Be careful to whom you give alms on this day.

The child born on this June 29 will probably try to use large words and to imitate his parents and elders on all occasions. Many a so-called family secret will pass this little one's lips, for you will find him to be a great talker and quite oblivious of the effects he may produce on his listeners. He will not be discreet.

If June 29 is the date of your birth, you will most likely not trip along gayly through life and just naturally fall into the right line of work for your life career. You will have to study yourself quite thoroughly. You will not have as many faults as do many, but they will be more difficult to overcome. You have a conscience which will trouble you on the slightest violation of its dictates. Quite probably the earliest part of your life will be the happiest.

Born on June 29, you are not as constant as you might be when it comes to affairs of the heart. Green fields always look greenest to you in love as in business. It is possible that you will marry more than once. Your children will not be loved greatly by you. You will, however, in an impersonal way take care of them and they will respect you.

THE MEANDERER

Still Pursues Purple Gloves; Discovers Champagne Evening Gown and Holiday Clothes.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Pursuing purple gloves isn't as silly as it sounds. Meanderings readers who may have seen the shopper wearing a purple linen hat, purple linen gloves and carrying a bag of the same material, the purple accessories supplementing a tailored white linen frock, will agree that purple gloves, and such, are worth pursuing. But these touches of royal color are elusive, in just that form, at least. The Meanderer has to suggest, after consulting with a leading man of merchandise, that shoppers have such fetching things made to order. "Oh, but won't that cost too much?" the economical Meanderer inquired. "It will cost the consumer about the price of ready-made articles to have the special accessories made," the merchandising man said. "If she brings the material to us we can arrange to have them made for the price of gloves, hat and bags of comparative quality in our stocks."

Flattering folds of champagne-colored satin make one of the newest evening gowns in Washington. It is simply made, with bias folds forming the fitted silhouette, and a square low decolletage achieved with straps of self material. A finger-tip length coat of matching satin completes the charming evening ensemble.

Frocks of imported handkerchief linen in patterns that are distinctive and lines that are varied and becoming have the astounding low price of $6.50. Field flowers as clearly colored as if done with water colors, on both light and dark grounds, in these frocks are extremely attractive. Black and white floral patterns are striking in this imported handkerchief linen, as are the red and white designs.

Black slipper satin makes a long evening coat for those who follow high fashion. Immense fullness in the upper sleeve of such coats fitids itself compressed into a snug-fitting sleeve below the elbow. Gunmetal buttons, much like very large shoe buttons, fasten the garment.

Shopping around suggestions for outing clothes for a "vain and glorious Fourth," as a fashion magazine dubs the coming holiday:

A yellow pique sun-back dress with square neck lines and square armholes, the clever square lines accentuated by trimming lines of brown washable satin.

A shirtmaker dress in good quality washable silk, with stripes a half-inch wide in dark blue, medium blue and white. A bow tie of self-material is a nice touch on this tailored outing dress.

Pin stripes of several colors in a cotton dress, made mannish fashion, topped off with a swagger coat of beet root linen.

Black linen sun dress with short black linen cape; and a black linen dress with a black linen lace top, worn under a jacket of black linen lace.

WARNING TO MOTORISTS
don't start without KLEENEX!

For wiping perspiration from faces
For cleaning windshields
For wiping grease and dirt from hands
For wiping steering wheel
For picnic napkins
For handkerchiefs

Better keep a package always handy in the car!

HOW many times have you wished you had Kleenex with you while driving?

Windshield covered with dust, and the only cloths in the car so greasy, they'd only make matters worse! Face wet with perspiration, and your only handkerchief grimy from previous wipings.

With plenty of Kleenex along, you always have something clean with which to wipe dirt and grease off your hands, to clean windshields, steering wheels. Always a clean handkerchief for face and eyeglasses.

A picnic napkin

Stop for a roadside bite, and you have a dainty napkin in a fresh, clean Kleenex tissue. Stop at a pump to cool off and refresh your face, and you have an emergency towel.

Let the children have that ice cream cone. Kleenex will keep the drippings from soiling their clothes or the car's upholstery.

P. V. KEYSER DETAILS NEW SECURITY LAW

Analysis Studied in Capital; Complex Control Wording Seen as Handicap.

By Lawrence Sullivan.

Local financial circles are studying with lively interest today an authoritative summary and analysis of the recently enacted Federal securities law, as prepared by Paul V. Keyser, counsel for the Investment Bankers Association of America.

As the group most directly interested in the administration of the drastic control measure, the investment bankers have demanded a thorough dissection of the law.

Mr. Keyser outlined his conclusions in part last Monday evening at a group meeting of the National Association of Security Commissioners, at Hartford, Conn. This summary now has been enlarged for transmission to the entire membership of the Investment Bankers Association. Copies of the analysis were received yesterday in Washington banks and brokerage houses.

Keyser's Study of Law.

Mr. Keyser's study of the bill leads him to the conclusion that the control provisions set down in the language of Congress may prove so complex and burdensome that investment operations may be dangerously curtailed. He holds out the hope, however, that intelligent administrative regulations may put the law in workable form. The regulations are now being compiled by the Federal Trade Commission, which is to administer the law.

"Frankly," says Mr. Keyser, "I believe the fact must be recognized that section 11 of the securities act raises a serious question as to whther, under this act, it will be possible to find adequate private capital to undertake carrying out the essential financing of the larger business enterprises of the country. If not, and unless the law is changed, the results will be disastrous to the industry of the country and to every person interested in the welfare of the company, whether employe, stockholder or bondholder.

"The obligations which this act undertakes to impose upon underwriters are very great, and it seems to me not unreasonable to expect that responsible private bankers may hesitate to accept the hazards of those obligations—hazards that even by the greatest care can not definitely be determined in advance of the event."

Confusion Still Persists.

Commenting upon this analysis of the new law, attorneys in the financial district pointed out yesterday that there is still considerable confusion among legal authorities concerning the precise legal obligations imposed upon underwriting houses. This confusion arises principally from loose language in the text of the bill. It may be necessary to carry a test case to the Supreme Court of the United States before the scope of the law is definitely fixed.

Meanwhile, the investment community looks forward to six months or a year of uncertainty. This situation, in the view of local underwriters, may tend to curtail sharply the normal operations of investment bankers. The secondary result of this slowing up of long-term investments may force postponement of some important expansion projects in industry.

Mr. Keyser, however, is hopeful that the promulgation of the administrative regulations by the Federal Trade Commission, expected within 30 days, may clear away many of the perplexing questions now surrounding security sales.

Problem of Underwriters.

"If the larger private bankers hesitate to accept the liabilities of acting as sponsoring underwriters, then the question occurs whether the issuing company can directly utilize the services of the smaller dealers of the country to distribute their securities to the public," Mr. Keyser's analysis continues. "Here again a serious problem occurs, since under the technical provisions of the act each and every one of such dealers, even if acting simply on a commission basis, would become individually liable for all the obligations of an underwriter under this act. It may well be doubted whether such dealers would be willing to pledge their individual fortunes to such an unknown liability.

"Under the new Glass banking act, banks may no longer act as underwriters or distributors of such securities, and the question still remains, 'How can the general business of the country procure the necessary investment funds from the public?' This question awaits an answer under this act.

"The success of the law will be measurably affected by the wisdom of its administration. The character of the regulations and the reasonableness of requirements, quite as much as the terms of the law itself, will determine whether the act will result in a serious stoppage of honest business."

The annual convention of the institute also will be held next week in the same city.

BOND MARKET RISES TO NEW HIGH LEVELS

Traders Ignore Declines in Stocks; Sales Total $19,840,000.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Bond prices advanced again today over a broad front, apparently paying little attention to nervous stocks and commodities or to another sharp slump of the dollar in foreign exchange markets.

The trading volume was still large, sales totaling $19,840,000, par value, while the average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced three-tenths of a point to 78.8, another new 1933 high.

Further institutional investment purchases were reported in the high-grade groups, reflecting the switching of funds from banks where interest on demand deposits has been abolished.

Continued gains in revenues and car loadings brought another good volume of buying into rail issues, chiefly the secondary descriptions.

There were numerous gains of 1 to 2 points in the carrier group which responded to leadership of loans of the New York Central, Nickel Plate, Baltimore & Ohio, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern.

Utilities had a generally good tone, but they apparently felt no unusual stimulation from the very favorable report on electric power consumption for last week. Industrial loans appeared to swing in accord with factors affecting individual properties. Oils and coppers and some miscellaneous issues worked moderately higher.

There were one or two gains in Treasury obligations, but the majority of U. S. Governments eased to slightly lower levels. Some of the German issues were rather weak, notably the Dawes and Young loans, but other foreign groups were generally firm.

Hop Prices Steady.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Hops steady, unchanged.

Stocks Yield Ground Under Profit Selling

Early Flourishes Halted as Market Closes 1.1 Points Down; Dollar Drops and Commodities Blamed; Sales, 5,523,135 Shares.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—A dizzy drop in dollar exchange, sharp breaks in grain quotations and generaus advances in current favorites of the share traders kept financial markets bustling today.

The main body of stocks closed lower after early flourishes, for profit-taking was heavy toward the finish as the erratic movements of wheat resolved into substantial net losses.

A few weeks ago stocks would undoubtedly have hastened to board the depreciation bandwagon, but today's market was again a selective affair and many of the leaders moved narrowly.

"Wet" shares, textiles and numerous other specialties got up strong heads of steam. Owens-Illinois Glass took first place from National Distillers with a net gain of 10 points, the latter closing approximately a point higher after a rise of nearly 6. U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Standard Brands, National Cash Register, American Ice, Commercial Solvents, Celanese and Drug, Inc., were up 2 to 6 at the finish.

Rails found early stimulus in favorable carloadings statistics, particularly for Eastern roads, but the group closed somewhat mixed. Union Pacific and Santa Fe being lower. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, General Electric, Allied Chemical, Harvester, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, American Tobacco "B" and Consolidated Gas slipped major fractions to more than 2 points under Tuesday's final prices. Case dropped 4½ net. Sales totaled 5,523,135 shares.

Dollar weakness presumably reflected the opinion of sellers that stabilization, desired by Europe's "gold bloc," was still in the future, the inference being that further price expansion was desired by this country.

Financial Leaders Seeking Key to Costs of Production

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—How should cost of production be determined?

This is the question uppermost in the minds of financial leaders as a result of the blunt warning from the Federal administrators of the recovery campaign that products are not to be sold below production costs.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, director of National Recovery, recently discussed this point in language that the financial district considers highly significant.

Price increases would be controlled, he said, but only "so that prices will not move up one bit faster than is justified by higher costs. This does not mean selling below cost."

Students of the situation hold that this probably means that some uniform accounting system for principal lines of industry is in the offing.

In the case of railroads and utilities, accounting methods are pretty well standardized. The railroads, particularly, are required by Interstate Commerce Commission dicta to follow rigid rules, exhaustive in scope, in reporting operations.

It is admitted, however, that comparison of the income accounts or balance sheets of one industrial corporation with another is difficult, because corporation accounting is many times a matter of individual judgment.

Accounting experts explain that such variations in beekkeeping methods—all of which may be inherently honest—inevitably result in equally wide production-cost figures.

Whether the normally low-cost producers of an industry are to be allowed the full advantages that their position would indicate has not yet been made clear. Advices from Washington thus far tend to bear out the belief that uniform or fixed prices have been ruled out of consideration.

CURB LEADERS RISE; ADVANCES REDUCED

Specialties Show Strength as Sales Mount to 907,000 Shares.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—The curb market pursued an erratic course today. Early steadiness was succeeded by pronounced strength in specialties, which lifted the entire list fractions to more than 2 points around midday, but late realizing pared gains and a number of issues closed lower.

Utilities improved in the early trading but finished fractions to around a point lower in such issues as Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, American Light & Traction and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore.

Among the "wets," Distillers-Seagrams closed 4½ points higher, while Hiram Walker was up 2 in heavy trading. Canadian Industrial Alcohol erased a 2 point gain at the close.

Aluminum Co. of America lost 3 points at the close, while Deere & Co. gained as much. Wide swings occurred in Celluloid Corporation and Hazel Atlas Glass with advances of 6 and 8 points respectively. Safety Car was up 9½ points on a small turnover.

Oils and mining issues were irregularly lower at the finish. Humble Oil sagged 2 points. Transfers approximated 907,000 shares compared with 894,000 on Tuesday.

WHEAT VALUES SINK ON RUSH FOR PROFIT

Huge Selling Operations Cut Prices Nearly 6 Cents; All Grains Down.

Chicago, June 28 (A.P.).—In furious whipsaw action, dollar wheat was thrown into the discard today, and huge selling operations took the place of speculative stampedes to buy grains.

Wheat plunged down approximately 7 cents, and despite wild [illegible] rallies finished at almost the day's bottom figures.

Uncertainties, which followed official announcement that the Roosevelt administration's new process tax tand farmer bonus system would be quickly applied were among the factors traders assigned for today's storms of selling. Extraordinary disturbed conditions prevailing in regard to foreign monies, together with widespread belief that wheat prices had reached the top for at least the time being, were also cited as incentives to sell.

Stop-Loss Orders.

All grain markets had been honeycombed with stop-loss orders from recent speculative buyers. These orders turned into an avalanche when profit taking on a huge scale started the markets downgrade.

Wheat closed excited, all deliveries below $1 and May at 99¼, cents, with the market as a whole 5¼ to 6 cents under yesterday's finish; corn, 3 to 4⅝ cents down; oats, 3¼ to 4 cents off, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Right at the outset, wheat underwent a sheer drop of 6½ cents. Violent fluctuations followed, with corn and other grains rivaling the sensational behavior of wheat. Temporarily, there was a virtual collapse of public speculative buying which had swept prices up more than 21 cents in the last week.

Drive for Profits.

Hundreds of traders apparently had made up their minds that the time was ripe to collect profits, especially as scattered rains in the West and Southwest suggested an approaching end of drought and abnormal heat, which had been ravaging crops.

Renewal of buying on a big scale, however, led to rallies which were associated with reports indicating that there had been little moisture relief for the spring wheat region Northwest. In some cases, the temporary upswings amounted to more than 6 cents, but in the final hour, the market again swiftly reversed its course, and underwent a rapid, fresh tumble.

Late reports said rain was falling in southern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan, Canada, both important producers of spring wheat.

Trade experts said today's violent changes in price were characteristic of a market in which tremendous profits had been accumulated on paper, and were also characteristic of a market containing a larger proportion than usual of inexperienced and thinly margined speculators who could be "shaken out" in a rapid rush on prices.

Corn and oats closely followed wheat, with many traders governed by expectance of a break in the heat wave and the drought. Provisions averaged higher, responsive to hog market upturns.

Pretzel Will Be Taxed Under Processing Act

(Associated Press.)

The pretzel, like its boon companion, beer, will soon be among the taxed.

When the 30-cent per bushel processing tax becomes effective on wheat at midnight, July 8, the pretzel, as a wheat product, will be called upon to help foot the cost of reducing the Nation's wheat acreage during the next two years.

If pretzel-makers decide to pass on the exact proportion the tax bears to a pound of pretzels, it will amount to .732 of a cent to the ultimate consumer.

Processing Tax to Boost Bread Bill $150,000,000

(Associated Press.)

The bread bill of United States consumers will be increased potentially $150,000,000 for the twelve months starting at midnight July 8.

On each bushel of wheat ground into flour after that date a processing tax of 30 cents will be levied to provide funds with which to pay cash benefits to farmers who agree to reduce their acreage for harvest in 1934 and 1935.

Approved by President Roosevelt, a formal order proclaiming the tax was issued late Tuesday by Dr. R. G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, in the absence of Secretary Wallace, who is in the Middle West.

A maximum processing tax on cotton will be put into effect on August 1, the exact amount to be announced later. It is expected to be about 4 cents a pound.

It will be used to provide funds to finance a program of reducing this year's cotton crop. A campaign is being conducted through the South this week to win agreements from growers to plow up from 25 to 50 per cent of their growing fields.

If the wheat tax is passed on to consumers in exact ratio to the per bushel rate, this is what it will do:

Increase the cost of a 1-pound loaf of bread .483 of a cent; of a pound of ordinary flour, .704 of a cent; of whole wheat and graham flour, .500 of a cent; of pancake flour, .483.

Youngstown Steel Area Yield Up to 58 Per Cent

Youngstown, June 28 (A.P.).—Steel production in the Youngstown district has made a mid-week increase of about 2 per cent, bringing it to about 58 per cent of capacity.

Forty-eight of the district's 83 open-hearth furnaces were active today as against 46 last Saturday. The increase was in corporation plants.

An operating percentage of 60 to 65 per cent is regarded as "normal" in the steel industry.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Steel prices unchanged.

EARLY COTTON RISE TRIMMED TO LOSS

July Sells at 10.10, With General Market Down 15 to 20 Points.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Aside from slight opening advances, cotton was generally lower today under liquidation or realising inspired by the recent sharp advances as well as weakness of wheat.

Nervousness over the European currency situation accounted for later irregular fluctuations. October contracts sold off from 10.60 to 10.30 and closed at 10.36, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 15 to 20 points.

Opening advances of 2 to 6 points on higher cables proved to be the best levels of the day. Weakness of the dollar and absence of overnight relief from drought in the Southwest brought in moderate trade, commission house, Wall street and New Orleans buying.

Fairly Liberal Offerings.

This demand encountered fairly liberal offerings, however, and the market soon eased under renewed liquidation and Southern selling. Shortly after the first half hour of trading a sharp initial break in wheat brought much heavier pressure, with July selling off from 10.30 to 10.04 and December from 10.77 to 10.45, or 21 to 26 points net lower.

The weekly report of the Weather Bureau stating that the crop had withstood the dry weather remarkably well was rather more favorable than expected and may have brought in further selling.

Trade and foreign buying absorbed contracts on the declines, while partial rallies attracted increased pressure at around the 10½-cent level for October.

Exports today, 30,842, making 7,786,249 so far this season. Port receipts, 7,943. United States port stocks, 3,524,659.

Mississippi Cotton Farm to Cut Crop

Greenville, Miss., June 28 (A.P.).—Joining with tenant farmers and humble homesteaders, one of the world's largest cotton plantations today announced itself ready to sign the acreage-reduction pledge under the Wallace curtailment program, taking 5,250 acres out of production with one signature.

The announcement appeared natural enough, since Oscar Johnson, president of the Delta & Pine Land Co., operating the far-flung property, is also the new financial director of the agricultural adjustment administration behind the drive to boost cotton prices through part-abandonment of the crop.

The big plantation is located at Scott, Estill and Deeson, constituting 20,400 acres planted to cotton in Bolivar and Washington Counties, heart of the Mississippi delta. Proposed abandonment of 5,250 acres of this great sea of cotton would amount to a cut of about 25 per cent.

MID-WEST EXPECTS LOADINGS INCREASE

Cars for Grain and Coal Indicate New Jump in Traffic.

Cincinnati, June 28 (A.P.).—Shippers and transportation men of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky expect a 12.6 per cent increase in car loadings in the area in the third quarter of 1933 over the corresponding period of 1932.

Reports predicting such an increase in 29 leading commodities were made at a meeting of the Ohio Valley shippers' advisory board late yesterday.

Estimates ranged from a gain of 128.6 per cent in lumber and forest products down to a 13.8 per cent decrease for gravel, sand and stone.

Requirements for Coal.

Car requirements for coal and coke were placed at 436,558 cars, or an increase of 14 per cent.

A gain of 51 per cent was estimated in automobile movement; 49.3 per cent in machinery and boilers; 43.2 per cent in brick and clay products; 25.3 per cent in agricultural implements and vehicles other than automobiles; 18.3 per cent in grains; 16.4 per cent in milling products; 7.8 per cent in fresh fruits; 11 per cent in potatoes; 10 per cent in live stock; 10 per cent in iron and steel; 19.8 per cent in paper, paper board, and prepared roofing, and 15.1 per cent in chemicals and explosives.

Decreases, however, were estimated for hay, straw and alfalfa at 9.3 per cent; gravel, sand and stone, 13.8 per cent, and cement, 7.7 per cent, and petroleum and its products, 1.7 per cent.

Improvement in Freight.

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—Improvement in carloadings on the New York Central System continued at an accelerated pace last week. The road handled 101,231 cars, against 97,146 in the previous week, and 76,751 in the like 1932 period. The gain over last year amounted to 31.9 per cent, compared with a 19 per cent gain in the preceding week over the corresponding period in 1932.

Norfolk & Western's loadings last week amounted to 22,991 cars against 21,816 the week before and 15,709 a year ago.

Car interchanges at St. Louis terminal last week aggregated 35,772 compared with 34,828 and 33,597 in the same 1932 week. Other loadings reports of Western roads, with comparisons for the previous week and a year ago, included:

NEW WAR FOR RIGHTS LAUNCHED BY LEGION

Leaders in 17 States Gather Here to Lay Plans for Congress Campaign.

The American Legion's battle to restore benefits to war veterans and their dependents cut by the administration's economy program, was launched in Washington yesterday as legion leaders, representing seventeen Eastern States, opened a two-day conference at the Mayflower Hotel.

The conference here is the first of a series to be held throughout the country to devise a legislative program to be presented for approval of State and national conventions of the legion.

Capt. Watson B. Miller, of this city, chairman of the legion's national rehabilitation committee, presided at yesterday's session and traced his organization's activities in hospitalization of disabled veterans. Col. John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the legislative committee, discussed recent veterans' legislation. Dr. H. D. Shapiro, C. C. Brown, Earl W. Dimmick and James O. Davis, also members of the rehabilitation staff here, were among the other speakers.

Appointment of a resolutions committee was the principal business of the day. The committee's resolutions to be reported today will form the nucleus of a plan of battle by which the legion hopes to restore most of the benefits lost to war veterans under the economy act, at the next session of Congress.

John J. Dugan, Wilmington, Del., will act as chairman of the resolutions committee. Among those who will assist him are Edward A. Hayes, Decatur, Ill., national vice chairman of the rehabilitation committee; B. P. Beard, Salisbury, North Carolina Department commander; Joseph H. Edgar, New Brunswick, New Jersey commander; R. H. Hilton, Columbia, department commander for South Carolina; Dr. Winifred Overholser, Boston; Dr. George Lawrence, New York State commander; Mrs. William H. Biester, Philadelphia, chairman of the auxiliary national rehabilitation committee, and J. P. Ringley, of Chicago, Illinois Department head.

Capt. Miller will conduct district conferences at Meridian, Miss., July 7-8; Chicago, July 15-16; Salt Lake City, July 19-20, and San Francisco, July 27-28.

VIRGINIA IS CERTAIN OF SPECIAL SESSION

thus far that 19 members of the Senate favor a special session, while three others have approved with qualifications. No senator thus far has registered opposition with the senator.

Among the delegates, Senator Tuck said he was assured 49 members approved, while three others approved with qualifications, and seven telegraphed opposition.

Nine Vacancies to Be Filled.

Gov. Pollard, who consistently has refused to call the Assembly into session, tonight said it now "appears quite possible that the necessary number of signatures will be gotten to the application, and therefore out of precaution I am calling special elections to fill the nine vacancies in the General Assembly, without the filling of which more than a quarter of a million people of Virginia will be deprived of representation in a body which will decide questions of the gravest importance."

"If the boys want to come here and sweat in August, I will be here to sweat with them," he said.

There are five vacancies in the House of Delegates, and four in the Senate. Thirty days' notice of special elections is required. The governor tonight is examining the law on issuing special election writs, and indicated they will be issued tomorrow. The calling of special elections to fill the existing vacancies is to be desired by proponents of the special session, Senator Tuck said.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With Nelson B. Bell

Jean Harlow.

IN "Hold Your Man," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production coming to the Palace tomorrow, which City Manager Carter Barron, of the Loew enterprises, screened again yesterday morning for the benefit of the dramatic desks that had been unable to attend an earlier private projection-room unreeling, Jean Harlow ventures into greater emotional depths than in any vehicle in which she has heretofore appeared.

In "Hell's Angels"—and several succeeding pictures, for the matter of that—there was little to commend the Harlow performance beyond the strikingly vivid novelty of a platinum blonde before the cameras.

Pigmentation and pulchritude then were virtually her only stock in trade. "The Saturday Night Kid," "Public Enemy," "The Secret Six," and others of her early pictures, while they may have betrayed an increasing facility in the tricks of the studios, were not eloquent of any latent power that might be relied upon to elevate this colorful young actress to a position of dramatic importance. As the first of the platinums, she was merely a picturesque curiosity.

The turn came with her appearance opposite Chester Morris in "Red-Headed Woman." Here, of a sudden, were revealed an intelligent grasp of character, a warmth and a resourcefulness that held out the definite promise that Jean Harlow might definitely be going somewhere histrionically. Each successive portrayal since has corroborated and strengthened that augury.

"Hold Your Man," although a strange mixture of dramatic elements that may or may not strike the popular fancy, is a story of predatory prowlers that infest the fringes of metropolitan society, heartache, sacrifice and a final triumphant love, in which Miss Harlow is permitted to play up and down the full scale of human emotions from ribald comedy to the gentle tearfulness of an exquisite and penetrating pathos. She accepts her opportunities with effficiency and obvious zest.

In the public view, "Hold Your Man"—which we have no intention of reviewing in detail at this time—no doubt will be less condemned for attempting to combine the divergent qualities of "Public Enemy" and "Maedchen in Uniform" than applauded for marking so considerable a magnification of Miss Harlow's stature as an actress of authority and discretion.

It is distinctly her picture, let the Clark Gables fall where they may.

It is an arduous business, this picture making. When a film is in work, the cast in makeup and on call and the cameras and mixers grinding out celluloid and harmonizing sounds, being an actor amounts virtually to modified slavery.

At least Minna Gombell, importantly cast in "What Price Innocence?" on view at RKO-Keith's beginning tomorrow, is reported to have found it so.

Miss Gombell, it seems, after eight years of assiduous and faithful courting on the part of an ardent and a patient swain, reached a sudden, if belated, conclusion that she wished very much indeed to be married, and that at once.

Now, it has long been bruited about that there is not to be found anything on the face of the green earth more exacting or inexorable than a motion picture production schedule. Compared with the scene chart which reposes in the supervisor's custody, a railroad time table fluctuates like a vagrant summer breeze.

So when Miss Gombell confided with some assurance that she would like a little time out for the urgent purposes of matrimony, the executives in charge of the "What Price Innocence?" set, smiled pityingly and informed her bluntly that there wasn't a chance.

"Can't I have just the day off—tomorrow to be married?

"Not even an afternoon."

"How about an hour, just to slip over to City Hall and hurry right back again?"

"Not even ten minutes!"

It was all a little difficult for Mr. Joseph W. Safton, jr., to understand, but having waited eight years he philosophically concluded that the end of the filming wouldn't be much longer than that.

So following the final retake, they drove to Yuma, Ariz., secured the license at 1:40 p. m., were married at 1:50 and on their way back to Hollywood at 1:55!

Honeymoon? Miss Gombell began another picture next day, so they are planning it for the holidays—or maybe next summer. Being a film star is like that!

According to Edward Gallner, one of yesterday afternoon's brief callers at this desk, who played an active part in assembling and editing the film, ten years of research in this country and foreign lands is reflected in the complete picturization of the World War as represented by the motion picture, "Forgotten Men," coming to the Metropolitan on July 7.

"Forgotten Men" was made from over 150,000 feet of film obtained from the official and unofficial archives of 14 nations participating in the struggle, both on the side of the Allies and the Central Powers. Every scene shown upon the screen is said to be authentic and to form part of an historical document that offers a bitter indictment of both the stupidity and the futility of modern warfare, with all its brutality, misery and filth.

"Forgotten Men" is one of the most heatedly argued releases of the season in New York, by reason of the simple frankness with which it visualizes the gruesome horror of armed conflict among civilized peoples.

Of more immediate interest, however, are the attractions that are to be made available to the holiday amusement seeker for Fourth of July week. Beginning Monday at the Columbia and tomorrow in all the other downtown first run houses, the offerings for the new week will be as follows: Earle, Richard Barthelmess, Loretta Young and Aline MacMahon in "Heroes for Sale," and Johnny Perkins headlining the "July Frolic" on the stage; Palace, Jean Harlow and Clark Gable in "Hold Your Man;" RKO-Keith's, Willard, Mack, Jean Parker and Minna Gombell in "What Price Innocence?;" Loew's Fox, Ricardo Cortez, Franchot Tone and Loretta Young in "Midnight Mary," and Pat Rooney and Pat Rooney 3d headlining the vaudeville; Columbia, Conrad Nagel and Leila Hyams in "The Constant Woman;" Metropolitan, Ruby Keeler, Joan Blondell, Warren William, Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbee in "Gold Diggers of 1933," third week of run transferred from the Earle.

In addition to operation of all of the park's concessions and amusement devices on a full summertime schedule, Glen Echo Park announces free swimming lessons for men, women and children during the period from July 5 to 28, inclusive. These lessons will be under the direction of competent instructors. No fees will be charged other than the regular scale of admission to the Crystal Pool. In addition to the pool, the new Spanish ballroom and the free picnic grounds are among Glen Echo Park's high spots in public favor.

Who remembers, a quarter of a century or so ago, when at this season of the year the Aborn Light Opera Company would be packing them in at the National Theater, with such old favorites as Fritzi Von Busing, Forrest Huff, Estelle Wentworth, the late Huntington May, Herbert Waterous and scores more, with the chorus led by Marjorie Ramey, Lenna Duer and Dixie Crane, in such enduring works as "The Bohemian Girl," "The Fortune Teller," "The Serenade," "Robin Hood," "The Idol's Eye," "Fiegradora," "The Mikado," "Pinafore," "Mlle. Modiste," "The Runaway Girl," "The Geisha," and the like?

Heigh ho! Imagine your being as old as that!

The first paragraph of a chronicle that comes to hand under the caption of "The Career of Ruth Chatterton" intrigues me no end, to wit:

"Ruth Chatterton, who is now appearing in 'Lilly Turner,' made her first stage appearance in Washington, D. C., in 1909. Prior to that she had been born in New York City and educated at Mrs. Hazen's private school in Pelham Manor."

Here, at last, is a biographer whose chronological sense is practically infallible! I have no doubt that it was prior to her Washington stage debut that Miss Chatterton had been born!

Founder Is Elected Curley Club Head

Miss Mary L. McGee, founder of the Curley Club, was elected president of the organization last night. Miss McGee organized the club in May, 1922, and served as its first president the following year.

Luke F. Reilly, prominent in local amateur theatrical circles, was elected vice president, while Miss Dorothy Barrett was reelected treasurer. Other officers elected are: Miss Emily Hodges, recording secretary; Miss Margaret Freedman, corresponding secretary; Joseph Diegelmann, warden; William Exner, sergeant at arms, and Ray McGarvey, advocate.

The Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, pastor of the Church of the Assumption, Congress Heights, who was elected chaplain of the Curley Club in 1926, was reelected to his seventh term.

Forecaster Says Warmer for Today

With three heat prostrations reported yesterday, the Weather Bureau last night predicted continued warm weather for today and tomorrow, possibly relieved by thundershowers.

A high temperature of 86 degrees was recorded yesterday at 4 p. m. Today will be partly cloudy.

Reported overcome yesterday was Percy Hall, 50, of 130 Glebe road, Arlington County, Va. He was treated at Emergency Hospital. Edna Thompson, 20, of 2719 Thirteenth street northwest, was taken to Emergency suffering from exhaustion. Collapsing at the Colony Laundry, 5820 Blair road northwest, Irene Hagar, 21, colored employe, was taken to Freedmen's Hospital. They were all released after treatment.

To my brothers... I owe the pleasure of smoking Luckies

When I first had a desire to smoke, I knew exactly where to start. You see, for years I had heard all the men in the family saying "Luckies Please". They said it was "Toasting" that made Luckies so good. I've never questioned the reason—because I have always found Luckies so fragrant, so mild—and (perhaps a man will smile at this) so pure to my lips! I can smoke lots and lots of them and still find them refreshing to the taste. Now I'm telling my brothers "Luckies Please", and each of them says, "You're telling me?"

CARNERA MAY ENTER RING CHOICE OVER SHARKEY

Nats Rout Ferrell and Pound Out 15 Hits to Beat Tribe, 15-2

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Cleveland, Ohio, June 28.

OUT of the circus side show, where his first manager found him, into the big tent of pugilism steps Primo Carnera tomorrow night, now a full-blown challenger for the world's heavyweight championship.

Within the confines of the 20-foot ring at the Long Island City bowl of punch, the Ambling Alp meets up with Jack Sharkey, the only man to knock him off his feet since they derricked him onto American shores four years ago. They weren't fighting for the title then—two years ago—when Sharkey won himself a nice 15-round decision, but tomorrow the title is at stake.

Carnera has graduated into the upper stratum of heavyweight division since he started knocking over the Big Boy Petersons and the Dime-a-Dozen Ruggirellos, and the big fellow who was a 5-to-1 shot against Sharkey two years ago is now only a 6-to-5 risk against the world champion.

Worst In-and-Outer In Ring.

But for all of his 6 feet 6 inches, his size 15 brogans, his immensity and reputation as a killer, Carnera must yield to the Sharkey man in the matter of fan interest.

The attention that Carnera commands because of his physical display is surpassed by Sharkey's mental acrobatics, which have earned him the reputation as the worst in-and-outer in the prize ring. His actions tomorrow night defy prophecy.

Against the men Sharkey figured to beat, he couldn't win. He had Max Schmeling whipped easily and then went hysterical and fouled him. He figured to beat Mickey Walker to a frazzle, but was fortunate to earn a draw. A beating at the hands of Risko kept Sharkey from a Tunney fight. In his second bout with Schmeling he virtually gave up in the late rounds, but inherited the title on a freak decision.

Spilled Carnera With His Left.

He was acknowledged to be a master boxer, but punchless when he fought Carnera two years ago, yet he spilled Carnera on the canvas for a count of 9 in the fourth round—with a left, mind you.

Against Schmeling last June, Sharkey put up a pitiful exhibition except for his masterful boxing in spots. He did not appear in his best condition and looked like a washed-up heavyweight. Yet, remembering his frequent form reversals of the past, you can't depend on it.

They say he'll have an added incentive tomorrow night. Carnera is the man who punched Ernie Schaaf into eternity, and Schaaf was Sharkey's own chosen successor to himself. He owned half of Schaaf's contract and had planned to pass the title on to him. He may battle Carnera with a newfound fury. And he may not. That's Sharkey.

Improvement Holds Answer.

The extent of Carnera's improvement in the last two years holds the answer to the result. Despite his size, Primo is not a hard hitter

HOMER BY MANUSH FEATURE OF 9-RUN OUTBURST IN FIRST

Walter Stewart Has Easy Time in Final at Cleveland.

Kuhel Also Is Star; Detroit Series to Open Today.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, Cleveland, Ohio, June 28. The Indians took the count of nine in the first round this afternoon and the Nats took the ball game, 15 to 2. The Nats now have a new winning streak of one straight.

They went slug-nutty in the first inning and at the finish of 20 minutes of sustained slamming they had the Indians out on their feet and wondering what else the tornado struck.

Nats Off to 9-to-0 Lead.

It was a nice ball game to win. The Yankees were very much occupied in Detroit, winning, 10 to 7, over Detroit by late rallies, to keep pace with the Nats, who maintained their one-game lead in the flag chase.

It was all over quickly. By the time the Indians had earned their first turn at bat the Nats were out front winging with a 9-0 lead. Wes Ferrell was cooling off both mentally and physically under the showers. Heinie Manush had come to bat twice, made two hits, driven in five runs, and otherwise was having a delightful afternoon.

It might be mentioned that Heinie's second hit of the first inning was a nice little bunt into the distant right field bleachers with the bases jammed, the aisles packed, the hassocks loaded, or any other way you care to describe three on.

The gruesome details of the first inning were these: Buddy Myer sent a grounder to Cissell that the Cleveland second baseman booted cleanly while a factory whistle behind the stands coincidentally blew a loud hoot in derision.

Ferrell Quickly Sent To Showers.

Heinie Manush singled through the box. Goose Goslin rammed a double to right, scoring Myer. Cronin walked to fill the bases. Schulte lined a single to center, scoring Myer and Manush. Kuhel whistled a single to right, scoring Cronin. There was a slight pause while Mr. Ferrell was being persuaded to leave the mound. But he was persuaded.

Manager Walter Johnson then led Bill Craghead to the slaughter. He was lulled into a false sense of security when Bluege and Sewell flied out. But Walter Stewart brought him back into grim reality with a single to right and the bases were filled for the third time in the inning when Myer walked. Whereupon, Manush pounded Craghead's first pitch on a nice low line into the right field stands and 4 runs paraded across home plate to 9 runs, 6 hits, 1 error, none killed.

Walter Stewart Breezes Home.

Walter Stewart breezed home thereafter. Three singles gave the Injuns 2 runs in the second inning, but they bit the dust with great regularity for the remainder of the game. They went down fighting in the ninth, though. With one out and his team 13 runs behind, Knickerbocker doubled, but neither Pinch Hitter Morgan nor Galatzer could come through in the pinch.

By the time the ball game was over, the Nats had 15 hits despite the fact that Sarge Connally blanked them from the fourth to the ninth. By the time the fourth inning had been completed, Manush had added 4 hits to his record as had Joe Kuhel, who finally wound up with a fourth hit in the ninth.

Nats' Junior Varsity Sees Action.

When they finally drew the shades down on the ball game, the Nats' junior varsity was playing the Indians. Boken was on third base, Kerr on second, Berg behind the bat, Harris in left field and Rice in right.

Before they bade Cleveland, where they have won four out of the five game series, a sad farewell, the Nats loaded the bases in the ninth against Connally, who had become quite a menace. Myer singled and then Connally hit Dave Harris where it hurt him least. Draw your own conclusions. Then he hit Sam Rice on the shin and there were three on. Cronin and Schulte popped up, but Joe Kuhel delivered a single to center that scored two runners and gave Stewart a 13-run lead to work with in the last of the ninth.

Babe's No. 17 Aids Yanks In Victory

Detroit Beaten, 10-7, on Five Runs in 8th and Three in 9th.

DETROIT, June 28 (A.P.).—With Babe Ruth hitting his seventeenth home run of the season as he returned to the starting line-up, the New York Yankees came from behind today, counting eight runs in the last two innings to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 10 to 7.

The Babe's circuit swat not only tied him for runner-up honors with Lou Gehrig, but was the second longest drive ever hit outside the fence at Navin Field. The ball cleared the center field barrier, a distance of 455 feet, and scored two teammates.

Yanks Fail to Gain Ground.

Neither Charlie Ruffing nor Vic Frasier, who started on the mound, finished the game. Frasier passed out of the picture in the middle of the Yanks' five-run rally in the eighth, while Wilcy Moore relieved Ruffing to start the eighth.

The victory failed to gain ground for the Yanks, however, as the Nationals also won to maintain their one-game lead.

GIANTS SPLIT BILL WITH PIRATES

Win Second, 7-4, on Homers; Losers in First, 5-2.

NEW YORK, June 28 (A.P.).—Two home runs, one by Hughie Critz in the ninth and the other by Gus Mancuso in the tenth, gave the New York Giants an even break in today's double-header with the Pittsburgh Pirates and allowed them to increase their lead a full game over the Cardinals, who dropped two games at Boston.

Critz' blow, hit with Travis Jackson on base, tied the score, and Mancuso's circuit swat with two teammates on the bases gave the league leaders a 7-to-4 triumph after Steve Swentonic had pitched the Corsairs to a 5-to-2 victory in the opening encounter.

Pirates Held in Check Rest of Game.

A home run also accounted for the first two runs off Larry French in the nightcap, Mel Ott driving out his ninth four-bagger with Lefty O'Doul on base in the second inning. Gus

BILL McAFEE IS FINED $250 FOR PUNCH

Pitcher's Fight With Cleveland Heckler Proves Costly.

Special to The Washington Post.

MUNICIPAL PARK, Cleveland, Ohio, June 28.—Bill McAfee learned today that the American League's share of the purse in his fight with a colored Cleveland fan under the grandstand yesterday was $250.

That was the amount of the fine assessed the Nats' pitcher by league President Will Harridge, who advised McAfee that he had escaped suspension only because of the fact that the incident occurred after the game was over.

It was a stiff cost for one punch, which was all that was required to render the fan hors de combat when he met McAfee in the runway after continuing to taunt the Nat pitcher, whom he had been ragging while the game of yesterday was in progress.

The fan, known to the Washington players only by the name of "Baltimore," has been recognized for years as a persistent heckler of the visiting players, having transferred his leather-lunged tirades from old Navin Field to the new Municipal Stadium this season.

Washington players were told today that Al Simmons climbed halfway into the stands to attack "Baltimore" earlier in the month when Revenge Angle Overlooked; Rivals in Splendid Shape.

$250,000 Gate Now Prospect; Ticket Sale Is Brisk.

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, June 28 (A.P.). Steaming heat brought rising temperatures in the fight business today and the prospect of another huge crowd for Jack Sharkey's 15-round heavyweight title defense against Primo Carnera tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden's bowl on Long Island.

The preliminaries were over, the fighters workouts ended, and there was nothing left for the faithful to do but hustle out to dig up ticket money and argue the merits of two of the strongest foes who ever collided in heavyweight championship combat.

This duel has developed more angles than a futuristic bookcase. The rail birds wonderingly studied a shift in betting sentiment that brought the monstrous Italian, biggest man ever to fight for the crown, down to the starting line at least an even money favorite with Sharkey, the man who two years ago gave him a gaudy pasting for 15 rounds in Ebbets' Field.

Primo Was Circus Product.

Sharkey wasn't the champion then, and Carnera, despite his 270 pounds, his 6 feet 7 inches of height and tremendous reach, was just a circus by-product, lured to the ring chiefly for exhibition purposes. Sharkey conceded him 65 pounds, knocked him down early, then banged away at the huge bulk until the Italian was just about able to navigate through the fifteenth round. Sharkey won as a 7-to-5 shot wins, going away.

Yet today, there was every prospect, due to paucity of Sharkey backers and the eagerness of those willing to bet on the Italian, that Carnera would enter the ring a slight favorite, first heavyweight challenger in the history of boxing to do so.

The reasons for the betting trend were hard to find. Sharkey is in perfect condition and is only 31 years old, the prime of life for a heavyweight who lives carefully. The prize ring can point to a dozen title holders who fought their best at that age, Gene Tunney among them.

Carnera's Workouts Ordinary.

Just as Sharkey has trained perfectly, displaying speed, punching power, a sharp eye, confidence and plent of venom, so have Carnera's workouts been most ordinary. He is tremendously fast for such a huge

Doubles Lost By Gledhill And Vines

Australian Pair Wins in First Round at Wimbledon.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 28 (A.P.).—America's touring tennis forces battled on through the early rounds of the classic Wimbledon play with three setbacks today, one of them providing the historic tournament with its first sensational upset.

As much a favorite as any pair in the competition, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, the towering Californians, who hold the United States crown, were eliminated in the first round of the doubles play by two chunky youngsters of Australia's Davis Cup forces, Adrian Quist and Don Turnbull, 4—6, 5—7, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2.

The second loss in the American contingent was generally expected. Clayton Lee Burwell, former college star from Sewanee, bowed before Henri Cochet, France's fading master, but only after five bitter sets, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3. Burwell did far better than was expected, playing a well-balanced, courageous game. Cochet needed all his guile and strategy to pull out the match.

Cochet Is Far Off His Form.

Despite his intensive practice and conditioning since Jack Crawford, the young Australian, whipped him in straight sets in the French championships, Cochet was far from the old master who has been dominating the Davis Cup finals for years. His backhand was uncertain and he erred frequently.

The third casualty was Miss Virginia Rice, of Boston, ranked ninth in the United States, who lost her second-round match to Fraulein Van Deplugner, of Germany, after drawing a bye in the first round.

The remainder of the American forces were kept intact as Helen

ESSEFF'S GREAT FINISH NETS ARLINGTON PARK FEATURE RACE

Jungle King Is Nipped At Wire

Nituma Latonia Victor, Scoring Second in Row.

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, Ill., June 28 (A.P.).—Charles T. Fisher's Esseff raced to victory here today in the Midsummer Purse at 1 mile and scored one length over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Jungle King. Pompoleon finished third.

Jockey Jack Westrope, the leading apprentice lad in the Chicago racing district, rode the winner, which covered the distance in 1:37.

Misguide and Pompoleon raced like a team until the stretch bend was reached. Misguide then faded out of the picture.

Esseff paid $6.72 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Nituma Triumphs at Latonia.

Latonia, Ky., June 28 (A.P.).—Silks of State racing commissioners were very much in evidence here today. S. S. Combs, Lexington member of the commission, accounted for the Disabled American Veterans of World War Purse, feature attraction, with his good filly Nituma, and W. E. Smith, Louisville vice chairman, grabbed off an earlier purse with Angon Bridge and narrowly missed a double when King Cicero finished second.

In winning the headline dash, Nituma repeated a recent winning effort at Lincoln Field. She paid $6.50. Rated behind the early pace set by Thistle Play and Walter D., the 3-year-old daughter of Cherokee came from behin in the stretch to win by a half-length. C. V. Whitney's Contraband also came with a rush to snatch the place from still another fast finisher, B. O. Hickman's Agincourt. Thistle Play and Walter D. tired from their early efforts and quit to nothing.

Mrs. Ruth Martinez Wins in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 28.—Mrs. Ruth Martinez, of Washington, entered the semifinals of the Maryland women's State tennis tournament today at the Baltimore Country Club, and tomorrow will meet Mrs. D. Lloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., No. 1 ranking player.

Forced to go three sets, Mrs. Martinez defeated Mrs. Laureson Riggs, of Baltimore, 3—6, 6—3, 6—0.

In the other semifinals match, Reba Kirson, of Baltimore, ranked No. 2, a former District champion, engages Mrs. D. Luke Hopkins, of Baltimore.

In the women's and mixed doubles today, Abbie Sard and Francis Walker, of Washington, seeded third, defeated Nancy Wickes and Anne McLanahan, of Baltimore, 6—1, 6—2, and defeated Helen Knox and Anne Donald, 6—0, 6—3, in the second round. Mrs. Martinez and Marion Butler, of Washington, won from Elizabeth Boyce and Oara Gault, of Baltimore, 6—0, 6—2, in the first round, but dropped their second match to Mrs. Riggs and Mary C. Cottman, of Baltimore, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK, JUNE 28.

Well, friend, I made Rock Point beat the favorites today, but aside from that gesture there was little to enthuse over from a Bennings angle. Earl Steffen, who did some brilliant riding and some sloppy jockeying in Maryland last spring, was suspended for ten days, the stewards announced after the card today. It seems that Steffen was using his whip on Jockey Wright instead of on his mount in the seventh race. Here are some I expect to whip home in front tomorrow.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—I don't believe this field can handle FLAG HORN, a speedy juvenile backed by good races and encouraging trials. POST-SCRIPT appears most likely to provide a battle. CAW CAW is well bred and may be third.

SECOND RACE—FAST COLORS ran a pretty fair race recently and off that I'm giving him a chance to whip these at a sizable mutuel. TAR WATER, the likely favorite, is in tiptop shape. FLAT ROCK to take care of the others.

THIRD RACE—SALISBURY may run a much improved race and come sailing home ahead of those accepting this sprint. Has worked well. BRAVE AND BOLD, a misnamed horse, could take the second money in a field of this sort. LOUIE DEAR will be no worse than third.

FOURTH RACE—I've been having trouble making them repeat in this sector, but LAMP BLACK ran so smoothely here that I'm forced to string along. Gets a good post and only steadying weight. LASALLE and GUN FIRE for the rest.

FIFTH RACE—DARK WINTER appears to be a standout in this mile. Has demonstrated his speed in trials here, and I see no reason for mistakes. MR. JOE is right now and is to be feared. POMPOSITY would move up a lot should the mud arrive.

SIXTH RACE—I'll take SUNDOT, weight and all, in this contest. That last goes for the hootie birds. Watch this one run tomorrow. LATE DATE and MORSEL for the other money awards.

SEVENTH RACE—STONE MARTIN, now that his real speed is no secret, can be depended upon to give the boys a run for their money. The veteran is keen right now. ISLAM seems to have the edge on OPEN HEARTH, the big Maryland disappointment, for the show.

EIGHTH RACE—CHOKOLOSKEE appreciates a field of this kind and seems due for a winning effort. KING PIN and ROCK COVENTRY will be ready to battle it out should the top one make any mistakes.

Braves Trounce Cards, 4-3, 3-0

Boston, June 28 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals' pennant drive struck a snag today as the Boston Braves cleaned up the three-game series by beating Wild Bill Hallahan and "Dazzy" Vance for both ends of a double-header, 4-3, and 3-0.

Fred Frankhouse held the Cards to three hits while shutting them out in the second game. In the fourth inning Frankie Frisch and Ernie Orsatti hit singles in succession with none out, but Medwick spoiled the rally by hitting into a double play. From that frame on no Cardinal got beyond first base.

The Tribe hopped on Vance for two runs in the third frame of the nightcap. Bill Urbanski and Baxter Jordan beat out bunts and Wally Berger doubled, scoring the former. Jordan came home on Randy Moore's infield out. The latter's double and Hal Lee's single provided the third run in the ninth.

Cubs Win 2 Games; Jurges, Wed, Hero

Philadelphia, June 28 (A.P.).—Bridegroom Bill Jurges, Chicago Cubs shortstop, married this morning, celebrated his wedding day by hammering out six hits today to give himself batting honors in the Cubs' double-header triumph over the Phillies.

Coming from Reading, Pa., after the ceremony, Jurges stepped into the fray by connecting for a pair of singles in the first encounter, which the Cubs won, 9 to 5, and then got four more safeties, one of them a home run, in the 8-to-3 Chicago victory in the nightcap.

Lonnie Warneke, on the mound for the Cubs in the second, allowed only eight hits, while his teammates were connecting safely twelve times off Ed Holley and Ad Liska, who also saw service in the first encounter.

Fight Tonight May Draw $250,000

creature and his left jab starts out with the speed and accuracy of a lightweight. But he still can not seem to punch hard, sudden shifts in attacking style baffle him, and he can not hope to compete with Sharkey in ring generalship.

The amazing undercurrent of respect for the big Italian probably reverts to his knockout victory last winter over Ernie Schaaf, the Boston heavyweight who died a few days later after an operation revealed that he had entered the ring critically ill from a brain infection.

Despite the medical evidence, the jab that knocked Schaaf down and out in the thirteenth round apparently has given Carnera the reputation of a "killer;" something he failed to display in bouts with Jimmy Maloney, King Levinsky, Larry Gains, Paulino Uzcudun, and Stanley Preda, whom he could not floor.

Revenge Angle Is Overlooked.

The friendship of Sharkey for his stablemate, Schaaf, the bitterness with which he chased Carnera from the dressing room that night, the pledge he has reiterated to revenge the blonde youngster's death, all seem to have been overlooked by the bettors. The volatile, temperamental Sharkey never fights at a keener pitch than when his emotions are aroused.

The sale of tickets assumed a sprightly pace today with the best $15 seats bringing up to $40 in the hands of speculators, but there seems little likelihood that receipts would exceed $250,000. There will be no broadcast from the ringside.

N. C. State Game Off, G. W. to Meet Kansas

Coincident with the announcement yesterday that the Thanksgiving Day football game between George Washington University and North Carolina State had been canceled came the official statement from local athletic authorities that the game with the University of Kansas had been definitely booked for Saturday, December 2.

The contest with Kansas and the night game with Clemson College, of South Carolina, on October 13, promise to be two of the outstanding events on the Colonials' 1933 schedule.

No explanation regarding the cancellation of the game with North Carolina State was made.

MITCHELL ENTERS NET QUARTERFINALS BY CRUSHING KING

3-Set Battle Is Closely Fought

Lake Is Eliminated by Blanchard in Only Upset.

MEMORIES of boyhood days were revived yesterday when Dooley Mitchell, one of the Capital's greatest netmen, blasted his former junior rival, Gwynn King, out of the District of Columbia singles championship at Army and Navy Country Club with a thrilling triumph, to enter the quarter-final round.

Installed as the favorite to win the title, Mitchell defeated King (his doubles partner) by the close scores of 6—3, 6—8, 7—5 in what easily proved the feature match of the day. Mitchell took command of the situation in the first set, volleying effectively, but King showed old-time speed to capture an exciting second set that went to fourteen games. They waged a hammer-and-tong battle in the final set, with Mitchell's deadly placements and flashing back-court play as contributing factors in his victory.

Six Other Seeded Players Win.

Six other seeded players followed the District kingpin into the quarter-finals. Charlie Blanchard, unseeded, provided the only upset by eliminating Harvey Lake, seeded eighth, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3, in a sternly contested battle.

The quarter-finals slated today thus find seven of the eight seeded stars scrapping for honors.

Gilbert Hunt, who yesterday put away Allan Blade, 2—6, 6—1, 6—3, engages the veteran Tom Mangan at 4 p. m. Another youngster, Frank Shore, who rallied after a 4—6 opening set loss to beat Pat Deck, 6—0, 6—0, in the remaining two, vies with Anthony Latona at 5 p. m. The one-armed star, Clarence Charest, encounters Blanchard at 4 p. m., while Gene Hermann, who eliminated Alan Staubley, 6—4, 7—5, faces Mitchell at 6 p. m.

Several Doubles Matches Completed.

Several second-round doubles matches were completed yesterday. Garnett and Gould, City of Washington runners-up, took a thriller from Loney and Haney, 6—3, 7—9, 6—4. Hunt and Jock McLean toppled Bostrom and Stone. King and Mitchell broke even in their doubles with Staubley and Blanchard, and will resume hostilities today.

Results:

SINGLES—Hunt beat Blad, 2—6, 6—1, 6—3; Shore beat Deck, 4—6, 6—0, 6—0; Hermann beat Staubley, 6—4, 7—5; Blanchard beat Lake, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3; Mitchell beat King, 6—3, 6—8, 7—5.

DOUBLES—Deck and O'Neill beat Hill and Ritzenberg, 6—3, 6—4; Garnett and Gould beat Loney and Haney, 6—3, 7—9, 6—4; Hunt and McLean beat Bostrom and Stone, 1—6, 6—3, 6—2; Dorst and Blade beat Ballard and Dumas, 6—1, 6—1.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS.

Singles—4:00, Hunt vs. Mangan; Charest vs. Blanchard; 5:00, Shore vs. Latona; 6:00, Mitchell vs. Hermann.

Doubles—King and Mitchell vs. Staubley and Blanchard; 5:15, Seidel and Hermann vs. Newgarden and Baker.

TRANSPORTATION GOLF.

The Washington Transportation Club staged its annual tourney over the Bannockburn links yesterday, with H. Smith, with his 76, winning the blind bogey event. Low gross prize went to W. M. Kochenzerser, who had an 86, while the putting contest was won by L. Price.

in the pugilistic sense. But he can take it, and he has learned to use his left both as an offensive and defensive weapon.

Both men are looking beyond tomorrow night's fight. Victory means a battle with Max Baer and a share in the largest heavyweight purse since Tunney fought Heeney. There will be plenty of incentive for them to fight. It may be a great bout. It means money, and even fighters have been known to fight for it.

Girl Shifts Primo Case to New York

New York, June 28 (A.P.).—A judgment for $14,616 returned against Primo Carnera in the English courts was transferred to the books of the New York county clerk's office today at the request of Miss Emelia Tersini, London waitress, who won the judgment in her breach of promise action against the Italian boxer.

The transfer was made on the eve of Carnera's heavyweight championship bout with Jack Sharkey, the present title holder.

Counsel for Carnera filed papers contending the judgment was entered in England through "fraud," asserting the boxer was not in England at the time. Before the judgment was returned, Carnera's English lawyers said he had asked Miss Tersini to marry him, but not until after he had retired from the ring.

McAFEE FINED $250; NOTES ON NAT GAME

the White Sox were here and the fan, from a seat in left field, kept up a running fire of razzberries at Simmons. The charges against McAfee were filed by President Bradley, of the Cleveland Club, immediately after the game, although it was pointed out that "Baltimore" had been a persistent heckler of clubs for years. McAfee was sent on to Detroit early this morning just in case there was a warrant for him here today. According to his mates on the Washington Club, McAfee has earned the unanimous gratitude of players visiting Cleveland who on several occasions have threatened bodily harm to the fan.

The Nats moved into Detroit tonight on the last lap of their most successful Western invasion of years, a tour that has seen them win 11 out of 12 battles in the inland sector, which gives them a record of 16 wins in their last 18 games, including one streak of 8 in a row and another of 9.

These successes, which have seen the Nats overcome a Yankee lead of six games and assume a lead of their own, have been achieved without the services of one of their starting pitchers, Monte Weaver, whose sore arm is being given maximum rest as a result of the manner in which the remainder of the pitchers are carrying on and the manner in which the club from top to bottom is hitting the ball.

The fifteen-hit outburst today was reminiscent of their socking since the Western tour started, a heavy barrage of wallops that is maintaining the best team average in the league.

The Nats are not comforted by the fact that they will face such as Fred Marberry and Tom Bridges at Detroit. Marberry's last appearance against the Nats was a two-hit game in Washington. Bridges has not been successful against the Nats this year, but he is expected to get the call tomorrow. It will be Earl Whitehill on the mound for Washington.

Nee Reaches Prep Golf's Semifinals

G. U. Prep Ace Wins 2 Matches; Defeat Dealt Dettweiler.

Special to The Washington Post.

GREENWICH COUNTRY CLUB, Greenwich, Conn., June 28.—Two impressive victories over outstanding members of the champion Kiski School Team sent Maury Nee, of Georgetown Prep, Washington, D. C., into the semifinals of the Eastern interscholastic golf tournament here today, after his 15-year-old teammate, Billy Dettweiler, failed in his second round match.

In decisive fashion, the tall medalist from the Nation's Capital conquered Foster Meyer by 5 and 4 in his morning match and eliminated the Kiski Team captain, James Marks, 4 and 3, in the afternoon.

Tomorrow morning Nee will meet a third member of the Kiski team, Sidney Carson, whose 73 set the pace in the medal round Monday. Nee will be out to avenge the defeat inflicted on his school companion by Carson, who put out young Dettweiler by 3 and 1 after the Georgetown prep star had won a thrilling morning match from Charles Munson, of Taft School, 1 up.

Nee Is Always Ahead.

So steady was Nee's shooting that his opponents never caught up with him at any time during the two matches.

On the sixth, seventh, eleventh, twelfth and fourteenth holes of the afternoon, Nee putted in from distances varying from 10 to 15 feet. He chipped in from off green for a birdie on the thirteenth, and brought the match to a fitting climax on the fifteenth, where he holed out from a trap. Until the battle ended, Nee was 2 over par.

Dettweiler's victory over Munson was one of the most thrilling matches in the championship flight. One down at the fifteenth, Dettweiler fired a spoon shot hole high for a 3 to win the hole. They halved the sixteenth in pars; Dettweiler won the seventeenth to go 1 up, and Munson was closed out on the eighteenth by a stymie.

Prince Konoye Survives.

With Nee meeting Carson in the lower bracket, Prince Fumitaka Konoye, Japanese star from Lawrenceville, will face Jack Munger, of Hill.

In the second flight, Frank Allan and Jimmy Ferguson, of Georgetown Prep, reached the semifinals. Allan beat Allen Thompson, of Peddie, 5 and 4, and Lefens Porter, of Andover, 4 and 3. Ferguson put out William Stevens, of Hotchkiss, 3 and 2, and John Sinnot, of Roxbury, by the same count. Jack Sewell, also of Georgetown, was eliminated by James Brown, of Andover, 1 up.

Fussell, Albany, Hurls No-Hit, No-Run Game

Jersey City, N. J., June, 28 (A.P.).—Fred Fussell, slim left-hander recently traded to Albany by Buffalo, entered baseball's hall of fame here today when he shut out Jersey City without a hit or a run for nine innings, Albany winning by 4 to 0.

Only 28 men faced the Albany left-hander, his otherwise perfect game being ruined by two bases on balls, one of the passes being erased by a snappy double play. His mates afforded Fussell perfect support in the field.

Printers Aid Pals In League Battle

Printers, like all good union men, always stick together, and play in yesterday's Departmental League game was no exception to the rule. By beating Investigation, 8 to 2, the Union Printers gave the idle Government Printing Office Team first place in the first half of the schedule. The second half starts next week.

There was no doubt about the Printers' superiority over the Sleuths yesterday. They hopped aboard Coliflower's slants in the third and seventh for seven runs, while a two-run rally by Investigation in the fourth represented their entire attack. Simons, with three hits, was the game's leading hitter.

The 36-hole battle for the District Women's Junior Golf championship, beginning at 9:30 a. m. today at the Columbia Country Club, will develop into a three-cornered affair, with Virginia Pope, of Kenwood, the defending title holder; Virginia Williams, of Congressional, runner-up, and Helen Dettweiler, of Manor, as the principal participants. The final 18 holes will be played tomorrow.

Thus far only five have entered. Nellie Mae Neff, of Manor, and Miss Simon, of Woodmont, are the other two contenders, but neither is expected to keep pace with the charming trio of favorites. In practice rounds at Columbia yesterday Miss Pope shot a 96 and Miss Dettweiler, a 98. Over at Manor, Miss Pope shot six straight pars on the wooded nine to finish with a 41, while her touring partner, Miss Dettweiler, shot 45.

G. U. Golf Ace Beaten in Tourney

Lynch Bows, 3 and 2, to Cochran in College Title Play.

WILLIAMSVILLE, N. Y., June 28 (A.P.).—Three of the heavy pre-tournament favorites advanced to the quarter-final round of the Thirty-seventh National Intercollegiate Golf Tournament today, while two others lost in the "suicide" double eighteen-hole test of the first and second rounds.

Of the 32 qualifiers who took the field this morning to compete for the title vacated by Johnny Fischer, of Michigan, when his doctor ordered him to stop play because of an injured side, only eight were left tonight.

Outstanding among the survivors was Walter Emery, of Oklahoma, who provided one of the biggest upsets by defeating Johnny Banks, of Notre Dame, comedalist, 3 and 2. In the afternoon he beat Oliver Transue, of Yale, 5 and 3.

Cornell Captain Beats Brewer.

Another State champion, Rodney Bliss, of Omaha, Nebr., Cornell captain, trimmed John Brewer, of Lafayette, 3 and 2, and then eliminated Ed White, of Texas, 4 and 2.

Bob Cochrane, of St. Louis, and Vince Fehlig, of Notre Dame, who qualified with high scores, provided their share of the day's fireworks, Cochrane, playing superlative golf, eliminated Joe Lynch, of Georgetown University, 3 and 2, in the morning round, and then beat Den Nittinger, of Southern California, 4 and 3. Nittinger defeated George Davis, of Michigan, in the first round.

Lynch put up a game fight. He and Cochrane halved every hole on the first nine with the exception of the eighth, which was won by the Missourian, and represented his margin of lead for the outgoing nine, which Lynch made in 36, even par, and Cochran in 35, one below.

Cochran Goes 3 Up on Eleventh.

The Georgetown star was unable to match the flawless golf shots by his rival and lost the tenth and eleventh to pars as Cochran took a 3-up lead. He sliced a hole from Cochran's margin on the fifteenth with a par 4, and the match ended when Lynch pulled his tee shot to the rough on the sixteenth and wasted a shot getting out, losing the hole.

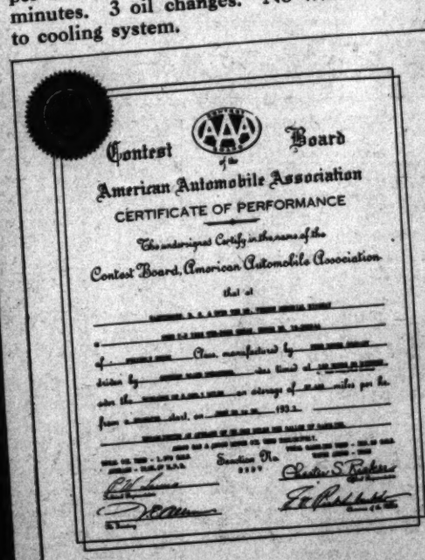
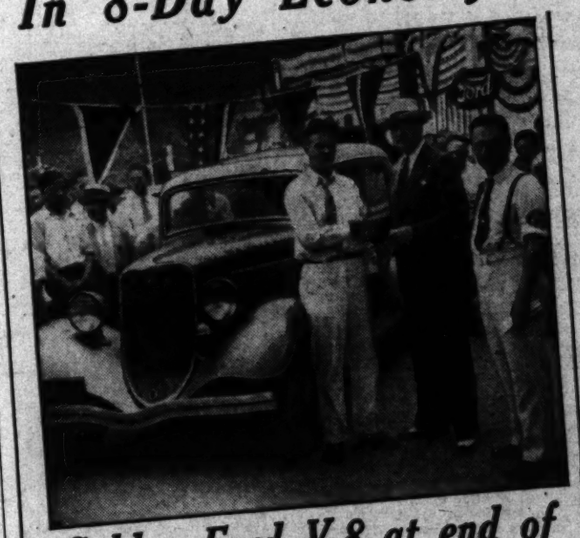
FORD V-8 GETS 22.5 MILES PER GAL.

Amoco-Gas & Motor Oil Used Exclusively In 8-Day Economy Run for New Record!

AAA Officials Certify Results of Run

Mr. T. E. Allen, manager of the contest Board of the American Automobile Association, gave out the following figures as "Official:" Total miles covered by test car, 5,022.1. Total gas used, 222.89 gals.; miles per gallon, 22.532; total oil used, 1.578 gals.; miles per gal. of oil, 3,182.57. Average speed per hour, 27.468. Total hours, 182 and 50 minutes. 3 oil changes. No water added to cooling system.





Golden Ford V-8 at end of 8-Day run greeted by Senator

Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, a member of the D. C. Committee of the U. S. Senate, was first to greet the Ford V-8 test car and AAA personnel when it glided into Ford Show grounds at 13th and Pa. Ave. yesterday at 12:30 P. M. after 182 hours of continuous driving.

Senator Reynolds is shown shaking hands with Parker Lewis, AAA driver of car, while to his right is Chester S. Ricker, technical supervisor of the American Automobile Ass'n.

REMARKABLE AMOCO PERFORMANCE

In 5,022.1 miles of continuous motor operation for 182 hours and 50 minutes, Amoco-Gas and Oil kept the mileage high and the motor cool and sweet. No adjustments—no repairs. A tribute to the new Ford V-8—Amoco-Gas and Oil alike.

But that's the Amoco story. More miles to the gallon—greater riding comfort to the mile and fewer repairs to the car.

Make it Amoco all the way!

FORD DEALERS TO PRESENT CAR TO WINNER SATURDAY

At this time the Judges of the Special contest held in conjunction with the 8-Day run are literally wading through thousands of entry blanks. Some lucky person is going to "hit" close to, if not exactly the correct gas mileage and miles covered and to them will go the New 1933 Ford V-8 Tudor Sedan.

Car will be presented to winner Saturday at the Ford Outdoor show, 13th and Pa. Ave. N.W.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl

A CONCLUSION reached listening to Chairman E. O Sykes, of the Federal Radio Commission over the radio last night, though it is known that he proposes to put up a real fight, is that the United States is bound to lose some of its precious broadcasting frequencies as a result of the radio conference next month at Mexico City.

In reply to a question from his interviewer, Martin Codel, as to whether or not we would have to surrender frequencies, Judge Sykes was noncommital, but said "we must recognize the rights of other countries," adding that our broadcasting stations have no property rights as against the public interest rights determined by the radio commission.

Assuming, apparently, that we would lose, Mr. Codel asked whether it meant another big reallocation like the one in 1928, when about 95 per cent of the station locations were changed, Judge Sykes replied:

"I can't really say. We don't want to disrupt things too greatly. One thing is certain, if changes are made they will be brought about gradually."

Another point apparent as a result of the judge's broadcast is that a vigorous protest will be made at Mexico City with regard to the high-powered stations which the Mexican government is permitting to locate just across the border for the purpose of broadcasting to the United States. These are American broadcasters who were ordered off the air by us for questionable practices. What Judge Sykes no doubt will ask, diplomatically of course, will be how Mexico justifies such a policy. This may prove one of the major issues of the conference.

The American delegation will leave for Mexico City on a special train July 4.

"WORLD'S FAIR INVITATION," a new and elaborate two-a-week radio series blending dramatized sketches with the music of Frank Westphal's augmented orchestra and "The Railroaders," a male chorus of ten voices, will make its debut over WJSV from Chicago at 8:45 o'clock tonight.

Sponsored by the railroads of America, the programs will include authentic information on the spectacle of the age now unfolded on Chicago's lake front, data as to excursion rates now being offered between the exposition and all sections of the United States, and brief but helpful where - to - go-and-how-to-get-there pointers.

Music popular in the days of the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893 will predominate in the selections of "The Railroaders," ten former glee club stars, who represent as many colleges throughout the United States. William Ross, former Wisconsin University, is the leader of the chorus.

Opening amid the wonders housed in the gigantic Hall of Science, kaleidoscopic views of the Chicago Fair (WJSV, 1 p. m.) will move rapidly into the Chinese Theater and the Lama Temple, then across the lagoon to Enchanted Island — the juvenile side of the fair—leaping from that point a mile and a half south along the exposition grounds and into the center of the Midway, the gay carnival section of the 600-acre exposition.

The Oriental stop will bring before the microphone a group of the Joy Fun Toy singers, offering the folk songs of China in their native tongue.

BEETHOVEN'S "Choral" symphony, the D Minor, his ninth and last, performed less than the others, due to the difficulty and expense of presentation, will be heard over WMAL at 9 p. m., as played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Dr. Frederick Stock at the Century of Progress.

The chorus used in the final movement, a musical setting to Schiller's famous "Hymn to Joy," will include 250 members of the Swedish Choral Club and Apollo Musical Club. The soloists will be Marjorie Maxwell, soprano; Louise Harrison Slade, contralto; Eugene F. Dressler, tenor, and Raymond Koch, barytone.

THE Marine Band will give a program tonight specially prepared for the radio audience of Brazil. The Marine Band will play at their barracks here and the numbers will be transmitted by short wave to South America. Announcements in English will be broadcast to the audience in this country and special announcements in Portugese will be read by the Brazilian consul general in the United States for the audience in his country. The program will be heard here over WJSV at 7:30 p. m.

Facts of interest to prospective spectators at the Altonna automobile races, over the July Fourth holidays, will be presented by the Road Reporter at 6:30 over WJSV. He will tell a thrilling tale, from real life, of a race driver who won despite a plot to put his car out of commission.

The last program in the series of Southeastern Revues, originating at stations on the South Atlantic seaboard, will come from Station WRVA at Richmond, Va.

George Haab, the "Virginia Harmonica King," will be featured, which will bring a variety of music to the radio audience over WMAL at 3:30 p. m.

"A GEOLOGIST'S PARADISE," which one might naturally gather would be pretty rocky, will be described by Ray Smith, professor of geology at George Washington University. (WMAL—7:30 p.m.)

"Industry's Stake in the Cotton Adjustment Campaign" will be revealed by Gen. W. I. Westervelt, Administrator of Processing, over WMAL at 10:30 p. m.

"Cotton Week" will also be the subject of an interview between Paul A. Potter and Frank Teuton over WJSV at 10:15 p. m.

The Elementary Science Corps of the District of Columbia Public Schools will be heard from over WRC at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

An entire operetta, "Sweethearts," will be featured by Capt. Henry's Show Boat cast during the weekly voyage of the Mississippi River side-wheeler over WRC at 8 p. m.

FIGHT BULLETINS

As a preliminary to the Sharkey-Carnera fight tonight Max Baer, contender for the heavyweight championship, will discuss the fighters just before he departs to watch the clash in the ring. Baer will be a guest in the Sunshine Hour, heard here over WRC at 7 p. m.

The fight itself, according to announcements received at this time, will not be broadcast. Fight bulletins will be read over Station WOL beginning at 8:30 p. m.

A summary of the fight will be broadcast over WJSV at 9:15 o'clock. Listeners over WRC will be informed about decisive features of the fight through bulletins beginning at 9 p. m. Tentative arrangements are being made for a summary of the fight over WRC at 10:15 o'clock.

Harris Hull will give the latest information in connection with the fight during the Postlion period over WMAL at 10 p. m.

A New Yorker at Large

By Mark Barron.

New York—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff:

A cable from Noel Coward, who is on the island of Martinique in the West Indies. He's sailing immediately for London, apparently having given up those plans for another jaunt up the Amazon.

Max Baer and his fiancee, June Knight, plan to appear together in a Broadway revue this fall. Baer is adept at singing and dancing as well as at leather-pushing.

Arthur Schwartz is composing his new songs in a London suburb.

Skimming Along.

Surf-sailing is the newest fad on the sophisticated Atlantic beaches. The waters off the Lido Country Club are swarming with members of the 400 skimming the waves on speedy balsa wood craft made by natives of Ecuador. Balsa wood, you know, is so light that a whole tree can be lifted with one hand.

An interesting item was put up the other day at auction by St. John's Guild to provide funds for a camp for New York's poor children. It was a $5,000 Brussels lace shawl which represents the life work of two Flemish women of Napoleon's day. At one time it was owned by one of Empress Josephine's ladies-in-waiting.

Mady Christians, the German film star, is here to play the lead in Vicki Baum's new play. But it's just a homecoming for her. She grew up in the Gramercy Park neighborhood.

The swan boat in Central Park reservoir has been repainted a blinding green and pink.

So many automobiles were plunging off that 75 feet high bridge at 125th street that it has been necessary to erect a steel guard as high as the hand railing.

COBLENTZ CLEARED BY FREDERICK COURT

Chief Judge Urner Holds Senator Did Not Know Bank Was Unsafe.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., June 28.—State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, president of the closed Central Trust Co. of Maryland, tried before the Circuit Court for Frederick County on the first of three indictments charged with accepting deposits when he knew the trust company to be insovlent, was acquitted today in a verdict pronounced by Chief Judge Hammond Urner. The bank closed September 2, 1931, and since that time indictments were returned by grand juries of Frederick, Howard, Carroll and Montgomery Counties.

The Frederick court held that the evidence showed that not only did Mr. Coblentz not believe that the trust company was insolvent but that also the directors and the State bank examiners were unaware of it, that there was no evidence Mr. Coblentz ever profited through the failure of the bank but instead lost heavily and his deposits and purchase of stock in the trust company prior to that time demonstrated his confidence in its solvency and continuance.

The case was taken up for trial May 29 and ended June 2. It was the second trial of Mr. Coblentz, the first being at Cumberland, removed from Howard County. At that trial he was found guilty and sentenced to 18 months in the Maryland House of Correction. The Court of Appeals reversed the opinion of the lower court on the basis of a faulty indictment and sent the case back for retrial.

Mr. Coblentz's defense was that the failure of the bank was due to investments in Washington real estate that depreciated in value. The failure involved the main institution in this city and 11 branch banks in Frederick, Carroll, Howard and Montgomery counties.

An indictment is also pending against George W. Page, former State bank examiner, charging failure to properly discharge his public duties.

Rence Edmonston received an 11-day sentence when he was unable to produce a $10 fine for violation of the motor vehicle law. Edmund Gorman, charged with larceny, was held at the jail for the October term of the circuit court in default of $200 bond.

George T. Brown, 2129 L street northwest, was fined $25 for reckless driving, and Arthur Fillmore, an employe in a Washington chain store, was fined $5 for drunkenness and disorderly conduct and $5 for carrying a concealed weapon.

Aunt Denies Story Niece Was Starved

Mrs. Mollie B. Hall, 2809 Ontario road northwest, aunt of 5-year-old Edna Louise Episcopo, for whom adoption papers have been filed at Marlboro by George Greenip, Eleventh Precinct policeman, last night denied that the policeman found the child in a starving condition.

"The children of Mrs. Emma Episcopo, my sister, were living with me at the time Mr. Greenip asked to adopt Edna Louise last November," Mrs. Hall said. "We were living at 2817 Thirteenth street then, and all were well cared for." Greenip was said to have been an old friend of the Episcopo family.

The denial came as a result of published statements that the policeman, as he patrolled his beat day by day, learned that the children's mother was recovering from a serious operation, the father had deserted and the children were not being cared for, hence the adoption. Papers for adoption also have been filed by Walter C. Johnson, of Hyattsville, for Irene, 3, Augustine, 6, is with his grandmother, and Maxine, 2, is with Mrs. Hall.

Groveton School Contract Given to Another Bidder

First Builder Relinquishes Work When Health Fails; Cost Will Be Several Thousand Dollars Over Original Estimate.

The new six room and auditorium school center at Groveton, Va., on the Washington-Richmond highway in Mount Vernon district of Fairfax County, will be erected without further delay but at a cost of several thousand dollars more than was first contracted for, according to action of the county school board yesterday.

About two weeks ago the bid for the erection of the school was awarded to W. H. Moring, of Farmville, Va., at a price of $23,897. Monday the school board was notified by Moring that he was surrendering his bid because of ill health.

State Architect Raymond V. Long and J. H. Bennett, of Richmond, Va., the next lowest bidder, were notified and asked to attend yesterday's meeting.

Bennett stated that he was willing to take the work at his original bid, but was not willing to undertake the construction of the building at Moring's bid. He also expressed a willingness to exclude all subcontractors' bids for certain phases of the work and let the school board award the bids for such work to other persons.

The total of Bennett's bid, exclusive of the heating and plumbing and electrical work, was $22,173, less deductions to be decided upon within the next few days, occasioned by possible changes in construction. The building to be completed within 120 working days, or sooner if possible. The heating and plumbing contract was let by the board to W. Wade Richardson, of Remington, Va., at $3,874, and the electrical work is to be awarded by the building committee of the board, composed of Chairman John T. DeBell and Trustees Mrs. E. L. Finks, of Mount Vernon, and Vernon M. Lynch, of Falls Church districts.

The board voted to apply to the State board of education for a loan from the State literary fund of $21,000 to be used in the erection of the Groveton School. This amount will be repaid in fifteen years by a special school levy in Mount Vernon District.

The July meeting of the board will be held July 6, when it will make temporary arrangements to house the pupils that were to be taken care of by the new Groveton building. The county schools will open September 14, and the new building will not be ready until in November.

FAIRFAX BOULEVARD UNWISE, SAYS BOARD

Lee Highway, Route Would Parallel 2 Others Now in Use.

The board of supervisors of Fairfax County, Va., in special session yesterday adopted a resolution opposing the construction of a Lee boulevard route through Fairfax County west from Fort Buffalo near Falls Church, as originally planned by the Lee Boulevard Association. Members of the board felt that the expenditure at this time would be unwise, as such a road would practically parallel two existing roads. They expressed themselves as advocating instead the construction of the boulevard through Arlington County to Fort Buffalo and the Falls Church cut-off and the widening of the Lee highway from that point.

The problem of what to do with that portion of the funds allocated the county by the State under the Federal industrial recovery act for State roads was discussed. The board advocated improving roads in the secondary, or feeder, system, rather than on the main thoroughfares. The funds will be expended on recommendation of the resident State highway engineer.

It is understood that the State has tentatively allocated about $20,000 to the Culpeper district of 14 counties, including Fairfax, for secondary road work. Members of the board hoped that approximately one-fourth of this amount will be spent in Fairfax.

The Federal Health Department was granted use of a room in the county courthouse while checking health records and conditions in Fairfax County for the next six months. The regular meeting of the supervisors will be held next Wednesday when the board will reorganize for the ensuing year.

Mr. Schreiner gave a word picture of the exposition. This was followed by the delivery of the speech which won first place in the group composed of the District of Columbia, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia. It was an appeal to the public to have confidence in the banking institutions.

At the conclusion of the meeting President Francis H. Fannon turned over the gavel to his recently elected successor, Alfred Thomson, who presented the retiring president with a gold Rotary pin, the gift of the members of the club. The next meeting of the club will be July 11, the next regular meeting falling on the Fourth of July.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

OF all the famous shows that ever were on Broadway or in the surrounding theatrical district, the one that outlasted them all was the Forty-second street flea circus. The flea circus was rounding out its eighth continuous year in New York when the Chicago fair opened—and to that attraction Prof. William Heckler, the flea circus master of ceremonies, took his troupe to awe the Chicago visitors.

Thus it was that after an approximate 50,000 performances in New York, the show's run was finally interrupted. It will be back on Forty-second street after the Chicago fair, however, to renew its record run.

Strange as it seems, there are no veteran actors in the flea circus—for the life of a performing flea is a hectic one, and a short one. After one has done his bit in every performance for five or six months at the most, he is retired without ceremony and an understudy steps into his shoes, takes his name, job and glory. For this reason the understudies are named for the actors whose places they will one day take.

Two dozen fleas are in the performing cast, and even more are held in reserve. Prof. Heckler guards most of the secrets of his successful training of fleas. He has revealed, however, how fleas are taught to stop jumping. The subject is caged in a glass tube so that every time he jumps he bumps his head on the top side of the tube. In a few days he is quite free from any jumping tendencies.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

City Heads List 40 Public Building Projects, Some to Start at Once.

The District Commissioners yesterday asked $22,716,500 of the $3,300,000,000 appropriation under the national recovery act for financing municipal projects in Washington. In a letter to the Federal public works administration, they listed more than 40 projects under 3 classifications in accordance with their status.

Only four items are in the group for which the District would be required to pay 70 per cent of the cost of construction, the Federal Government providing 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material. The District would pay $3,345,000 and the relief administration $960,000 on this basis.

The total cost of $21,801,500 is asked to finance the other 30-odd projects, as the District has no funds for them.

30 Per Cent Proposals.

The first group, for which only 30 per cent of the cost is asked, comprises: Contagious disease ward at Gallinger Hospital, $540,000, for which there is $250,000 appropriated, the Federal Government being asked for $150,000; Anacostia Junior High School, $405,000, for which there is $225,000, and $210,000 requested; Woodrow Wilson High School, $1,150,000 cost, $475,000 available, $330,000 asked; Calvert Street Bridge, $1,250,000 cost, $575,000 available, $360,000 asked.

In the other two classes are such major projects as two units of the Municipal Center, Washington aqueduct, reclamation of the Anacostia River flats, a new jail, a new morgue, adult tuberculosis hospital, the Michigan avenue viaduct, a variety of school items and $1,719,500 for sewers.

Work for Early Start.

Nine items are listed in the group on which work could be started in the immediate future, the plans having been drafted in some instances. These are the first unit of the Municipal Center, for which $4,600,000 is requested though about $500,000 is available; small mammal house at the Zoo, $200,000; Georgetown library, $175,000; District morgue, $105,000; additions to the Alice Deal, Eliot and Brown Junior High Schools, $465,000; Washington aqueduct, $82,000; reclamation of Anacostia River flats, $360,000. The total of these items is $5,987,000.

The third list includes projects greatly needed, and for which sites have been obtained, but for which no plans have been drawn. They are:

District Jail, $1,200,000; to complete construction at District Workhouse and Reformatory, $600,000; ward building at Gallinger Hospital, $800,000; combined heating plant for Gallinger Hospital and Jail, $200,000; Adult Tuberculosis Sanitarium, $1,000,000; new Industrial Home School at Muirkirk, Md., $600,000; Municipal Lodging House, $100,000; completion of District Training School, $340,000; second unit of Municipal Center, $5,000,000; Michigan avenue viaduct over Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, $400,000.

Public School Projects.

Schools—Addition to Truesdell School, $100,000; completion of Young School, $130,000; Southeast Vocational School, $300,000; plans for Senior High School in Manor Park, $30,000; high school for colored, $1,400,000; completion of classrooms at Roosevelt High School, $125,000; repairs and improvements to schools and grounds, $300,000. Total of $2,395,000.

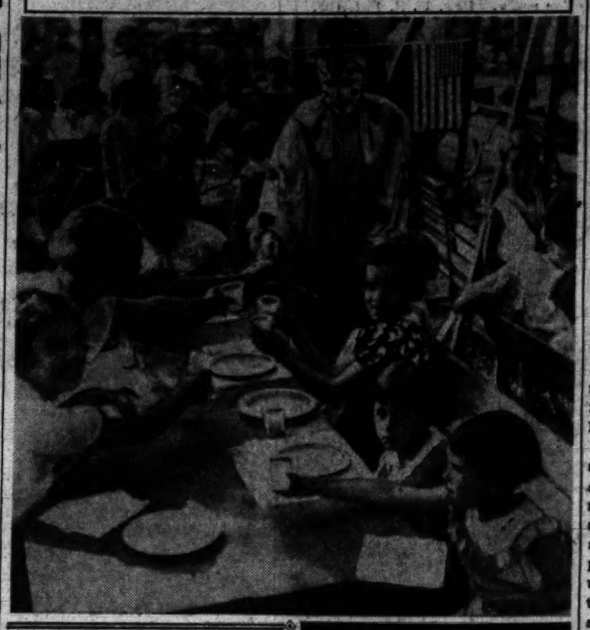
Replacement of obsolete heating plants in school buildings, $120,000; Petworth Library, $125,000; enlargement of Central Library, $500,000; fire engine house on Rhode Island avenue, $75,000.

At the Zoo—The completion of a bird house, $200,000; new monkey house, $250,000; new elephant house, $200,000.

Sewers—Northeast boundary exension, $853,000; Anacostia main interceptor extension, $231,000; Piney Branch relief sewer, $400,000; outfall sewer extension, $220,500; Upper Potomac interceptor, $15,000.

The three lists do not include the projects recently listed by the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks. It is understood they are to be submitted separately by the parks director.

IT'S HAPPENED FOR 20 YEARS



CASH IS COLLECTED FOR HAMILTON BANK

Progress Reported on Drive to Obtain Money for Stock Subscribed.

Still soliciting stock subscriptions to finance Hamilton National Bank of Washington, the general subscription committee for this bank now has begun collection of cash for amounts subscribed. Chairman of the subscription committees of each of seven restricted bank participating in the plan have under way campaigns to secure money to pay for shares of stock in the new bank, subscribed by depositors and stockholders. Reports received by the general subscription committee indicate substantial progress in the latest effort.

The subscription committee for the Seventh Street Savings Bank at Seventh and N streets northwest, which did not align itself with the Hamilton National Bank plan until Saturday, is still engaged in soliciting subscriptions for $50,000 worth of stock, this latest entry's quota for the proposed Hamilton National Bank. This accomplished, it will proceed with cash collections on pledges.

Officials of Industrial Savings Bank still are soliciting subscriptions for $250,000 worth of new stock to reopen that institution as a national bank. Those of Franklin National Bank are awaiting Treasury Department approval of their plan to reopen that bank independently. There also is a movement among three different groups of Park Savings Bank depositors to arrive at an agreement regarding the best means to effect the rehabilitation of this institution.

Two of these groups favor a Treasury Department receivership for this restricted bank and are expected to confer today with another delegation preferring a court receivership. One party of depositors favoring a Treasury Department receivership is not averse to committing the institution to the Hamilton National Bank plan.

Chain Store Robber Gets $25 at Silver Spring

A burglar yesterday restored to circulation $25 which had been "frozen" in the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. store at Thayer and Georgia avenues, Silver Spring, Md. According to Jean Brown, manager, the robber broke into the store and took the money from the refrigerator, where it had been placed for safekeeping.

Montgomery County police, of the Silver Spring substation, also are investigating two other unlawful entries. A window broken at the store of J. H. Acuff, Endor, Md., gave mute proof of the entry of a robber, but the proprietor could find nothing missing. A break at the home of Luther Poole, Spencerville, Md., netted the robbers $9 in cash.

ELKS FETE ORPHANS AT GLEN ECHO PARK

Thousand Youngsters Enjoy Rides, Entertainment and Refreshments.

A thousand and more youngsters from the city's orphanages yesterday had a rollicking good time at Glen Echo Park. The excursion was sponsored by Washington Elks, who also fed and entertained the children.

The outing was planned and carried out by the Elks' orphans' outing committee, of which Dr. John T. Ready is chairman. Chris Sprosser, Frank Portello, Harvey Given, Roland Perry and Sam Gibson kept the youngsters in constant merriment with their clowning. The Elks Boys' Band provided music.

Other entertainers included Frank Abbo's Congressional Syncopaters, led by Earl Mossman, with Virginia Boles and Danny Cook as dancers, and the Jeanette Twins. Groups of children from the Gladys Wilbur Parker School and the Weakley Playgrounds also furnished entertainment, as did a group from the dancing school of Miss Clara Roehrle.

3 Indicted in Robbery Of Mechanics Savings

The District grand jury yesterday indicted three men on a charge of holding up and robbing the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, Eighth and E streets southeast, last April. They are Max Zove, Spencer Walden and Emil C. Burgy. Two others, John J. Cahill and Abraham Raefer, already have been indicted in connection with the same robbery.

Officials of the bank estimated that $7,639 was taken from the bank by a group of bandits armed with submachine guns.

$15,000 Bail Holds Policeman Patton

Policeman John F. Patton, now on a suspended basis, was held under a bond of $15,000 when arraigned yesterday before Judge John P. McMahon on a charge of robbing an oil station of $185. An alleged accomplice, James Mason, colored, was held under a similar bond, while Clarence Ash, also colored, was ordered released when the Government failed to establish a case against him.

The charge against Patton is that he and Mason laid the plan by which the Dome Oil Station, Sixteenth and Taylor streets northwest, was held up and robbed June 21. Both Patton and Mason pleaded guilty.

The policeman blamed the lengthy illness of his wife for his troubles. He declared it was necessary for him to obtain money to get required medical attention.

EMPLOYES OF CITY FACING DISMISSAL STILL UNINFORMED

Officials Unable to Report How Many Must Be Released Tomorrow.

Although only two days remain before the end of the fiscal year, District employes who are to be released tomorrow afternoon because of the reduced District budget, were still in doubt as to their status when the District Building closed yesterday.

While the District Commissioners approved a program of retrenchment calling for few dismissals, numerous rotative furloughs, some retirements and a few transfers, early yesterday afternoon, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, personnel officer, said he would be unable to compile the results before today. Both he and the Commissioners insisted they could not give an accurate estimate as to the total number of employes to be released.

Some Branches Escape.

Indications late yesterday, however, were that the dismissals and retirements will run between 50 and 75, that many vacant positions will be abolished, and that there will be heavy rotative furloughs ordered in several departments. Some departments will escape any loss in personnel or any administrative furloughs.

The building inspector's office and the municipal architect's office will suffer the greatest reductions in personnel, but the personnel board has even here worked out plans for rotative furloughs in order to cut down the number of dismissals. It is not likely that dismissals will exceed 10 in either department, but the furloughs will bring salaries down as much as 26 per cent, including the 15 per cent now in effect.

30-Day Furlough Limit.

Two stenographers in the municipal architect's office are to be transferred to other Federal departments, and one is going to the office of Daniel E. Garges, secretary to the District Commissioners.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, stated that furloughs in no instance would exceed 30 days and that many of them will be for only two or three days.

There will be a few employes released under the marriage clause and several under the 30-year retirement provision.

3-Car Collision Injures Naval Patient Critically

Three patients at the United States Naval Hospital were injured last night in a three-car collision on River road near the Congressional Country Club. One of the patients, whose name was given as Cereensky by the two other passengers in the car, was in a critical condition last night at Georgetown Hospital with a possibly fractured skull. Police were unable to learn his first name.

The sailors were riding in a car driven by Neil McCallum, another patient, which was in collision with cars operated by T. Graves, Congressional Country Club, and George Everdale, 67A Bates street northwest. The sailors' car overturned, according to police. Cereensky, McCallum and Everett Lounsderry were taken to Georgetown Hospital by a nearby physician. McCallum and Lounsderry were not injured seriously.

Citizens Approve Tax for Streets

A general property tax assessment for street improvements was approved by the Rhode Island Citizens Association last night, after William J. Byrne, chairman of the committee on legislation and taxation, pointed out the advantage of the plan over that of making assessment on space and area.

The association asked the Health Department to remove the growth of poison ivy vines from a vacant lot at Twenty-fourth and Otis streets northeast.

It also adopted a resolution commending the owners of the building used by the branch library in that section for reducing the rental, thus making possible the continuance of the library under the reduced budget for the next fiscal year.

Released U. S. Employe Is Found Killed by Gas

Mrs. Helen M. Warfield, 37, of 533 Randolph street northwest, was found dead from asphyxiation late yesterday when her husband, Richard, returned home. The body was lying on an improvised bed in the kitchen near a range from which gas was flowing. First aid was given by the fire rescue squad, but the woman was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital.

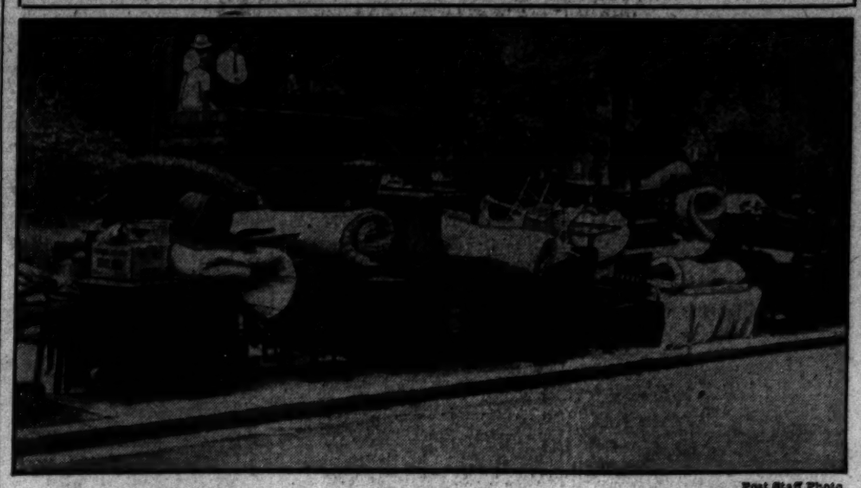
Police were told the woman had recently been dismissed from Government service and had been despondent.

Man Run Down Dies; Taxicab Driver Is Held

A coroner's jury yesterday held Thomas C. Beverly, colored taxicab driver, for grand jury action in connection with the accident in which Benjamin F. Compton, 81, 2310 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was fatally injured on May 13. The accident occurred at Eighteenth street and Florida avenue northwest.

Compton was knocked to the pavement, suffering injuries from which he died Tuesday at Emergency Hospital.

LIFE IN A BOARDING HOUSE



Post Staff Photo.

A. Madeline Davis knew she was to be evicted from 1342 Thirteenth street northwest for nonpayment of rent. But her seven roomers were not apprised of the fact until the United States marshals arrived yesterday morning. They were present, but she was not during the "moving" which left the sidewalk strewn with household effects. The roomers claimed their property and police took charge of the rest, when the proprietor did not claim it. Several of the tenants had paid in advance for the rooms, police said.

Dyed in Vain

Faithless Color Is Downfall of Brunette Taxi Man Posing as Blonde.

He's been found—the man who dyed for a job! He's a Washington hacker—that is, he was until the cops found out he was a brunette.

His name is Walter Aloysius Phelan, 27, of 2120 G street northwest, according to police traffic bureau records. The hacking license he carried indicated its owner was a blonde.

But, alas, the dye streaked and a patch of black showed when Assistant Hack Inspector J. L. Mavars stopped the man for questioning. He was using a borrowed hacker's license—a blonde's license.

Phelan was fined $20 in Police Court on a charge of driving without a permit and $15 for not having a taxi driver's license of his own.

RUM SLEUTHS WALK BEATS IN NEW PLAN

Police Department May Put Liquor Men Back Into Patrol Uniforms.

The number of men assigned to liquor and gambling law enforcement in some of the precincts may be diminished if a plan under advisement by police officials is adopted.

Searching for possible economies in the Police Department, without reducing the number of uniformed patrolmen, Inspector T. R. Bean suggested that some of the men in his district could be taken from liquor enforcement work and placed in uniform.

Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown, emphasized, however, that there will be no diminution in enforcement work because of the repeal sentiment which is sweeping the country. The method of enforcement will be handled by precinct and special investigation squad at headquarters. Maj. Brown denied that there will be concentration of the liquor forces at headquarters.

The force tomorrow will lose 11 members by retirement. Those to be retired are Lieut. L. A. Carlin, Detective Sergeants Robert L. Sanders and Charles Mullen, and Jerome Jenkins, Joseph L. Farmer, Charles E. Addison, Thomas A. Blasey, Stephen J. Walsh, Richard A. Allen, Thodore Schultz and Henry C. Hinton.

Jury Clears 2 Men In Woman's Death

The District grand jury yesterday refused to indict Edward Thomas Haislip and Edward Fritchy Harris, held in connection with the finding of the body of Eva Cumberland, 56, in an alley last April.

The grand jurors heard testimony indicating the woman sustained fatal injuries when she fell down a flight of steps in a house near Ninth and H streets southeast. The two men, it was shown, had merely carried her from the house and had deposited her in an alley.

Two others, Ira Edward Taylor and Wilmer Allen, were cleared two weeks ago.

SENATE CLERK, JOB LOST, TRIES SUICIDE

J. C. Perkins, 62, Near Death on Taking Poison and Slashing Throat.

Despondent over loss of his job as enrollment clerk of the Senate, John Corchran Perkins, 62, was not expected to live at Casualty Hospital last night after taking poison and slashing his throat at his home, 507 B street northeast.

The tragedy was discovered by Mr. Perkins' wife when she returned from a shopping trip to find her husband unconscious in the bathroom.

Mr. Perkins was one of the most popular officials on Capitol Hill. He had been employed in the same capacity during three Republican administrations.

He lost his position March 15 when Capitol patronage was redistributed under the new administration. Mrs. Perkins told police that he had been despondent since that time. He left no letters giving his reason for the act.

Mr. Perkins is a native of Minnesota and was an appointee of former Secretary of the Treasury Frank B. Kellogg at the time he was senator from that State.

Low Flier

Northwest Folks Annoyed by Aviator Who Breaks Police Regulations.

The folks out in the upper Northwest section are becoming annoyed by the aviator who's been zooming around in his plane a few hundred feet overhead recently.

It's strictly against the traffic regulations to fly lower than 3,000 feet over the District unless the flier is an official or employe of the Government flying in an official capacity.

Although the regulation is there in black and white, with specified fine of from $1 up to $300 or ten days in jail or less, the police can't do a whole lot about it. Because they haven't a plane to chase him in, and motorcycles won't fly.

CAPITAL MAN DIES IN FALL OFF BRIDGE

Family Unaware He Left Washington Until Informed of Death.

Although members of his family were unaware he had left Washington, word was received here yesterday that Lewis R. Waters, an employe of the Alderney Dairy Co., plunged to his death from a railroad trestle near Goldsboro, N. C., some time Tuesday night.

Certain that his father's death was accidental, Emmett Waters, a son, left here last night to complete arrangements for bringing the body to Washington. The younger Waters is a policeman attached to the Third Precinct.

According to Associated Press dispatches, Waters, who was 55 years old, fell from an Atlantic Coast Line trestle about 10 miles north of Goldsboro. Authorities, after investigating the plunge, notified relatives here.

Waters lived at 3609 Twenty-sixth street northeast. He had been a resident of Washington for 35 years and for some time had been employed as a driver for the Alderney Dairy.

Besides his son, Waters is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pattie Waters, and two brothers, Joseph, of this city, and Fred, of Charles County, Md.

21 TEACHERS HERE LOSE POSITIONS AS BOARD WIELDS AX

4 Married Women Resign to Save Their Husbands' Government Jobs.

Closing out 21 more school positions and approving the resignation of four women teachers, who are leaving the service so as to protect the jobs of their husbands in Government service, the Board of Education wrote finis to the 1932-33 school year yesterday afternoon.

A reorganization meeting for the new school year will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday. Three new members will be inducted into office at this time, and a new president will be elected. Identity of the three new members will be revealed by justices of the District Supreme Court before Saturday.

May Reappoint Two.

Two present members whose terms expire this year may be reappointed. They are Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith, and the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett. Dr. Abram Simon, former president of the board, has served notice that he will not stand for reappointment, due to his health.

Retirements, resignations and terminations approved yesterday are the last to be acted on. They included 11 retirements, 8 resignations, 1 termination, 1 resignation of a teacher on leave of absence and the 4 resignations by married women. Two of the positions were 3A teaching posts with a salary of $2,800, and 19 were 1A positions, with a salary ranging from $1,400 to $2,200.

Truant Officer Quits.

The married teachers who are retiring are Mrs. M. H. Leane, teacher at the Raymond School; Mrs. S. E. Brunner, attendance officer in the white schools; Mrs. P. T. Kirk, teacher at Western and Mrs. D. H. Potter, teacher at the John Quincy Adams School.

In line with the economy program, formulated to meet a reduction of $90,000 in the school appropriation for next year, these positions will not be replaced. Instead, teachers will be transferred to meet the needs of next year's student enrollment.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, has intimated that it will be necessary to employ additional teachers before schools open again, because of the resignation of married women and the need of creating new positions to care for special courses.

Wholesale Beer Swindle Alleged

It was good while it lasted, that scheme of Jack Watkins by which he obtained man-sized quantities of real beer, but it didn't last long enough, police said.

Therefore, Jack himself, originator of the idea, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of committing grand larceny, in that he, the said Jack Watkins, did steal 21 cases and one barrel of beer from Nelson H. Carver, former special assistant to the Attorney General and now a beer dealer.

Watkins is accused of calling Carver, mentioning the magic name of Senator Carter Glass, and getting prompt delivery of beer in large amounts. The only fault to find with the whole transaction is that Glass did not order—or desire—the stuff, and Carver was never paid for it.

Beam Hits Government Worker.

Edward Welsh, 23, of 427 G street northwest, an ironworker, suffered a smashed foot and ankle yesterday when a steel beam fell at the new Department of Agriculture Building. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Light in Lincoln House! Switch Found Forgotten

A light burned in the home of the late Todd Lincoln, son of President Abraham Lincoln, last night. Passers-by saw it. A few moments later the house, at 3014 N street northwest, was surrounded by a squad of Seventh Precinct police.

From garret to basement the house was searched. The light burned beside an open window in the cellar. Careful investigation revealed nothing amiss. A huge oil painting of the sixteenth President, said to be insured for $40,000, hung in a downstairs hallway. Other valuables and relics of Lincoln's career occupied prominent places throughout the house.

Mrs. Todd Lincoln, it was learned, uses the house only during winter months. She is believed to be in Newport, R. I. Police were told the caretaker is out of town. Residents in the community said painters are redecorating the home for her return. It is believed one of them left the cellar light burning.
